

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THIRD PAGE. See Insurance Co. ... A. S. Murray, Agent. ...

LOCAL NEWS.

New Mill.—Henry Gill is putting up a steam saw mill at Hamtown.

LOCAL HOUSE.—It appears to be the impression that the local house will meet on the first Thursday of March.

DENTAL.—Last issue of the Royal Gazette contains the dental registry of the province and enrolls the names of thirty-one practicing dentists.

PRESENTATION.—Rev. H. B. Dibble, rector of Marguerville and Barton, was recently presented with a handsome fur coat by his parishioners.

ASSASSIN.—William Crewdon has been appointed principal assessor for the city at a salary of $300, with D. B. Barker and John A. Richards assistants, salary $90 each.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—Yesterday Mr. Neill, of Gibson, father of James S. Neill, of this city became seriously ill from enlargement of the heart. He is much improved this morning.

TO ST. MARTIN'S.—Dr. Day, of Sheffield, on Monday last with his family for St. Martin's, where he will practice medicine during the absence of the regular physician at that place.

ONE OF THE FEATURES.—One of the features of Wednesday afternoon's horse trot on the ice was the running away of Mr. Hart's horse after upsetting the occupants. No damage was done.

FOR ROCKLAND, MAINE.—A large business is being done at Belyea's Cove, McDonald point, Vanwart's wharf and other places in Queens county, getting out cordwood for the Rockland, Maine, lime burners.

PHYSICIAN REMOVED.—Dr. Frank Brown has decided to remove to Kentville, Carleton county, where he will take the practice of Dr. Gregory. Frank will be much missed here as he was popular with all.

GETTING READY.—Mr. Edwards, of the Queen hotel, is having that building put in the very best shape before the local house opens. It is the favorite resort of members and they will find that it is fully up to its former excellence.

AN INVENTION.—Eben Miller, carriage maker, has invented a novel arrangement for holding up the shafts of carriages and sleighs when not in use. It does the work well, is not at all costly and will probably have a large sale. He has applied for a patent.

AT BLACKVILLE.—Mr. Gibson has about 2,000,000 ft. of logs at his mill and will probably increase the amount to 3,000,000 by the close of the winter. This will ensure a good summer's saving. A large furnace is to be built to burn the refuse from the mill.

PAVING WILLIAM FIRE.—The dwelling house of Abraham Hoyt at Prince William, was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning last. There was no one in the house when the fire broke out, about eleven o'clock. Part of the furniture was saved. The loss is about $1,200.

NEW COAL MINE.—A coal mine has been discovered in Gloucester county which bids fair to stir up the business enterprise of the northern sections of the province. A sixteen inch seam is being developed and it is believed that a seam will be reached deeper down of good paying thickness.

MONEY IN IT.—The enterprising firm of Pender Bros., Hibernia, Queens county, are making changes in their saw mill at that place, and intend putting in machinery for the sawing of trunk staves for the American market. They have investigated the business and believe there is money in it.

THROUGH THE ICE.—Capt. G. Belyea of Wickham, while driving on the river at that place recently made a narrow escape. His horse broke through the ice in about four feet of water and it was with much difficulty they were rescued. Mr. Belyea got a good thing, but was otherwise all right.

IN THE TOWNS.—Newton Lee is in the toils again. He was arrested on Wednesday for an assault on Mrs. Linforth and Mrs. Russell at the Linforth residence. Mrs. Linforth had a sleigh in her possession which Newton claimed as his, and a discussion ensued, which led to the assault. The case came up for trial before Mr. Marsh on Friday morning.

A CAPABLE OFFICIAL.—One of the most painstaking and careful officials of Queens county is Jailer William Brandner. He keeps the building in the cleanest and neatest shape and in the many responsible duties connected with the position, he does his work without severity and with a just regard to law. Mr. Brandner is the right man in the right place.

SCHOOL HOURS BURNED.—At eleven o'clock on Wednesday morning the village school in No. 3 district, Stanley, was destroyed by fire. All the school requisites, books, etc., were destroyed and but part of the furniture saved. There was an insurance on the building of $450, which will partly cover the loss of the house. A new building will be erected at once.

DEFIES THE IMPROVEMENT.—Mrs. Nae denies the soft impeachment, which has been going the rounds of the press, that she ever was kissed by Mr. Gilbert, or that she sent him for and recovered $200 damages. She says she should know. This is the lady who behaved with the rev. Mr. Stevens, of St. John, has made her the subject of the latest sensational articles.

SOLDIER POLITICIAN.—Dr. Bethune, of Cape Breton, a member of the opposition in the Nova Scotia house of assembly and a major of the 94th battalion, is taking a short course term at the C. E. L. school here. The doctor is a firm opponent of the late coal deal and is a man who is well able to express his views on the subject.

NEW ENTERPRISE.—A company with a fair amount of capital and considerable activity has been formed for the purpose of developing the coal fields of New Brunswick. This company will ask for legislation at the coming session of parliament to enable them to construct railway and wharf facilities at Grand Lake, and for the owning and conducting of all necessary vessels for shipment of the product.

THROUGH TRAIN.—It appears to be the intention of the C. P. R. to run a through train between Woodstock and St. John, crossing the railway bridge here. The curve on the Gibson side is about completed, all the sleepers being in place and about two-thirds of the rails put down. Should the through train prove a fact it will be a loss to Gibson as well as to Fredericton, while Woodstock and St. John will receive a benefit. Haulroading does not appear to have many advantages to offer this city, but rather the reverse.

NASHWAAK BRIDGE.—The work of tearing down the old bridge at the mouth of Nashwaak is being pushed on. It is a difficult work, as some of the piers have to be torn out down to the foundation. They have been built upwards of twenty-five years and are filled with sand and clay washed in by the river. This clay is frozen solid and is very difficult to remove. Dynamite has been used but with little effect, as it found escape between the logs. However, the top work is all done and as some of the foundations ready for re-building.

PINDER OR BLACK.

Was There a Revision? If not why not?

A little childish abuse of Wm. Wilson in the state reply to a statement recently published in the Herald respecting the very careless way in which the business of the county of York is conducted. As Mr. Wilson has had connection with the articles published, the criticism of that gentleman falls very flat.

However, there is another matter in these accounts which could have difficulty in collecting taxes. This is one view of the case. Another is that the revision has been made and some reason the account, averaging $60, has been omitted from the report making the total returns incorrect. There are two sides to the question, the revision was not made, or the cost has been omitted; in either case the fact is apparent that very little if any care is taken by the officers in dealing with the affairs of the county.

DEATH OF MRS. HARRISON. She Passed Away at Half-past Nine Last Night.

The conversation which was to have taken place at the university last evening, the 19th inst., had to be postponed on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Harrison, wife of Dr. Thomas Harrison, chancellor of that institution. Although she had been in failing health for the past two years, and was gradually getting weaker, she did not think that the end was so near, but at seven o'clock it was evident that she would not live many hours. Friends gathered at the bedside and all that medical aid could do was done but at half-past nine the dread summons came and she quietly passed away. Deceased was a daughter of the late John S. Taylor, of Sunbury county, and was much esteemed by the people of this city as well as by past and present students of the college who speak of her kindness in the highest terms. Mrs. Harrison was a niece of Sir Lewis Millican.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and will be attended by the students in a body. Her sons, Darlington, who is near British Columbia, and Arthur in Cincinnati, will be unable to attend. The Herald extends its sympathy to the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

Maryville News. Thomas Morrison has begun ice cutting, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Messrs. Bubar and Estabrook are finishing up the system of the reform Baptist church. Several rooms in the cotton mill have been doing night work to keep up with orders.

This is the quiet time at Maryville if there is any quiet season, the rush and boom will begin again in a few weeks. The cost of the proposed sidewalk to the P. C. Baptist church is placed at from $250 to $300, according to the width.

The women's aid society in connection with the Methodist church had a successful concert in the hall on Thursday evening. About fifteen cents was collected for the benefit of the poor.

Those E. Wheeler has decided to further improve his system of passenger traffic between Fredericton and Maryville, and has started an accommodation service as follows: A bus will leave Maryville at 8:30 a. m., and 1:30 p. m., returning will leave Fredericton at 11 a. m., and 5 p. m. Joe Wheeler will run on the old time table.

DEFAULTERS. The Collectible Taxes Not So Large as at First Appears. A committee has been appointed by the city council to devise some plan whereby delinquent taxes may be collected. It is a step in the right direction. Last year's report shows something like $8,000 not collected, part of which is for taxes of '91 and '90. It always happens that names are placed on the assessors list for sums which it is impossible to collect. The parties may have left town, or disposed of their property or some other reason may be given. This will reduce the total delinquent list at least one half, and the balance, it is likely, the committee may collect. Some are taxed too high, so they claim, and refuse payment at all, and these are allowed to slip along into the defaulters' list without being placed in a collector's hands. The total in the report of last year is not a showing of what is collectible, as the outstanding amount may be placed at $2,000 for the three past years. The committee will prove a benefit to the city if they are able to place this amount in the treasurer's hands.

Mary Welton's Case. The church council summoned to advise the congregation of the Main street, Baptist church, St. John, with regard to their future relations with the rev. Sydney Welton, who has figured so prominently during the past two months in connection with the gravestone case, returned the following finding on Wednesday night.

Resolved, That in consideration of the public scandal caused by rev. Sydney Welton's connection with certain insurance matters, that we, without expressing an opinion as to his guilt or innocence of the charges in the indictment tried in the St. John county court, recommend the Portland Baptist church to withdraw fellowship from him as pastor and Christian minister.

G. H. MARTELL, Secretary. Maryville Buses. A petition from the livery stable keepers of this city was presented at Tuesday night's meeting of the council, complaining that the Maryville busmen interfere with their trade, and asking that a law be passed that would prevent these busmen doing city business. A committee was appointed to visit the liverymen and arrange a suitable bill. It is thought by many that it will be impossible to frame a law that will contain the necessary protection. The Maryville busmen say that they are ratepayers of the county of York and fully entitled to drive through the streets of Fredericton. If the busmen and liverymen keepers could arrange the matter themselves it would be more satisfactory to all.

Investigation Wanted. And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

And now his policeman. A letter from J. B. Ginter, reflecting severely on the conduct of officer Phillips of the police force, was presented at last meeting of the city council, asking that the matter be investigated. It was referred to the police committee, and they were asked to report on the matter.

MORE RASCALITY.

Luke Lawson and Dr. Huntley Accused of Graveyard Burglary.

The Eastport Sentinel, of the first instant, contains the following sensational article respecting two well known men of this county. F. S. Milliken, esq., general agent for eastern Maine and New Brunswick, of the Kennebec Life Insurance Co., of Waterville, this state, has recently returned from a visit to a town on the Vancouver, Woodstock and Edmundston division of the C. P. R., in the adjoining province of New Brunswick, after having successfully accomplished a very good piece of detective work. A short time since MILLIKEN received notice from the home office of his company that a case requiring investigation had occurred at or near Canterbury station, on the above road, and for him to proceed there and ascertain the facts, without letting it get noised about that such was his mission.

Canterbury is a small village clustering about the railway station of that name; it contains a hotel, a store, a blacksmith shop, and a hotel, of which latter one Luke Lawson is proprietor and landlord, also a prominent man of the village. Seven miles distant in the direction of the forest which surrounds Canterbury, is a backwoods settlement known as Hartin. At this latter place, up to last November, a man named John McCann with his wife, and a large family of children, had resided in a comfortable fourteenth mile distant, in another direction, is another settlement known as Bel River, where a certain medical practitioner, whose office bears the sign of Dr. Huntley over its door, has his dwelling place. There are three or four persons, in what was thought would prove a very lucrative venture, if the unexpected did not happen. But also for the fact, that the only one expected did happen, hence this story of a barefaced attempt at that kind of insurance known as graveyard.

John McCann was a farmer and woodsman, and managed through bits of industry to support his family in a fairly comfortable manner, until the ravages of that baneful of our northern climate, pulmonary consumption, had reduced his strength and brought him near death's door. His physician had exercised his skill in combating the dread disease, and was finally compelled to acknowledge there was no help for McCann's side of the grave—this conclusion being reached in the early spring of last year.

Evidently McCann's thoughts were turned to providing some means of support for his family, so soon to be left without father; for with the help of Lawson and Dr. Huntley, an insurance of $1000 on his life was effected in the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York, on the 1st of June last, and one month later one of $4000, "a straight life," in the Kennebec Mutual Life, Mr. Milliken's company.

Of this latter, $2000 was to be paid to Lawson, the balance to McCann. In case of her husband's death, as the first did not concern Mr. Milliken he made no enquiry as to its provisions, leaving that to be settled by McCann. His opinion was that she had not been dead an hour. He said he allowed Robert Hallett to believe he was present when his daughter depended on McCann for the money. The Undertaker Tuttle told of the burial, and then an adjournment was made.

The examination was resumed on Wednesday morning when Enoch W. Stevens, writing of Lawson, who in some way it would seem, had been deputized by the regular agent to secure business for the company, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was over 57. After lingering through the summer and autumn, McCann finally died early in November, less than five months from the date of the last insurance, and was buried in a coffin upon whose plate the conspirators were careful to have the age to correspond to that given when the assurance was effected. The Mutual Life investigation brought to light, and while his mission was only to ascertain the facts as far as they had a bearing upon his own company's interests in the affair, yet much more was that came under his observation, to convince him that a more or less extensive system of graveyard insurance was being carried on in the out-of-the-way sections of New Brunswick. The physician, though it appears the agent witnessed the signature of McCann to the document. By the regulations governing the Mutual Life none but those between the ages of 18 and 55 years, were eligible to insure. In the application McCann's age was stated to be 54, and soon after the death it was found that he was