The way of The Cross

By M. REGINA COLAN.

Come, all with grief o'erwhelmed, And ye with sin defiled Come, find as found the Magi, The Mother and the Child. We need no angel's summons,
No star to lend its ray,
The blood from Pilate's palace
Will point us out the way.

Follow the crimson footsteps,
And, midst the rabble wild,
Behold the mournful meeting
Of Marv and the Child. Quickly our tears are rising,
And sorrow fills each heart,
But seel the brutal rabble Are taring them apart!

Onward they rush with Jesus,
Forcing the stranger's aid!
Not e'en by Veronica
Are their cruel footsteps stayed.
Nor will they pause when Jesus ne with pain, With spear and scourge and curses, They force him on again,

On past the weeping women He stumbles forward stil, Where in the nearing distance Uprises Calvary's hill. Hark! hear you not the hammers?— The dreadful deed is done! And on the cross extended Hangs Gods Eternal Son!

O God of love and pity!
O thorn-crowned King divine!
Whose sin has caused thy anguish?
Ah me! He answers "Thine."

The Lopers.

A LEGEND OF JERUSALEM.

By FRANK PENTRILL Two brothers to Bethsaida came, Both Lepers and outcast; Men glanced in fear and srank aside As on their way they passed.
But in each other's eyes they read
Nor scorning nor disgust,
They clasped each others tainted hands
With sympathy and trust.

And as they waited by the pool The elder brother heard On him, alone, who entered first Would healing be conferred. l'ogether, then we will retutrn, He thought "toge her die; For us is hope an empty word, A dream that has past by.

But while, beneath the fir-tree shade,
His weary brother slept
He could not sleep, and sad at heart
He bowed his head and wept;
Then on his brother's brow and cheek,
His leprous lips he laid
For the last time. "One may be saved,
One shall be saved," he said.

The boy woke up with happy talk
Of life as it would be,
When they were heared—perchance
te-day—
Of their foul leprosy
He babbled on, with flushing cheek,
Of happings and health

Of hapiness and health,
And all they both might seek and win;
Of love, and fame, and wealth. The elder brother heard and smiled

But spoke no single word Until, beneath the angel's touch The healing waters stirred; And then he spoke: "Go thou—go Quickly the boy obeyed; The elder brothor on the brink With love and sorrow stayed. He saw his brother's eager leap,

He saw the waters part, He saw them close around his head; He saw with breaking heart, Heturned away, and as he went Men shrank with scorn aside, More closely mothers clasped their And children's laughter died. Across his path, on his bent head,

The night's dark shaddow fell; A voice within his bosom bade To love and hope farewell.

Then from the pool there came a cry Of wild eestatic joy, And glad hosannas from the crowd That gathered round the boy.

The leper stands among the hills, In darkness and in cold; The wolf is prowling o'er the plain,
The sheep are in the fold:
The children round their father's knee Are gathered from the night, The mother to her sleeping babe Is cooing soft delight.

Alone he stands beneath the sky; He sees the coming years, The long, long, solitary days. The suffring and the tears, The gnawing of the ceaseless pain
No brothers hand shall sooth,
The death-like silence through which

The last lone hour, the fight with death,

And no one standing by,
To wipe the pain sweat from his brow;
No one to help him die. He kneels and lifts his doomed head

He kneels and lifts his doomed head
To where, alone, yet bright,
God's stars upon his sorrow shed
Their calm and patient light.
"O Lord!" he cries, "I praise thee still,
For he I loved is free;
To bear my fate, to do Thy will,
Shall be enough for me."

Manitoba School Question.

To the Editor of The Mail and Empire Sir,-I fear like a good many others, I have not paid that attention to the Manitoba School question which perhaps it deserves. In a general way I thought that somebody was making a villainous attempt to coerce the people of Manitoba to abandon an excellent school system in favor of a system which had been all but universally condemed. This appeared to be the correct view, for I found a Conservative journal urging the uprising in Ontario in favor of "civil and religious liberty," or rather its equivalent, the Manitoba school Remembering it is wise to haste slowly. I thought it might just coerce the minority into the acceptance of a sort of hodge podge which is country teacher trying to work out the following novel kind of religion. "To establish the habit of right doing, instruction in moral principle must be accompanied by training in moral practices. The teacher's influence and example, current incidents stories, memory gems, sentiments in the school lessons, examination of motives that prompt to action, didactic talks, teaching the ten commandments, etc., are means to be employ

The next step is apparently to call this latest educational folly a "National School System." And coercive Acts are passed by Local Legislature compelling all and singular to adopt the new educational code. The minority contend that they have inherent rights-rights of conscience, rights of contract, rights of compact and constitutional rights, which have been infringed upon by this godless legislation. They claim further that while minimizing religion to the vanishing point may be all right for the Protestont majority, it is not right for them, and that so far as they are personally concerned, they cannot in conscience dishonor God, nor divest themselves of the responsibility He has placed upon them for the proper training of their children. To this it is answered, your schools are bad, your teachers not qualified, and time that ought to be devoted to the study of algebra and Euclid is given over to the little cathechism, or some other absurdity for their faithful the minority adherence to the unassailable right of a parent to have his child taught religion as a prime necessity of all education, and it is nothing short of disgraceful to find professing Protestants quite prepared to barter away religion to secure a purely godless system of education, which is working untold misery on this continent at the present moment. Speaking candidly as a clergyman of the English Church, but only speaking for myself individually, I would gladly see a parochial school established in connection with every parish and mission of our Church. Why is it that churchmen have taxed themselves for the Bishop Ridley's College in this city; Bishop's College School, Lennoxville; of God. and many similar institutions under the auspices of the Anglican Church? The answer is that the pupils attending those schools might have, first of all, a religious training, combined with the best possible primary education. The plea of the Manitoba minority s a reasonable and righteous one, and the Dominion Government will strengthen itself with all right-thinking people by insisting upon their grievances being adjusted. In the meantime, if the school system of the minority is a bad system, nobody will suffer but themselves; at any rate it is better they should suffer than be forcibly compelled to abandon their conscientious convictions, particularly on a question that includes not only the interests of the here, but of the

There are others, again, which contain matter of admiration rather than of imitation, as the life of St Mary of Egypt, St. Simon Stylites, of the two St. Catharines (of Siena and of Genmaintenance of such schools as eva) of St. Anecia, and the like; which nevertheless fail not in general Trinity College School, Port Hope; to give us a great relish for the love

By this means you will experience a weetness of devotion, as St. Augustine did, who testifies in his Confessions that hearing the Divine Office in the beginning of his conversion, his neart melted into tenderness and his Roman Catholics in the Province the eyes into tears of piety. Enter then willingly into the Confraternities of the place in which you reside, and especially those whose exercises are most productive of fruit and edification, as in so doing you practice a sort of obedience acceptable to God; for although these Confracernities are not commanded, they are nevertheless recommended by the Church, which, to testify her approbation of them, grants indulgences and other privileges to such as enter them. Besides, it is always very laudable to concur and co operate with many in their good designs; for although we might perform as good office alone as to have risen from the dead.
