The Wizard Who Ends All Corns

Some years ago a chemist invented the now famous B & B wax.

To apply it we invented the Blue-jay plaster.

Since then, fifty million corns have been ended forever by this little application.

It is applied in a jiffy. The pain instantly ends. Then the B & B was gently loosens the corn. In two days the whole corn, root and all, comes out. No soreness, no discomfort. You simply forget the corn.

Why pare corns when this thing is possible?

Paring simply removes the top layers. It is exceedingly dangerous, for a slip of the blade may mean infection.

Why trifle with sores—treat them over and over—when a Blue-jay removes them completely, and in 48 hours. Prove it today.

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn B protects the corn, absorbing the pain at once. C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable. D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

How to Have Successful Parties

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"Why, oh, why aren't my parties ever real successes like Gretchen's?" wailed a dejected hostess this morning after a rather little function. "I work myself most to death to have everything just right, and still I know people don't enjoy themselves as they do at Gretchen's house, and she never takes half the trouble I do."

We all know that there are some homes where we always seem to have a good time, no matter how simple the fare or how commonplace the entertainment provided, and others, where we do not have half the pleasure even though the fare may be sumptuous and the entertainment most elaborate.

Now, why is it? What makes one party be a success and another fail?

Well, for one thing, I think this dejected hostess put her finger on her chief mistake when she said she worked herself almost to death to make her party a success. Doubtless that was the very reason why it was nearer a failure. A spic and span house, an elaborate program and the most delicious fare will not counteract the depressing influence of a hostess who tries vainly to hide her anxiety and her weariness under a forced smile. Remember that you yourself are a part of your entertainment. The original idea of entertaining, an idea which has been buried under the clatter of the pendulum upon it, is that your guests come to see you. If you can bring cordiality and good cheer and a genuine gaiety to your guests, you will go a long way towards making your party a success. And you cannot do that if your feet ache and your nerves are frazzled and you are thoroughly weary and dispirited because your over-anxious efforts to have everything just so.

Again, don't forget that it's people that make a good time infinitely more than things. In other words, the prime requisite of a jolly party is a congenial crowd. Get a congenial crowd together; just let them talk, and feed them nothing but lemonade and cake, and they'll have a better time than an uncongenial gathering fed with the most delicious fare and offered the most elaborate entertainment.

Be sure to have at least one of those folks who "make things go" on your list. Everybody has at least one or two such in his acquaintance. They may not be any cleverer or more popular than other people, but they happen to have this gift. Look over your list of guests to see if you have invited one of these folks, and if you haven't, get hold of one by hook or crook.

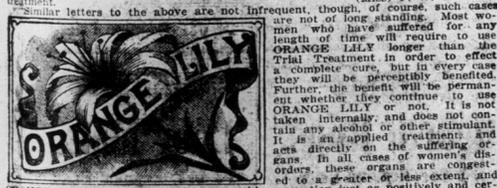

Be sure to have some game to begin with which will break up the ice; no matter how silly it is, so that it dissipates the slight stiffness which even a crowd of congenial people are apt to feel, when they have been hidden to a formal gathering.

And that brings me to my last suggestion. Don't have your party a formal gathering. To my mind, formality is the deathblow to enjoyment, and I am delighted to realize that the formal party of the last decade is rapidly disappearing. Eleventh-hour inspirations and telephone invitations are the order of Twentieth Century hospitality, and for my part I hope the pendulum will never swing back in the other direction.

MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

Kingston, Ont., June 8th, 1908.
Dear Mrs. Currah—I feel so very much better after using the 10 days' treatment of ORANGE LILLY you were kind enough to send, that I will not require any more. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the treatment. (Miss) F. W. T.

Similar letters to the above are not infrequent, though, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most women who have suffered for any length of time will require to use ORANGE LILLY longer than the 10 days' trial treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be perceptibly benefited. Further, the benefit will be permanent whether they continue to use ORANGE LILLY or not. It is not taken internally, and does not contain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering organs. In all cases of women's diseases, these organs are congested, and congestion just as positively and certainly as the result of a simple chemical cure. It is a simple chemical cure.

In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, I will send a dozen of ORANGE LILLY for 10 days' treatment, absolutely free, to each lady who will send me her address. MRS. FRANCIS E. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

Fads and Fashions

Face is being more and more used for evening and afternoon toilettes, covered with delicate shadow lace. Ordinary parasols, a trifle more elegant than usual, are made of bright-hued silks and trimmed with bands of velvet ribbon or embroidered flowers.

Hat trimmings grow higher and higher, and on one hat seen recently there was a tall lattice work of climbing roses placed toward the back of the crown.

Parasols of surprising colorings, pagoda-shaped and small in oriental colorings, though quite useless as sunshades, add a picturesque note to the smart costumes.

Summer tailornades in café-au-lait and other light colors are new and pretty, trimmed with a bit of black satin and perhaps a touch of bright-colored embroidery.

Wired sleeves—made so that their gauzy folds extend away from the arms—are an entirely new innovation, appearing on some of the new French fashions for young girls.

Large flower-laden hats of crin will be worn in midsummer. With the tailored gown this season one must wear a three-cornered or four-cornered hat to be in the fashion.

A pretty fancy, seen on several of the newest evening dresses, are the tiny posies of flowers, set on the underdress, the mignon overdress veiling them with charming effect.

A daring color scheme seen on an evening dress is emerald green satin, over an underdress of pink satin of a bright shade, the latter being veiled with black shadow lace.

Very chic for afternoon wear is the pump having the patent leather back and suede quarters. The suede portion comes in white, gray and tan—in fact, can be made to match any gown.

Separate collars or ruffles made of pleated tulle, lace, tulle and looped velvet ribbons, usually in black, are fancied at the moment. They are worn over thin summer gowns.

Wide, flat pierrot ruffles make a faint finish to many of the newest silk frocks at the neck. The edge of these ruffles is sometimes hemstitched, and they are made of soft Japanese silk.

Among the novelties in gloves are the sixteen button white glove kid, hand-painted from the wrist up in sprays of tiny flowers; violets, forget-me-nots and daisies appear to be the favorites.

A new parasol of lace is decorated with huge pink roses made of silk and gauze. Another of black lace is trimmed with a straggly fantastic bow of brilliant blue velvet ribbon flatly applied.

Evening wraps of the finest chiffon or mignon will be seen much in the warm weather, some of these having small sprigs of flowers dotted over as a pattern, and they are in the softest shades and tones.

The magpie effect is popular in footwear, the mixture of black and white extending even to the shoe laces. Black and white check uppers to a pair of shoes are accompanied by similarly checked laces.

We must not forget to mention the striped wash silks, which are so much liked for blouses and simple summer gowns—they were never more plentiful and never so available, for they seem to be less in price this year.

The June Bride

BY H. L. RANN.

The June bride is a providential visitation which enables the hard-pressed father of a large family to transfer 140 pounds of orange blossoms and tulle veiling to the shoulders of an intrepid suitor. Most people prefer to be married in June because at this season of the year both the ministry and the railroads are offering through tickets, with stop-over privileges, at reduced rates. The departure of the June bride is always accelerated by the unsolicited activity of admiring friends, who decorate the sleeping car with Louisiana rice, old shoes and neat placards bearing some pithy advertising matter. Some June brides advise the travelling public of what has taken place by boarding the train in a white satin wedding dress and a coy look; while others escape notoriety by disguising themselves in dull whifcord effects and a blase air.

The June bride is always an object of interest in the community. For weeks before the wedding the neighbors speculate on the cost of the trousseau, the specifications of the menu and the financial rating of the bridegroom's father. The friends of the bride give her a relay of parties, at which she is showered with table linen, kitchen utensils and the sage advice of those who have a lightning rod posted in some conspicuous place. The bridegroom is entertained at a festive function known as a stag dinner, which is featured by a very lively order of playful and personal comment, calcu-

Croup Comes Suddenly

ABOUT midnight the child awakes coughing—that peculiar, metallic cough-called croup, and which strikes terror to the mother's heart.

Then begins the struggle for breath, and if relief is to be obtained treatment must be prompt and effective.

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success.

It is wonderfully prompt in loosening the cough, clearing the air passages of the head, and soothing the excited nerves.

There are imitations of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Be sure you see the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, on the bottle you buy. 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents; at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

lated to inspire reverence for the state of matrimony and put the recipient in a comfortable frame of mind. The hardest thing the June bride has to do is to return from the seashore and buckle into the problem of three meals a day without losing the sunshine of the marriage morn. That she is able to do it all is the highest tribute to her grit and the horse sense of her home training. The June bride who can gallivant from one summer resort to another without wanting to keep it up the rest of her natural life makes a wife that improves upon acquaintance.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The schr. Procyon, Capt. Noseworthy, will leave here on Monday for Sandy Islands, Labrador, with the crews of R. S. Munn. Mr. and Mrs. Munn and family will take passage on the Procyon to the coast.

Greater activity than usual seems to be manifested in agriculture this season and every person who can possibly do so is planting potatoes, &c. This increased activity is no doubt caused by the high prices and growing demand for vegetables.

It seems almost impossible that a person could be made happy by the dreadful Titanic disaster; but such is the case, according to a late number of the Boston American. A French lady named Mrs. Navratil was divorced from her husband, the latter claiming the two children—boys aged 4 and 2 years. On Easter Sunday the husband called and bid good-bye to his wife. The latter in deep grief took what she thought a last look at her two dear children. When the report of the survivors of the Titanic was made known, two children answering to their description were mentioned in the list. Although Mrs. Navratil had no knowledge of her little ones being on the ill-fated ship she left her home immediately and came to New York, and was overjoyed to find her children. The lady who had adopted them when they were found friendless on the Carpathia willingly gave them up to the mother, who is only 21 years of age, and who is now gone home happy in the possession of her children but regretting the death of her husband.

Mr. R. Tarrant, after a week or so of serious illness, passed away this morning. This is the young man who lost his left hand by an accident at the Horwood Lumber Factory, St. John's, a couple of years ago. Consumption was the cause of his death.

Messrs. C. Ash & Sons' new Boot & Shoe Factory is now in full swing. New and up-to-date machinery, driven by electricity, nearly forty years' experience in the business by the principal of the firm, years of practical experience by the other members, will all tend to build up a good trade for our enterprising townsmen. We wish them much success.
