

Hidden Skin Troubles

Have you on some part of your body a sore, or eruption, or ulcer, or eczema patch which, hidden from the gaze of others, yet causes you hours and hours of pain and inconvenience? Have you tried this, and that, and the other remedy in vain, and are you feeling disheartened and discouraged? If so, read the following instances of Zam-Buk's healing power, and apply it to your case:

"I had an ulcerated leg for several years. The ulcers spread all round the limb, which was swollen to nearly twice its normal size. Several doctors treated me. One suggested amputation. None did me any good. Zam-Buk healed the sores!" So says Mrs. Gilmour, of Princess St., Kingston. Or, read this—
"My mother tried many things for abscesses and eruptions, but in vain. In Zam-Buk she found a complete cure." So says Miss A. Cagill, of Wapella (Sask.).
Sufferers from these "Hidden Skin Troubles" of any nature should profit by such experiences as this. Zam-Buk is seen at its best when applied to cases which have defied ordinary treatment. Write for trial box, and test it at our expense.

ZAM-BUK AND A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Over and over again Zam-Buk has performed a miracle of healing when applied to sores and skin injuries which have refused to heal under any other form of treatment. Why? Let it heal four troubles! Instantly Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or wound or diseased portion of flesh it commences a work in two directions. It soothes the exterior, and its antiseptic properties prevent any germs and bacilli from creating trouble. Then the herbal essences and juices, so finely purified and concentrated, penetrate the adjacent layers and stimulate the weakened or diseased cells to a new, healthy operation. These cells then put forth their "Building" products, and replace the diseased outer layer with fresh and healthy tissue. By degrees the whole diseased surface is thus replaced by new healthy skin.

In this way Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, itch, eczema, eruptions, psoriasis, scurvy, salt rheum, blood poison, and other forms of skin trouble. Zam-Buk's cures are quick, various, and sure. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes $2.50.

Complaint From Miner.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—My chief reason for asking you to favour me by publishing this letter is that the Evening Telegram is a widely read paper, and so with the miners and underground workers of the country. The miners want to know what Sir Edward Morris meant in his manifesto four years ago, when he was looking for the miners' votes; viz: Mineral development, Rewards for discoveries of minerals, Housing of miners, Enforcing of mining laws, Weekly wages for miners. The miners have had four years of Morris experience and administration and they find out now that he has practically done nothing to better their condition, and it is now up to the underground workers in this country to vote for a new government and a square deal, which they have not got yet in Newfoundland. The miners have proved Morris to be a failure in every respect. He has no backbone. His reward for the discoveries of mineral is useless. If a man finds a deposit of minerals he must pay the Morris Government $11.00, or in other words, the Government put their hand down in the prospector's pocket and extracts $11.00 from him on the plea that when there are 50 men employed on the deposit the Government will give the discoverer a thousand dollars. This is a case of live horse and get grass. Where are Morris's mining laws enforced? Are the underground workers getting mine inspection? Are they not at times forced to work in bad air, and under bad ground and under bad timber, and under other conditions that would not be tolerated in any other part of the world? Wild animals have better protection from the Morris Government than miners. The graballs only want your vote. I will give you an instance of my own experience. A short while ago I was employed in one of our mines as a miner. Myself and partner were sent one day to put in a piece of timber. I noticed the ground was heavy and bad, so I ordered a good piece of timber to be sent down in the mine. Timber was sent down. I examined the piece. It was 12 x 12, fourteen feet long; a piece of old, dry pine. I found it was bad and had only one good side. I reported this to the captain who was in charge. He told me to put it in use and turn the bad side in to the ground so that the men working would not notice it. I told him to do so was not right, that sooner or later it would give way and perhaps kill some one. He said I was paid to do as I was told and if not to go on deck. We are running this mine and we will do as we please. You fellows here keep your mouths shut. No one in the country is looking out for good timber or bad. I worked in another mine in this country and the shaft was about 300 feet deep. There was a skip working in the shaft. There was no main road only for about 250 feet. The men had to slide down on their back with a hold on the skip rope with their hands and then swing at 50 feet below the deck and let the skip pass up. I spoke to the man in charge about it, and told him that we had law in this country and that he ought to have some way for the men to go up and down without going between the rails that the skip was working on, and I also told him that he should have guard rails on the skips and also on the flats, but he said it would cost too much and we had no practical man in the country that knows the difference, anyhow; and in the face of the above there were rules for miners posted up at this place signed by T. A. Hall, Government Engineer. Who gave Hall the authority to draw up rules for mining in the country? Is he a practical man? I would respectfully draw the attention of the Minister of Justice to the above facts.

Yours truly,

Indian Island Notes.

Quite recently a resident of Easter Cove was again reminded of John Gilpin's ride, and strange to say it was his birthday. He left home with horse, slide and gun, intending to bring home a load of wood and any game that he may kill. While passing through some shrub wood he saw a fine bird and took aim and fired. It was the last he saw of the bird; the horse took fright and for about two hours he galloped all over the place, going north, south, east and west, the owner holding on to the side for dear life. The horse at last became quiet and the owner was not much the worse for his experience.

The F. P. U. are having a parade at Seldom to-day and intend holding a demonstration here Feb. 11th. Next election this district will be solid for clean government. The Bay Roberts affair and the tramping of the Union Jack in the mud is an eye-opener.

The harbor is a solid sheet of smooth ice. No doubt the skaters would avail themselves of the opportunity but for the very high winds.

Helped Defend Rorke's Drift.

Sudden Death of Veteran Hero Who Won the Victoria Cross.

(Lloyd's Weekly.)

Memories of one of the most thrilling episodes in the annals of the British army, are recalled by the death of Private Frederick Hitch, who won the Victoria Cross by his heroism at Rorke's Drift during the Zulu War of 1879. Hitch died suddenly on January 11th at his home in Cranbrook Road, Chiswick.

Hitch was a private in the old 24th Regiment (now the South Wales Borderers), which in January, 1879, was stationed at Rorke's Drift. On the morning of the 22nd Colonel Durnford was ordered to move up with all his command from Rorke's Drift to the camp at Isandlwana. This was an amazing blunder, for this left the post, a point of great tactical importance, practically unguarded. The position was being used as a base of supplies, and enormous quantities of provisions and commissariat were stored there. But it had no defences. The Mission House at the post had been converted into a hospital, and contained many wounded and convalescent soldiers.

At Isandlwana Colonel Durnford met with a tragic and historic disaster. His force was annihilated, and the victorious Zulus pressed on to the apparently easy task of overwhelming the post. Two horsemen, survivors of Durnford's command, riding for their lives, reached the drift, and warned Lieut. Chard, R.E., the officer in command of the post, of the oncoming danger.

With the assistance of Lieut. Bromhead, commanding a company of the 24th Regiment, Lieut. Chard constructed a laager, with two barricades made of biscuit boxes and mealie bags, and connecting the two houses of the mission station. Thus a square was formed, and the buildings themselves were loopholed. The active garrison consisted of eighty men.

Fought With Smashed Shoulder. Within half an hour of the warning the Zulus appeared. At four p.m. Private Hitch, posted as look-out on the roof of the hospital, saw a Zulu on the crest of the hill, and fired at him. This was the first shot in the action. Unfortunately the garrison had had so little time to prepare that they had not been able to complete the barricade on one side, where there was a gap of thirteen yards. Trees leading up to this spot gave cover to the attacking force, and here the fighting was fiercest. The Zulus attempted to carry the barricades with a rush. At the gap they were only repelled at the point of the bayonet. For twelve

RAILROAD MAN HAD TO LAY OFF

Until He Took GIN PILLS

Buffalo, N.Y.

"I have been a Pullman conductor on the C.P.R. and Michigan Central for the last three years.

About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pain in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate.
I treated with my family physician for two months for Gravel in the Bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected and who had been cured by GIN PILLS, after having been given up by a prominent physician who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try GIN PILLS which I did—with the result that the pains left me entirely."

hours this terrible assault continued. The defence of the hospital was in itself an affair of extraordinary persistence and heroism. The defenders, carrying the sick men, retired from room to room, fighting desperately until, with the aid of a pickaxe, they entered a window in the outside wall, and escaped into the laager.

The Zulus set the thatched roof on fire and many of them perished in its fall. When the patients were brought out they had to be carried across the square to the inner line of defence, which had been constructed between the two outer barricades, forming a smaller square, and which ultimately proved the salvation of the defenders.

To Private Hitch and Corporal William Allen was assigned the dangerous duty of covering the communication between the hospital and the inner defence. Taking terrible risks, and firing rapidly, these two men kept back the enemy and enabled the wounded to be brought in. Hitch was struck by a Zulu bullet in the shoulder, and was terribly injured. But with only one hand serviceable he continued to fire, and killed three natives who had crossed the stockade.

Sat For Famous Picture.

Ultimately the smoke and flames of the burning hospital attracted the attention of Lord Chelmsford's column which came to the relief of the heroic little garrison.

Private Hitch received the Victoria Cross from the hands of Queen Victoria, at Netley Hospital, in the summer of 1879. Unfortunately, it was stolen from him while acting as commissaire at the United Service Institution in 1901, but King Edward gave him a duplicate.

Some time later he became the owner of several horse cabs in Chiswick, but had to give way before the taxicab invasion. But he was not one to give way before trouble, and, recognizing that the new machines had come to stay, he took service with the General Motor Cab Company at their Chiswick garage. He was discussing the strike with a neighbor, when he suddenly collapsed and died.

Lord Chelmsford took a close personal interest in Hitch whose simple calmness in attacking his slithering arm to his waist-belt, and then continuing to use his rifle with the other hand, made a great impression on his many admirers. Among the latter was also Cecil Rhodes, who, when in London, a few years before his death, called upon Hitch and complimented him on his bravery.

It was one of the pleasures of Hitch's life that he had been chosen by Lady Butler to sit for her while painting one of her pictures, a copy of which occupied the place of honor in his room at Cranbrook Road.

One of his sons is a master tailor in the army, another is in the Metropolitan police, and a third in Canada. The inquest was held by Mr. Gordon Hogg, who referred in glowing terms to the part played by Hitch in the famous episode.

Dr. Dawe said the cause of death was pleuro-pneumonia and heart failure, and a verdict was returned to that effect.

Hitch was buried with military honors at Chiswick cemetery. It is understood that Private Williams, now the only Victoria Cross survivor of Rorke's Drift, was present at the funeral.

Visited Lodging House.

London, Feb. 5.—Former King Manuel of Portugal, yesterday visited one of the London County Councils lodging house for single men. He ate a penny worth of bread pudding, and pronounced it excellent. He afterwards chatted with several of the inmates. The manager offered to keep the former monarch for a shilling a day. King Manuel said he would think the matter over, adding "I have often slept in worst places."
