This is the number of new subscribers secured by the Maritime Telegraph & Telephone Company during the past year. This represents an increase of about 16 per cent., and the directors state that it would appear from present indications that this rate of increase will be maintained for some time to come. What this means to the holders of the Common Shares of the Company will be readily appreciated.

We have instructions to offer a small block of this Common Stock at an attractive price, to yield well over six and one half per cent.

AGENT CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE CO.,
 Port Hope, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—
 When acknowledging receipt of the Company's cheque for my matured Endowment Policy No. 24387, I desire to avail myself of the opportunity to express my satisfaction with the outcome of my investment.
 The policy was payable to me at age 60, with ten premiums at $10.00 each. The return under it is as follows:

Sum assured	$1,000.00
Dividends added	416.51
Total amount payable	$1,416.51
Premiums total premiums paid	480.00
	$ 936.51

That I should have insurance protection free for all these years and now have over twice the amount of my premiums returned to me in cash is a most satisfactory outcome and I heartily congratulate you on it.

Yours very truly,
GEO. ROBB.

"How Little We Knew."

By RUTH CAMERON.

It is the firemen who set fire to houses. That is why immediately after you see firemen rush to a house, you see it burst into flames. I suppose you consider these startling statements. They are true to me also. But I am not authority for them. They come from the lips of my four year old nephew, who knows more about this subject than his father or mother, his grandfather or grandmother, his uncles or his aunts, in short than all the world of grown-ups who try to convince him to the contrary.

The connection between firemen and fires has been carefully explained to him over and over again. But he simply shakes his head and says, "No, no, the firemen set the fires. Naughty firemen. I hope they won't set fire to this house." And in five eyes is the superior look of one who knows, and who has a half contemptuous pity for our ignorance.

Funny little boy! How we laugh at him and his amusing belief in his own superior wisdom! And yet, and yet, well do you remember when you graduated from high school how very wise you were? Could any grown-up with merely forty or fifty years experience in this vale of laughter and tears ever know as much as you know then?

To be sure, you did not think that firemen set the fires instead of putting them out, but were there no other matters about which you were as positive as my little nephew that you know more than your parents or anyone else in the world? Have you not come to laugh at some of the ideas you held then as heartily as my little nephew will laugh about his firemen delusion in a few years?

What an opinionated little person you were then! Now that you have grown so much wiser you can afford to laugh at your implicit belief in your own infallibility. Now, of course, you are really right when you think you are.

And then, to-day in its turn becomes yesterday. And to-morrow becomes to-day. And again we look back and realize the absurdity of our certainties—this time perhaps with more of thoughtfulness than laughter.

And so it ever goes. From one epoch of our lives to another we are always looking back, realizing how little we knew before and congratulating ourselves that now at last we are really wise.

Funny, positive little boy, — we laugh at you, and yet to the infinite wisdom surely our mistakes, our certainties, our half truths must be just as absurd. For even our greatest knowledge, our most perfect wisdom is but a striving to see through a glass darkly. And when the day comes that we shall see clearly, and shall know "even as also we are known," I somehow like to think how we shall look back across the gulf and say yet once more, "How little we really knew."

SOPER & MOORE

Ponderous Personages.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

John Smith is a dazzling illustration of what can be accomplished by energy and determination. Born of distinguished parents and provided with two names so common that whenever any one called him, half of the country side rose up and said, "I'm coming." He did not do this by obtaining a title or by changing the spelling to "Smythe," either. He merely became so famous that when the name "John Smith" is mentioned in history to-day, not one person, however ignorant, stops to inquire "Which John?"

Smith was born in England in 1539 and was distinguished by his great faith in America. He believed that if the state of Virginia, which was at that time a wholly savage state, could be cultivated, it would produce tobacco, corn and presidents in vast numbers. Accordingly, he organized a colony, loaded it into three ships about the size of the Emperor's life boats and landed in Virginia in 1607.

This school books portray John Smith at this period as a stout man in a chilled steel vest and several bushels of beard. He looks like a venerable patriarch and it is a shock to discover that while engaged in defending his infant and worthless colony and in finding food for it as the other bird finding food for its yawping young, he was twenty-eight years old. For several years John Smith unrisht all the brains and most of the labor and fighting for the colony — after which he gave it up as a bad job and went home.

While John Smith was engaged in exploring Virginia he was captured by the Indians and after they had held him a few weeks, they decided to beat him with a large stone as a gentle discouragement to future colonists. At this point, Pocahontas, the daughter of the Chief threw herself upon Smith and declined to consent to the execution. This saved his life. After when Pocahontas was visiting in London on her wedding trip, Smith read of the event in the society columns and hurrying around to the hotel, he had his deliverer presented at court to Queen Elizabeth. Thus Pocahontas was the first American girl to be presented at court. If John Smith lived to-day he would be smothered by the moils of rich young American girls determined to save him at all hazards.

Antiseptics in Australian Blue Gum Proves a Cure For Bronchial Catarrh

BAD COLD IN THE HEAD, THROAT WEAKNESS AND CATARRH CURED QUICKLY.

Medicated Air A Marvel!
 Catarrh is far superior to any internal medicine.
 Its relief is almost instantaneous—just takes long enough to breathe its healing vapor into the lungs to give wonderful soothing relief.
 Catarrh goes right to the tiniest cells in the lungs, carrying healing, soothing balsams to the places that are tainted with Catarrhal inflammation. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes—a sore throat is healed and restored in an hour or two—chronic bronchitis is soothed away

Special to the Evening Telegram.
LONDON, April 3.
 Mr. Asquith was given a big send off when he departed from London to-day for East Fife, where he is to deliver a speech to-morrow to his constituents. In spite of the decision of the Unionists not to oppose his election, big crowds of Liberal supporters gathered at the stations along the line, and at every stopping place he received addresses from the Liberal Associations, expressing the wish that the electors of East Fife send you back to Parliament with redoubled authority to maintain the traditions of the army, the authority of the Crown, and the power of the people.

LONDON, April 3.
 In the Commons, Mr. Balfour insisted on an immediate general election or a referendum, a fact on any device likely to prevent the Commons from dealing with the Ulster problem. It is evident that the Federal solution is meeting with only lukewarm support from the majority of Liberal and Irish members.

TORREON, April 3.
 Strawn with dead and wounded, after a six days' battle Torreon was occupied by the rebels last night. In all the fighting no foreigner was killed or injured. The taking of Torreon marks the climax of the first campaign in the revolution to oust Huerta from Mexico City. Villa estimated his own losses at 500 killed and 1,500 wounded with a Federal loss of 1,000 killed, 2,500 wounded and an unknown number of prisoners. There were about 10,000 men in each army. The battle line was four miles long. The field was determined by three great hills, and shape like a carpenter's square, at the end angle of which lay the towns of Coahuila and Torreon. General giving the tired soldiers any respite after the eleven days battle, Villa to-day ordered immediate advance against Saltillo and Monterrey.

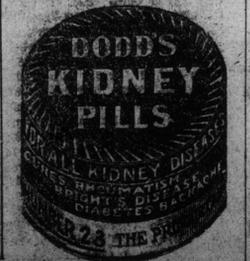

WASHINGTON, April 3.
 The Mexican embassy here to-day still claimed victory for the federal forces in Torreon in an official despatch from the Secretary of State for foreign affairs giving an account of the defeat of the rebels under Villa. General Maas, who left Saltillo several days ago with reinforcement, has arrived at Torreon. General Demolins has reached San Pedro de Colonias, where a decisive defeat was administered to the rebel forces set out to oppose his advance. The government also succeeded in raising a loan of over 5,000,000 pesos which will assist it in its efforts toward pacification.

LONDON, April 3.
 The arsonettes set fire to Lisburn Castle, County Antrim, last night and left a messmate for Carson, vowing vengeance on him for having made the announcement several days ago, that he was not in favor of the suffragettes. The fire was discovered before any serious damage was done.

LONDON, April 3.
 A sentence of six years' imprisonment was imposed to-day upon Fredrick Gould, who was found guilty of trying to sell British secrets to a foreign power—Mrs. Gould, who was jointly tried with him, was discharged.

GLASGOW, April 3.
 Three bombs were exploded by the suffragettes to-day in an attempt to blow up Belmont Church in this city. The explosion, however, only slightly damaged the building.

A CRYSTAL LIGHT

Doesn't that suggest a clear, bright light? That is why the name CRYSTALITE was chosen.

TEXACO CRYSTALITE is a crystal light, giving forth mellow, penetrating rays. It gives no smoke nor smell, and is good to the last drop.

TEXACO CRYSTALITE will not fluctuate, it gives a steady glow. The next time you buy illuminating oil don't merely ask for "a gallon of kerosene." Ask for TEXACO CRYSTALITE and find out why this illuminating oil is known as "the light of the home."

TEXACO CRYSTALITE costs no more than ordinary kerosene and most good stores have it.

Remember the name. It will be worth your while to discriminate.
