Know Your Car

WHEN THE CLUTCH STICKS.

Once in a while the clutch on your car will refuse to disengage. This trouble, which may have serious consequences in crowded traffic, is commonly known as "sticking." In a cone clutch it is usually caused by abuse of the mechanism: in a multiple disk clutch it is often due to the fact that the oil supply has been neglected or that the oil has become congealed. To remedy the condition, do not try to throw out the clutch by force, but use your gearshift lever into neutral position and coast to a stop at the side of the road. If the clutch is of the cone type, it will soon release itself, after its leather surface cools off. If it is a multiple disk clutch, the application of kerosene or gasoline will liberate it up. Kerosene is preferable.

If, in a cone clutch, retelling is necessary, new lining obtained from the manufacturers of the clutch is preferable, because of convenience and accuracy. If not obtainable, however, new lining should be cut, using the old as a pattern. It should be much thicker than the old lining.

In putting on new leather lining, it is important to see that it fits tightly and true to the cone. Neatafoot oil should be applied frequently to the new leather while it is being worked in.

In a disk clutch, if the plates are not too badly worn, they may be refaced; otherwise new plates will have to be installed. If the disks are sprung or grooved, new ones will be necessary, and they should be obtained from the manufacturers of your car.

Better Wives and Mothers

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel stays that made a twenty-inch waist and the long street-sweeping skirts to the sports clothes of the present day has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. If, however, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness and irritability, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. Thousands of women testify to its success.

Stories Revealed by Earth Strata

A story that began 15,000 years ago, far back in those dim times before men emerged from the shadows of pre-history, is written in earth strata found at Laagerie Basse, France, on a spot where, ages ago, primitive men encamped often and in great numbers. A huge, overhanging cliff that gave shelter, probably attracted them.

The oldest stratum contains the residue of hearth fires, for those ancient men knew many uses of fire. A few crudely engraved objects are mixed with the char and ashes. Then an empty stratum occurs. During the period of its formation evidently the encampment was not used. Possibly a great migration emptied the region, the emigrants lured by tales of teaming hunting grounds elsewhere.

The next stratum reveals that the returned men had achieved a higher civilization during their absence. A sculptured reindeer head, amulets, and other proofs that art had been born.

were found. So too were flint graving tools.

In the next stratum, fine, barbed harpoons appear. More and better carvings on animal bones were left here.

Then for nearly 3,000 years no human traces are left. A thick layer of natural rubbish overlays the older records of progress. Then a new race established itself—the Neolithic men. Their polished axes and pottery far excel the handiwork of their predecessors. Dog and pig bones reveal probable domestication of these animals. A crude but sturdy civilization had arrived. Shortly after this period, the record ends.

Strategy Wins Autograph From Rudyard Kipling

BURWASH, England, Sept. 11.—(A.P.)—"H" is not the only letter which is frequently silent in England; "W" also is often lost, especially in proper names, as in Burwash, which is pronounced Bur'ash.

Knowledge of how to pronounce the name of this town recently won an enterprising woman an autograph letter from Rudyard Kipling, the most celebrated resident of Burwash. Kipling wrote a parody on one of his poems and mailed it to the poet. In the parody she rhymed words with Burwash which showed she knew how to pronounce the name correctly and Kipling was so surprised that he mailed her a letter of thanks.

Another big photoplay feature "Cordella the Magnificent," was shown at the Majestic last night when the renowned actress Clara Kimball Young registered her greatest success. The story is one that will deep you on the edge of your seats right up to the smashing climax which you least expected.

"Cordella the Magnificent" is known to the thousands of readers of "Hearst's International" in which it ran in serial form. And this fascinating story of New York society life is fresh in the minds of the great number of persons who followed it eagerly through its startling and enthralling developments. The editors agree that it is one of the best stories they have ever published and it has received the enthusiastic commendation of fiction readers throughout the country. Little wonder, since the author, Leroy Scott, is one of the most popular writers in America.

"Cordella the Magnificent" is a thriller, a story of satin souls, fascinating and thrilling. The drama of a girl who played the limit. It will be repeated to-night, to-morrow afternoon and night.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

THE NON-BELIEVER.

The non-believer is a man
Who lets the morning sunshine in
And thinks by chance this world began.
As men throw dice and lose or win;
He sees the violets bloom and blow,
But not the power which makes them grow.

Chance charted every planet's course!
By chance the summer follows spring
Chance gave to man the faithful horse
And made the swallow fleet of wing!
How these things came he doesn't know,
He thinks they merely happened so.

Oh, what a jumble there would be
If chance were shaping beasts and men.
Could blind chance once repeat a tree,
Or through the June rose back again?
The simplest truth we've learned to know
To-morrow chance might overflow.

Without confusion or mistake
There is a power which rules us all.
A higher law we cannot break,
An eye which sees the sparrow's fall.

In every twig and leaf and blade
I see God's handiwork displayed.

Ruthless Secrecy

MARKS DAILY DOINGS OF RUSSIAN POLICE.

Moscow, Aug. 21. (A.P.)—To Russians the Cheka is the most-feared organization in Russia, the very mention of the name connoting terror and ruthlessness. Its chief purpose is to suppress counter-revolutionary activities and to punish all who attempt to injure the present Soviet regime.

In a larger sense the Cheka resembles the American Secret Service or the English Scotland Yard, except it has much greater scope, exercises plenary powers, acts as "judge, jury and executioner," maintains its own army, prisons, and is all-powerful in every department of Russian life. There is no appeal from its decisions.

With the Red Army, the Cheka constitutes the most formidable weapon the Bolsheviks possess for maintaining themselves in power. No person, no group, no community, however influential is strong enough to resist the all-embracing tentacles of the Cheka octopus which reach out to every nook and corner of Russia. The number of counter-revolutionaries and political prisoners it put to death during the revolution and terror runs into tens of thousands.

Since the late Premier Lenin introduced the so-called "new economy policy" of the government, the Cheka has been re-christened with a view to depriving it in the minds of the Russians of its sinister aspect. It now goes by the mild name of "state political department," or "G.P.U." these being the initial letters of the Russian words. In it are employed many of the agents of the old Czarist secret service, whose knowledge of old political offenders is of special value.

The G.P.U. is the most highly organized and severely disciplined of all Soviet institutions and its members are the most devoted to the Communist cause. Any disclosure of its plans by an employee or agent would mean certain death. Its working force numbers hundreds of thousands of men and women. Every employee of every communistic institution throughout Russia is a potential agent or spy of the G.P.U.

Felix Dzerzhinsky, the mild-speaking, soft-mannered Pole who presided over the organization up to his present high state of efficiency, has been elevated to the chairmanship of the Supreme Economic Council, but he still directs the broad policy of the G.P.U.

Within the building serving as the G.P.U. headquarters is a great courtyard, along the sides of which are steel-barred cells. The occupants are regarded as the more dangerous of the political prisoners. They are awaiting either death or deportation to Siberia for life.

Steamship Co's Hit by Alien Exclusion Law

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—(A.P.)—Effects of the Japanese exclusion clause of the new American immigration act are already felt adversely by Japanese steamship companies operating trans-Pacific services, which are now carrying only a small fraction of their former steersage passenger lists.

Steersage accommodations of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, Toyo Kisen Kaisha and Osaka Shosen Kaisha trans-Pacific liners formerly were almost altogether taken up by Japanese immigrants or Japanese residents of America. The new law has practically ended travel of this class. The N.Y.K.'s Kaga Maru, on a recent voyage from Seattle, carried only one steersage passenger.

In 1923 the three Japanese companies carried 14,333 steersage passengers across the Pacific, this yielding an important item of income. The loss of the larger part of this income is causing the companies to the government to pay them subsidies, "desiring that the more aid they cannot continue trans-Pacific services.
