

Mr. Blake, M. P., reached London about six on Tuesday night, and was met at the Great Western Railway station by a number of prominent Reformers of the city.

It is thought by many at Montreal that there can be no real objection to Hon. John Young continuing to hold his seat in Parliament, retaining at the same time the office of flour inspector, and in accordance with the advice of his friends, Mr. Young has fully resolved not to resign his seat but will leave to Parliament the decision of the question.—So says the Globe's Montreal correspondent.

THE WAY THEY DO IT.—The Ottawa Times blows a great flourish of trumpets over the Ministerial victories in Montreal, but carefully avoids any allusion to the fact of there having been two Reform candidates. Even its telegrams announcing the result of the election have no reference to the fact. These poor attempts to hoodwink the public won't answer.

THE HAMILTON TIMES says that although the party split kept hundreds of Reformers away from the polls—as they could see no use in spending their time over a hopeless cause—yet the Ministry, which last year was condemned in West Montreal by a majority of 816, was this year condemned by one of 996.

BY TELEGRAPH Cattle Drowned.

A Defaulting Treasurer. Pugnacious Ironclads. Affairs in Carthage. Mutinous.

Shreveport, La., August 27.—Last night the steamer Ruby, with 182 head of cattle aboard, bound for New Orleans, swamped here. The boat is a total loss. One hundred cattle were drowned.

New York, Aug. 27.—It is stated that it was discovered in Brooklyn to-night that a large amount of city securities cannot be found. It is understood that Assistant Treasurer Rodman speculated with the funds, and the securities were absorbed gradually. The City Treasurer is responsible, and his bondsmen will make the loss good.

Madrid, August 27.—A despatch from Alicante to-day says: The insurgent iron clad frigates Numancia and Mendez Nunez left Carthage harbor on Sunday last, and proceeded to the offing to attack the Spanish Republican fleet under command of Admiral Labos. The Government vessels could not be found, and the insurgent squadron returned to Carthage. The Numancia and Mendez Nunez are now posted at the entrance of the harbor, with steam up, ready for immediate action.

Vice-Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton, commander of the British Mediterranean squadron, still retains possession of the Intransigente vessels, Victoria and Almona, which were captured off Malaga.

The Intransigentes in Carthage are very resolute, and are rendering the place impregnable. Their only danger is from internal discord. The members of the moderate party have requested the foreign consuls to obtain an amnesty for them from the Madrid Government.

Carthage is completely invested on the land side by the Republican troops under General Martinez Campos.

It is reported that a mutinous spirit prevails in the squadron under Admiral Labos.

Vienna, Aug. 25.—Of 30,000 medals awarded to exhibitors at the exposition 400 go to America.

The Death of Daniel Mayne.

The adjourned inquest on the body of Daniel Mayne was concluded at the jail last night (Wednesday), when the following evidence was taken:—

John Grose, magistrate, of Peel, before whom deceased laid information, said that he was then bleeding from a scar on the side of the bridge of the nose. Deceased thought Smith had struck him with a stone, but would not swear to it at the trial. Smith admitted that he struck Mayne; said he was provoked to it by Mayne's threats, and admitted having picked up a stone, but said he threw it away again before striking Mayne. Witness did not think it likely such a scar would be made with the fist only, though it was possible. Smith said that he must have done it with his thumb nail. Mayne was a quiet, inoffensive man, and was sober on the 5th of August; he had never shown any symptoms of insanity before then to witness's knowledge. The witness also believed Smith to be a quiet, inoffensive man, with the exception that some years ago he was brought before witness and fined for striking one Bernard McNaughton with a stone. Mayne denied that he threatened Smith, and gave as his reason for getting off his horse, that he was afraid of being thrown and dragged on the ground if he were struck with the stone which Smith picked up. Mayne admitted having charged Smith with forging his name to a Separate School Bill.

Dr. Herod gave evidence as to the result of the post mortem examination. He found the body thin and much emaciated, showing signs that he had suffered from disease prior to his death. The only external marks of violence were slight abrasions of the point of the nose and corner of the left eyebrow, which had the appearance of having been rubbed so as to destroy the skin, and had been caused recently, prior to death.—There was also a slight discoloration on the right side of the brow, which had the appearance of having existed for some time. On removing the scalp, found the right and left side of it, inclining to the centre of the forehead, in a confused condition. Under the layers of the scalp was dark, coagulated blood, which on the right side corresponded to the discolored contusion and mark on the outside of the scalp. This condition of the scalp had evidently existed some time before death, and had been produced by a blow or violence of some kind. On removal of the skull-cap, the dura mater (the membrane covering the brain), was found to be so strongly adherent to the skull on the right and left sides of the frontal bone that it had to be torn off; this was in the place which corresponded to the contused portion of the scalp and the external bruise. Inflammation had evidently existed for some time before death, and witness thought it was produced by the same cause as was the contusion of the scalp. Between the membrane and the brain there was a large quantity of serous fluid, about two ounces. The vessels were engorged with blood, and lymph was diffused all over the hemispheres of the brain, especially the right hemisphere. The ventricles were empty and in a normal condition, and the other portions of the brain healthy. On opening the chest, found the lungs spongy and crepitant; the heart healthy; stomach dark colored, and vessels engorged; stomach empty, except a large quantity of mucus; liver, spleen, kidneys, &c., healthy; pericardium and omentum dark and congested; intestines very dark, showing the existence of great congestion. The lower portion of the recti muscles had the appearance of having been bruised, probably from his striking himself with handcuffs, which he had worn a short time. Witness considered the cause of death to be cerebral meningitis. Meningitis may arise from excitement, from exposure to cold, or from a blow. A blow is a common and frequent cause. Did not think a blow on the bridge of the nose would cause the condition found. A blow delivered on the root of the nose, given by the fist or a stone in the fist, would also strike the frontal bone. In his opinion the blow which produced the contusion over the frontal bone was produced by a direct blow upon the parietal themselves.

To a juror.—The blows might have been received while Mayne was in the delirious state mentioned. Dr. Wallace, of Alma, saw Mayne on Sunday, five days after the row; Mayne was under the influence of liquor; his eyes were slightly blackened; saw no other injury; called on the 13th, found him in an excited state; he had been restless, sleepless, talkative, and showed all the signs of mania; there was then an abrasion of the nose, and no mark above the eyes; next day he was wild and uncomfortable, and a certificate was given to commit him as a dangerous lunatic; a blow on the nose would not produce the symptoms he presented; a blow on the head might cause meningitis, though it is rather an uncommon result of a blow. To a juror.—Believed Mayne's insanity was the result of excitement; his temperament was excitable, and he was quite wild when he took liquor; examined carefully on the 13th, but saw no mark above the eyes; thought he must have seen it if there.

Dr. G. T. Orton, Fergus, said that he was called in to consult with Dr. Wallace on the 14th. Examined Mayne, who was tied down with ropes, straggling violently, and talking wildly. Saw an abrasion on the right side of the nose, which seemed as if recently rubbed, and noticed a slight blackness under the eyes; examined his head carefully, but could find no other abrasion or bruise. Thought the case was one of acute mania, caused by trouble of the mind on religious matters, aggravated by the quarrel with Smith, causing probably, excessive congestion of the brain. Witness's reasons for this opinion were that Mayne had not the hot skin, suffused eyes, and slow strong pulse generally found in acute inflammation resulting from an injury, as well as from the fact that there was no evidence of laceration or contusion of the brain so far as witness could learn, no rupture of any vessel or fracture of cranium, and no mark of a bruise above the eyes. A blow on the bridge of the nose would not produce inflammation of the brain or its membranes; a blow over the frontal bone seldom or never without some lesion produces such inflammation. It was possible but very unusual for a blow to produce fracture of the skull without leaving an outside mark, if the blow was with or against a broad surface. Meningitis caused by a blow would almost always be accompanied by some lesion of the membranes, such as rupture of the dura mater or the adjacent vessels. Michael Kirby and John Kirby, who were working in an adjacent field when the row occurred, deposed that they were too far off to see clearly what took place.

In Patrick Mayne's evidence on Monday, he stated that deceased was generally a sober and steady man, and had never shown any symptoms of insanity before the affair with Smith; none of his family had been insane; had never known deceased to complain of any pain in his head. Wm. Smith was not a quarrelsome man, and witness had never known him to strike deceased.

After about half an hour's deliberation the jury brought in a verdict to the effect that Daniel Mayne came to his death through meningitis of the brain, but that the producing cause of the said disease was your jurors are unable to decide.

The Reason Why.

The reason why the magnificent Retail Grocery Establishments in the Alma Block and on Lower Wyndham Street, belonging to John A. Wood, are so very popular with the intelligent public:—Because the Goods are all of the best quality. Because the Prices are invariably the lowest. Because the Clerks are courteous and obliging. Because the Stock is the largest to select from. Because the goods are always clean. Because the Weights and Measures are always correct. Because, in fact, the proprietor understands his business, desires to please his customers, makes good use of his capital, and buys for cash in the best markets, and always deals liberally with those who honor his stores with their custom.—These and many other weighty reasons have contributed very largely to make the name of John A. Wood, as connected with the Grocery trade of Guelph, so well known, and his stores so very popular.
