Must Be Dissolved.

KIDNEY DISEASE CAN ONLY BE CURED BY A REMEDY WHICH IS IN LIQUID FORM—COMMON SENSE OF SCIENCE.

For a disordered stomach or sick headache, pills and powders are not without effect, but when these same remedies are said to cure kidney disease the common sense of science rebukes the claim. This insidious and growing disease will not be driven from the system unless a medicine is given that will dissolve the hard substance—uric acid and oxalate of lime—that give rise to the distress and pain that is so common to all who suffer from kidney complaint. South American Kidney Cure is a kidney specific. It dissolves these hard substances, and while it dissolves it also heals. The cure effected leaves no question of its popularity. Sold by J. E. Richards and E. A. Coughlin.

"Why does Miss Johnson always wear black?" "She is mourning for her husband." "But she never had one." "It's on account of the one she didn't have that she's mourning."

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globe of health, that changes weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fog into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c. per box. Sold by all Druggists.

Wife—What would you do if you had no wife to look after your mending, I'd like to know? Husband—Do? Why in that case I could afford to buy new clothes.

What is Shiloh?

A grand old remedy for Coughs, Colds and Consumption; used throughout the world for half a century, has cured innumerable cases of incipient consumption and relieved many in advanced stages. If you are not satisfied with the results we will refund your money. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

Tennerbaw!—And you wouldn't believe it, but on my account a woman jumped out of a window? Sar Kham—Were you singing to her?

Asthma Gasp.

The wheezing and strangling of those who are victims of Asthma are promptly relieved by a few doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

William (reading)—Pa, what's a prolonged conflict? Pa—It's something you'll never be able to understand, my boy, until you grow up and get married.

Insomnia.

THREE MONTHS WITHOUT SLEEP—WASTED IN FLESH AND GIVEN UP TO DIE, BUT THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVE TONIC TO REST WITH ONE Dose AND EFFECTS A RAPID AND PERMANENT CURE.

Mrs. White, of Mono Township, Beaver-ton, P. Q., was dangerously ill from nervous trouble. She was so nervous that she had not slept a night for three months. She was so low that her friends despaired of her recovery, in fact had given her up to die. She was persuaded to try South American Nerve Tonic. Her relief was so instantaneous that after taking one dose she slept soundly all night. She persisted in the use of this great cure and gained in health rapidly, so that now there is not a sign of the nervousness, and she feels she is entirely cured. If you doubt it, write and ask her. Sold by J. E. Richards and E. A. Coughlin.

How was it that the detective could not find the fire escape in his room? Fireman—The poor fellow had no chance. It was attached to a cleft in the wall.

Lady—Now that you have finished a good substantial dinner, I suppose you will not object to having a few sticks of wood? Tramp—I'd like to oblige you, lady; but my legs are so thin that I'm afraid I couldn't stand the cold. Lady—Cold? And the thermometer at 90 in the shade? Are you crazy? Tramp—Nope. I know it's hot, but then it'll be a cold day when I saw wood. See?

Children Cry for CASTORIA.

"Coward Stacey."

By P. S. FANSHER.

"What's the row here?" And Captain Jones of E—pushed his way through the crowd of soldiers, to find out the cause of the disturbance.

"Stacey," speaking to a private, who had a stream of blood pouring from his nose, and an eye that was very nearly closed, "who hit you?"

"Evans, sir," replied Stacey. The captain turned to a large over-bearing man, who stood with clenched fists, and frowning countenance, in an attitude of self defence.

"What do you mean by this conduct; you're forever getting in a row with some one, now let this be the last of it. If I hear of you fighting again, I'll send you to the guard-house," with which threat the captain turned and went back to his quarters.

"Why didn't you hit him back, Stacey?" said one of the crowd, "you're a regular coward."

"I don't want to fight," said Stacey, as he backed away from the throng.

"Sissy! coward! ah, fudge," were the shouts as Stacey hurriedly left them, and then the boys broke into groups to discuss the combative merits of the participants in the late scrap.

As a general rule soldiers love a little scrap among themselves, just as a Donkey-broker does at his native fair, and they dispense a man who will take a blow and not return it with interest, but Stacey never would take his own part; any one could impose on him, even Stuffy, the nigger in the kitchen, could order him about, and Stacey submitted to it all. He was the laughing stock of the company, and even the lieutenants got to calling him "Coward Stacey," from hearing it so much among the boys.

Graves, the clerk, said that Stacey's name for the muster and pay rolls, was "Coward Stacey," but whether this was true or not, it's hard to say.

At any rate, Stacey was the laughing stock; he received the butt of all jokes, and the severest of some of them was not a little, but he bore it all in silence, and was never heard to complain; neither was he ever known to have defended himself.

When orders came for the 9th to go to Cuba, Stacey received the news quietly, while the others were shouting and yelling themselves hoarse.

"Doesn't mamma's little baby want to go home," said Smith to Stacey after the order for 'break camp' had been given; "isn't papa's little toasty wooty 'fraid he'll be shot?"

These remarks caused the boys to fairly howl with laughter, but Stacey took it all in good part.

Various were the comments, as to what Stacey really would do when he got in actual engagement; some thought he'd die of fright, others thought he'd turn yellow with fear, and Higgins, the captain's orderly said that the bugler wouldn't have to play taps, as Stacey's knees would tap together enough for that, but Stacey said that he'd do his duty, which Smith said would be laying behind a rock three miles to the rear.

Evans was in charge of a squad of scouts, who had gone up country towards El Caneve and anxiety was felt on account of the number of the enemy along the El Caneve hills.

The pickets had gradually driven in the Spanish outposts, and the main body of Lawson's division was nearing the base of the chain of hills which surrounded the village of El Caneve.

When the order came to surround the hill on the side of which the village was situated, the boys knew that they had some hot work laid out for them, but they went forward with a will.

General opinion was that Evans and his men had penetrated through the Spanish lines, but were unable to retrace their steps, and this made the boys cautious.

The fighting began along the base of the hill to the left of the village, and hence E. company in the first battalion was not engaged first, but just before they got into the fight a strange thing happened.

From a field of shrubbery and underbrush, above the village dashed Evans and his squad, pursued by four times their number of enemies, and if not re-inforced they would soon be between two lines of fire, and meet almost certain destruction.

"Who'll go out to reinforce Evans?" shouted Capt. Jones to E. company, and the first man that sprang forward was "Coward Stacey."

Twenty-five were chosen, and with a yell they dashed through the village, returning the fire of the enemy, and using the bayonets, revolver, etc., but by the time they had half covered the ground between them and the scouts, the whole line of battle was in furious action. Onward they went. The Spanish soldiers seeing them coming, cut off to the rear, and attacked the remaining part of E. company, and the second half of the second battalion.

Onward went the twenty-five, Stacey at the lead. They fell upon the Spaniards' flank, broke through, joined the scouts under Evans, and turned to rejoin their own company.

Fighting their way southward, they charged down the hill, and their men seeing them coming, ceased firing for a moment. Suddenly Evans went down, shot in the side, but the boys never stopped, at least all of them but one didn't, that one was Stacey. He turned until he reached Evans, cast his arm over his shoulder, and down again to rejoin his own men, who, missing Stacey, supposed he had fallen.

On reaching their own company, they faced about, and began the charge up the hill anew. Judge their surprise to see coming out of the bushes, his face blacked with smoke and dust, and bearing on his shoulder the wounded Evans, the laughing stock of the company, "Coward Stacey."

It was a bold and heroic deed, and such a reaction took place in the company in Stacey's favor, that the night after the El Caneve fight is called by the boys of the 9th "the night of apology."

SHE HAS GONE TO THE BOTTOM

Capt. Johnson's Story of the Loss of the Westmeath.

Two of the Men Stowed Themselves Away, and Were Prepared to Have a Good Time, But Were Taken Off by the Montevideo—The Westmeath, Whose Shaft Was Broken, Believed to Have Gone to the Bottom.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—Here is the story of the master of the Westmeath. Captain Johnson said: "We left Antwerp Oct. 22, and had some very heavy weather, but all went well until Nov. 2, at 6.40 p.m. The weather had moderating shortly before, but just at that hour the tail-end shaft broke in the stern tube. From that time until Nov. 6 the vessel labored helplessly at the mercy of the high sea running. On the 6th a vessel westward bound passed us, but owing to the flurry of snow failed to perceive our signals. We were in 52.50 N., 50.18 W., about 800 miles from Belle Isle, when the shaft broke and when on Nov. 6 the Montevideoan picked us up, we were in 53.04 N., 47.39 W., having been drifted to there by the wind.

The Montevideoan at once made fast to us and towed us for nearly four hours, but could hardly get us on. In three hours and forty minutes she towed us 8 1/2 miles against a strong S.E. wind. Then the 5 1/2-inch steel hawse, attached to 45 fathoms of cable broke, our screw had fallen out, but had jammed against the rudder post, and so our vessel would not steer. The Montevideoan hung by for two hours and then ran under our stern and told us she could not tow us, and asked all hands to prepare to leave. We could only get away by the lifeboats, and she had to make four trips, the first at 10 p.m. and the last at 2 p.m., as we transferred all our men ourselves.

"When we got on board the Montevideoan we called the roll and found four men missing. This was a surprise, as we had been under the impression that all were saved. However, Captain Macdougall at once sent his chief officer with a boat and crew and three of our men to search the Westmeath's crew. One of the men subsequently turned up on board the Montevideoan, and the other two, who were frozen, were found in the donkey room where they had stowed themselves away. When questioned they said that they figured out the crew were provisions and wine for 48 men for two or six weeks on board, and that it should last two men a long time, so they proposed to stay on board and have a good time. These men were perfectly sober.

"One man, however, we never found, a German-American sailor named Muller, from Baltimore. He and two others of the crew had broken into the store-room and broached the spirits and were dead drunk. We looked after them the best way we could, and several men assured me that all three had gone in the boats, but evidently he had fallen overboard somewhere.

"It is very hard to keep track of the men, as they kept climbing up and down all the time. "When we left the Westmeath she had 10 feet of water in No. 6 hold, and she is doubtless at the bottom of the ocean now. The screw must have punched a hole in her. She was loaded very deeply with sugar, cement and general cargo.

"We are now all told 41, and I desire to most heartily thank Capt. Macdougall and his crew for all the kindness he has shown us."

A GUN ACCIDENT.

Discharge Injures Mrs. Brown of Stouffville.

Stouffville, Ont., Nov. 14.—A rather peculiar shooting accident occurred on Saturday morning at the home of John Brown, farmer, who lives about a mile east of this village. Mr. Brown owns a breech-loading rifle and his son had loaded it and brought it into the bedroom and laid it on the bed. A little while after Mrs. Brown and her daughter entered and started to tidy up the room, and the daughter, seeing the gun, took it off the bed and in so doing accidently pulled the trigger and discharged the gun. The charge took effect on Mrs. Brown. Dr. Rowan of Stouffville being hastily summoned, found the bullet had pierced the top of the lung and entered through the shoulder blade. Although the wound is serious, Mrs. Brown is in no immediate danger.

WILL HOLD THE PHILIPPINES.

The U. S. Cabinet So Determined on Saturday Night.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 14.—The Cabinet held a special session Saturday night at which instructions, understood to be of a positive character, bearing on the Philippine question, were drafted for despatch to the American Commissioners in Paris. These instructions were the outcome of the conference held earlier in the day, and instruct the American representatives to admit of no further discussion as to the right to consider the disposition of the islands, and state that on that point the instructions already sent must stand, the only matters for discussion from the American view being the manner of giving over the islands.

Enterprising Japs in B.C. Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 14.—For some months Japanese fishermen have been working up a big trade in salted salmon from British Columbia to the Mikado's Kingdom. Saturday 25 Japanese fishermen left for Seattle to embark on the Yuypon-Musen-Kaisse steamer for home. They are sending 900 tons of fish on the same boat. It is expected that this trade will increase to great proportions, and it is proposed to charter vessels adapted for the work to ply between Vancouver and the Orient.

Schley to Get Sea Duty. Washington, D.C., Nov. 14.—Admiral Schley, having asked for a sea service, has been promised the command of the European squadron, which will be re-established in a short time with some of the finest officers in the navy, to exhibit the American flag creditably to the European nations.
