

FALL OF SCUTARI MATTER OF HOURS MONTENEGRINS WIN

Turkish City Close to Frontier
Invested By the Troops of King Nicholas.

FOUR DAYS' FIGHTING WITH HEAVY LOSS

Christian Tribesmen in Large Force Attacking the Turks
From Rear.

Cetinje, Oct. 13. — A dispatch received here last night from Podgoritzia stated that the Montenegrins have invested Tuzi, and that that town is now entirely cut off from Scutari. The taking of Tuzi followed the capture of Shiptchenik fort on Thursday. The Turks retreated from their position to Tuzi, but as the captured forts commanded Tuzi, the fall of the latter was not unexpected. The fall of Tuzi marks the conclusion of four days' fighting by the division of the Montenegrin army, which took the more easterly course towards Scutari. The four days have seen an uninterrupted advance by the Montenegrins, although they have met with desperate resistance all the way.

Moykovatz is already in the hands of the other Montenegrin army, and Tarskash is surrounded. The Turks are occupying a series of blockhouses, and the Montenegrins are taking these one after another. Reports that the Turks have abandoned Tarskash and are retreating to Scutari have been received here. Further reports are that the Montenegrin army is pressing the garrison at Scutari, and that the Turks have been forced to abandon their innermost lines of defence. It is not considered probable that the garrison can hold out until reinforcements arrive.

Attacked From the Rear.
Many Montenegrins wounded have reached the frontier. Their arrival was the cause of a report that the Montenegrins had met with reverses, but this report was quickly denied. Many wounded Turks have been brought to Podgoritzia. It is reported that Christian Malissori tribesmen, the number of some 6,000 have attacked the Turks from the rear. As previously telegraphed, the tribesmen are divided into two camps, the Mussulmans going with the Turks. The Christian tribesmen are receiving arms from Montenegrin sources.

The Northern Montenegrin army, under General Vukitch, which recently crossed the border into the Sanjak of Novi-Bazar, gained a firm foothold last night by capturing Byopolopol, one of the chief towns of the province. Byopolopol fell after prolonged fighting, but no information has been received regarding the losses. The Montenegrins have set up there a provisional government.

STRIKING TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF THE BRAVE BROCK

Splendid Victory of One Hundred Years Commemorated at Queenston Heights.

GATHERED AROUND GENERAL'S MONUMENT

Addresses Delivered By Representatives of Various Patriotic Societies and Guns Fire
Salute to Dead.

Queenston, Ont., Oct. 13. — Representative military officers, citizens, clergymen, statesmen and Indians gathered here today irrespective of creed or party for the common object of commemorating the splendid victory of Major-General Sir Isaac Brock one hundred years ago in the historic Battle of Queenston Heights, which immortalized his name and saved Upper Canada from the invaders from the south. Standing bareheaded at the base of the magnificent column erected to his memory on the summit of the Heights, prominent Canadians in terms as simple as they were eloquent recounted the history of that famous battle and of the general whose indomitable courage is placed before the school children of the Dominion as an example of noble and self-sacrificing manhood. They told of how in the face of almost certain death that small force of British regulars, Canadian militiamen and Indians, under Brock and Lieut.-Col. John Macdonell, after having been once repulsed, gained possession of the battery on the hill and turned defeat into a glorious victory which will forever occupy a place of honor in the annals of British heroism. Every member of the loyal throng which had gathered from all parts of Ontario to honor the memory of the savior of their country was thrilled when once again they heard the story of the deeds of their sturdy ancestors on that memorable occasion.

Salute to Dead.
The day was just such a one as that upon which Brock died, and when the guns of the St. Catharines Field Battery boomed forth over the battlefield, the salute to the dead general, filling the air with smoke and the smell of powder, but little imagination was needed to recall the historic morning of Oct. 13, 1812.

The scene was one that will long be remembered by those who were present. Just to the right of the monument were the speakers and official representatives of the various patriotic societies on a small platform upon which were chairs and a table. Behind the speakers was a silken banner bearing the Cross of St. George, and on the monument itself were the many beautiful wreaths and floral tributes from various organizations. In a semi-circle around the monument stood the speakers of whom there were some 1,500, while detachments of the Royal Canadian Regiment, of Stanley Barracks, the Forty-eighth Highlanders, the Queen's Own, the Tenth Canadian Grenadier, the Rifle Brigade, the Mississauga Horse, and other units formed the outer edge of the half-circle. Over all the Union Jack floated proudly in the breeze.

STONE THROWERS FEW IN TORONTO

Miss Wylie Finds That Queen
City Suffragettes Are Nervous.

IS RATHER SURPRISED

Will Not Waste Time Seeing Provincial
Premiers, But Will Focus Upon
Mr. Borden.

Toronto, Oct. 12. — When it comes down to a question of rough house tactics to secure the vote the Toronto suffragettes are nervous. That is the way Miss Barbara Wylie, the militant lady from England, after a few days of social intercourse has sized them up. They are anxious enough to secure the vote if it can be done in a conventional and lady-like way, but when it comes to adopting the methods of certain structural iron workers across the line or the persuasion of stone throwing, window breaking, assault, arson, etc., which has become popular in the movement in the old land they want to be excused.

She is surprised.
"Why are they nervous?" Miss Wylie was asked.
"Oh, dear, I don't know," she replied with a gesture of impatience. "I am surprised to find the women in Canada so afraid of militancy. If I am told that when they ask for the vote they can get it by showing that they are in earnest, I can understand why they should be afraid to make their demand in no uncertain terms."

It is evident that the local suffragettes are not in accord with Miss Wylie's militant ideas and are hesitating to countenance their introduction into this country even in a mild form.

No Friction at All.
"How are you getting along with the Toronto suffragettes? Is there any friction?" she was asked.

"No friction at all," she replied. "I have not discussed militancy much. Militancy is not to be all and end of our movement. It is far more desirable that conventional methods should be followed as far as they are effective. Every Canadian woman in Canada is in a condition to receive the vote and to exercise it. The spirit is rapidly growing here as it is everywhere else in the world. The Canadian woman is recognized if they go the right way about it. It is the spirit of the times."

Doing Missionary Work.
As evidence that all is lovely between herself and the ladies here, regardless of her advocacy of strenuous action, Miss Wylie went out that her meeting in the Guild Hall next Friday night is under the auspices of the Toronto Suffrage Association. This will be her first public meeting, but she has others in mind, possibly including a rally in Massey Hall. As the date for the Guild Hall meeting conflicts with that upon which she was to address Trinity College students, another day is being arranged for the latter event. Miss Wylie has also accepted an invitation to address the Progressive Thought Club on Saturday. In the meantime she is doing missionary work for the Women's Social and Political Union with the object that her followers in Canada will work in conjunction and harmony with the suffrage associations already organized.

Won't See Sir James.
Notwithstanding the explanation of Mr. H. H. L. Borden that it is plainly the business of the Provincial Government to deal with the demands of the suffragettes, Miss Wylie is not going to bother with Sir James Whitney. At present she has no intention of waiting upon him. She believes in going to the fountain head.

"Our policy is not to waste time," she argued, in response to a suggestion that it would do no harm to see the Ontario Premier. "Mr. Borden has told us that it would be a Federal issue but the act of 1867. The women of Canada must interview Mr. Borden in their hundreds and impress upon him that the act of 1867 must be repealed. They must make it a determined demand that cannot be disregarded lightly or otherwise."

This will be the doctrine preached by Miss Wylie on her tour throughout the Dominion.

PRESSMEN BARRED
Cannot Go to the Front Until Regular Campaign Opens.
London, Monday, Oct. 14. — A Podgoritzia dispatch to the Daily Mail says the newspaper correspondents and military attaches will not be allowed to go to the front until the preliminary fighting is over, and the regular plan of campaign begins. The Montenegrin forces are divided into three armies. One is now surrounding seventeen battalions of Turks at Tuzi, another is near Scutari, and the third is marching to the latter place. All three will move on Scutari. Part of the troops at Berana are guarding the rear.

A FORMER PASTOR AT EMPRESS AVE.

Rev. I. B. Wallwin, Toronto,
Greeted By Large Congregation on Sunday.

Rev. I. B. Wallwin, of Toronto, a former pastor, preached anniversary services at Empress Avenue Methodist Church on Sunday. He was greeted by large congregations and preached two most inspiring sermons.

His morning subject was "Treasures Laid Up in Heaven." "Treasures on earth," said the speaker, "are gold, possessions, honor, fame, etc., and we are warned in regard to their use, and the folly of setting our hearts upon them. We live too much on the negative side of our religion. The religion of Christ should mean much more to us than simply not doing wrong; it is the doing of good, helping and blessing others, living the life of love and peace and victory. This is what makes the Christian life so attractive. What are the treasures in heaven? Not our loved ones gone on before. Not crowns of gold, nor purple robes, etc. Only typical of the greater glory, viz., the crown of life, greater, fuller, larger life."

"The student does not work hard at his college course simply to get his diploma, but for the larger, better and more useful life which his knowledge will bring to him. Likeness to Jesus in heaven is the treasure we may take with us into the eternal city. All earthly things must be left behind. Another treasure laid up in heaven will be the gratitude and love of those we have helped and blessed on earth. The atmosphere of love and confidence makes heaven in our homes."

"Another treasure in heaven is God's love of us, not his pity, but his smile of approval, and this we may have here and now."

CONTRIBUTE TO MITES URGES REV. DR. GRANT

In Strong Sermon Places the Foreign Problem of Canada
Before Hearers.

"If all the members of the Presbyterian Church in Canada were washerwomen and each contributed ten cents, the charge for washing one shirt, every Sunday of the year, there would be more than enough to make up the $1,000,000 sum which the Presbyterian Church is asking to carry on its share of mission work for the year of 1912."

So spoke Dr. Grant at a mass meeting of the Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, held in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening. The topic for his address was "The Growth of the Mission Work in Canada."

The speaker contended that though London, as a whole, was doing its share towards contributing to the mission cause, there are many who are not doing their share. He urged that the Canadian church should take up the foreign element which is taking such a prominent place in the national life of our country. The very ones who do not contribute are the ones who should; instead these leave the mission cause to the care of the person with the washerwoman mite.

Dr. Grant also spoke of the success which had been theirs during the past 25 years in the Canadian west. The success had given them a new vision, and with each vision they received fresh hopes and were encouraged to go on with the work. He was not satisfied with these successes, however. The religious life of the west had not been keeping pace with the life of the east. The needs of the immigrant and foreigner. Especially was this true in the large cities such as Winnipeg and Vancouver. To be entirely successful in these populated centers the whole conception of their efforts was necessary. The cities needed the gospel worse than the people on the plain did. If they were going to keep up with the needs of these places, more men and more money was necessary, and if they could but arouse the dormant nature of men who were too absorbed in their business to the religious conditions of their country, the essential things would soon be forthcoming.

Huntley is now recovering from his injuries.

JAP WAR LOSS 40,000

Tokyo, Oct. 12. — It is interesting to note in connection with the suicide of General Nogi and his wife, which some attributed to the fact that the enormous losses in the Russo-Japanese war were preying upon his mind, the report, just published, of casualties in that war.

The Japanese are not fond of giving away information, and this report has been delayed till it can be of no service to their late opponents. However, it is now learned that the Japanese casualties in round numbers included 40,000 killed and 135,000 wounded, of which 70,000 occurred at Mukden alone and 44,000 at Port Arthur. The infantry lost just ten times as many in proportion as the artillery. This may account for the idea now prevalent in the Japanese
