Booth appreciated her reasons for delay much more clearly than they appeared to the matter-of-fact lawyer.

"The girl may die at any time," he explained, addressing Mr. Carroll, but not without a queer thrill of shame.

"I wish I were sure that I had," said Booth.

"Do you think she would come if you sent her a cablegram?"

"I am going over—"

Can't you see?"

As Booth and the lawyer walked down Fifth avenue toward the club where they were to dine together, the latter, after a long silence, made a remark that disturbed the young man vastly.

"She's going all to pieces, Booth. Bound to collapse. That's the way with these strong-minded, secret, pent-up natures. She has brooded all these months and she's been living a lie. Well, the break has come. She's told you and me. Now, do you know what I'm afraid will happen?"

sent her a cablegram?"
"I am going over—"
"She will have your letter in a couple of days, according to Sara, who seems to have a very faithful correspondent in the person of that maid. I shudder to think of the cable tolls in the past few months! I sometimes wonder if the maid suspects anything more than a loving interest in Miss Castleton. What I was about to suggest is this: Couldn't you cable her on Friday saying that Sara is very ill? This is Tuesday. We'll be having word from Smith tomorrow, I should think."

"I think I know what's in your mind," said the younger man seriously. "You are afraid she'll tell others?"

The lawyer tapped his forehead significantly. "It may result in that."

"Never!" cried the other emphatically. "It will never be that way with her, Mr.

"It will never be that way with her, Mr. Carroll. Her head is as clear as—"
"Brain fever," interrupted Carroll, with a gloomy shake of his head. "Delirium and all that sort of thing. Haven't you noticed how ill she looks? Feverish, nervous, irritable? Well, there you are."
"It is a dreadful state of affairs," grouped Booth. "Not especially pleasant for you, my

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial.

They proved satisfactory in my case."
The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy. can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. GRADUAL DECLINE Dressed Carcases, However, Are Scarce—Hay the Only Offering.

Three loads of hay comprised the Monday market, selling at $14 and $15 per ton. The smallness of the market was due to the bad state of country roads, acording to the few farmers on the square. Saturday's market was much smaller than expected on this account. A large shipment of live hogs will be nade Wednesday, and the price paid will set the price for hogs on the local market. It is expected that about $8.75 per hundredweight will be paid, as the price is taking a very gradual decline.

Dressed hogs, however, were scarce on Saturday, and sold for $12.50 and $13. Beef sold by the carcass, for 11 to 13 cents per Front quarters of pork sold at 13 and 14 cents per pound, and hinds, for 15 cents per pound.

There was a plentiful supply of apples which sold at low prices late in the day. Good quality fruit was bought for $2.50 to

"I am not worrying over that, sir." said the other earnestly. "I shall be able and ready to defend her, no matter what happens. To be perfectly honest with you, I don't believe she's accountable to anyone but God in this matter. The law has no claim against her, except in a perfunctory-way. FARMERS OBJECT TO SLAUGHTER OF BIRDS

Around Wingham They Are Laying Com plaints Against Boys Responsible.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Wingham, March 30.—The farmers here are about to lay a complaint against lads from the town, who are in the habit of the town the returned in the morning, to find that she had a very high temperature. The butter could not enlighten Booth further than this, except to add that a nurse was coming in to take charge of Mrs. Wrandall, more for the purpose of watching her symptoms than for anything else, he believed. At least, so the doctor had said. Two days passed before the distressed young man could get any definite news concerning her condition. He unconsciously began to think of it as a malady, not a mere illness, due of course to the remark Carroll had dropped. It was Carroll himself who gave a definite report of Sara. He met the lawyer coming away from the apartment when he called to inquire.

"She isn't out of her head, or anything" going out with a 22 rifle and killing off the robins and grey birds. These birds are quite a help to the farmers and fruit growers, for they pick out the grubs and 2, 9; no grade, 1; repected, 3; No. 5, 2;

New York, March 30—Wall Street, noon.

The uneven course of speculation for a time resulted in contrasting movements, but ultimately the trend of the important issues became definitely downward. Steels came chiefly from professional traders, who favored the short side on account of the lack of investment demand and the steady diminution of speculative interest. Bears nevertheless remembered the stubborn resistance of the market on last week's decline, and moved cautiously. The general market was largely influenced by Steel. BRILLIANT REVIEW asked as an appropriation for the oil reserves, but the First Lord explained that with the cost of tanks and pipe lines to deliver oil at the jetties, much more is being spent. "Oil in quantities has been purchased in this country, and quantities will reach us during the period covered by the new estimates," was the most explicit information he consented to give. "The great exertion has been made. There is no difficulty-in obtaining oil," he added. Scandals Insinuated. Opposition newspapers have hinted strongly at scandals in connection with oil contracts, and accused the Government of favoring capitalists who are its friends. Rupert Gwynne, M.P., pressed Mr. Churchill to publish the contracts, and particularly wanted to know whether the Mexican Eagle Company, of which Lord Cowdray is the head, was among the favored ones. The First Lord quoted a nemorandum from the royal commission which investigated the question of oil fuel, asserting that secrecy regarding naval supplies was necessary. He refused to give the names of contractors, and would say only that Mexico is one of the countries from which oil is being obtained. Some news of the campaign for oil did crop out in the speech The admiralty has been building a fleet of oil tank steamers very quietly. Four are already in use and ten more are under way. Large ships which would be in the line of battle during war will continue to depend upon coal, but the Cardiff product has become obsolete already, he said, for light cruisers of the latest type, all of which are equipped with oll-consuming engines. Torpedo-boats, destroy ers and the smaller craft generally are consuming oil Oil Saves Time and Money. Mr. Churchill revealed the report of the royal commission on the advantages of ngines burning oil only over those burning both coal and oil. The newest smaller ships are being equipped with the former type. The radius of action of a fleet with pil-burning engines would be increased 40 per cent, and the fighting strength of a fleet would be increased 25 per cent because of the greater facility of refuelling at sea in all weather, so that ships would not be obliged to return to their base for coaling. The reduction of stokehold force would be 55 per cent. Oil would give the advantage of a very rapid increase of steam production, and would eliminate the variations of steam pressure necessary for the cleaning of coal burning furnaces.
