The Sullivan-Kiirain Stake Money.
New York, July 22.—John L. Sullivan is still in town. Editor Arthur Lumley, of the New York Illustrated News, said to-day that the "big fellow" was not likely to leave for Boston for a couple of days. The $20,000 stake money will not be paid him to-day, but the will receive it during the week. Al. Cridge, the stake-holder, is now at Long Branch, as is also Muldoon. Cridge was anxious to pay over the money on Friday, but those most interested in the disposal of the stakes said there was no need of hurrying. Sullivan has already received $4,600 of this sum. $1,000 was his bet with Kilrain on entering the ring, and $3,600 being his share of the ring, and $3,600 being his share of the prince, and $3,600 being his share of the ring, and $3,600 being his share of the strikers are an ignorant, or briday, but those most interested in the disposal of the stakes said there was no need of hurrying. FOREIGN NOBLEMEN.

. Peterby Discusses the Gentry in Way That Can't Be Misunderstood. "When it comes to making fools of themselves I do honestly think that the American girl is entitled to the blue ribbon," remarked Mr. Peterby, who was reading the morning paper. "Yes, it frequently happens that in the selection of their husbands they show bad taste," replied Mrs. Peter by, very sarcastically.

"Is that a hit at me?"

"If the cap fits you there is no objection to your wearing it, particularly as it will cover that bald place on

"Thank you, Mrs. Peterby. You are very kind this morning."
"Oh, don't mention it; but in what particular respect has the American girl been making a fool of herself, and thus invoking your wrath?"

"Well, another bogus German Baron has married a wealthy American and has swam off with her money. They were married in Baltimore, and now e has skipped." "And he did not belong to a high family?" asked Mrs. P.

"Naw; his claim to belong to an elevated family was not as well founded as that of the man whose father was hung for horse stealing. He claimed to be Baron F. E. O. Von Sucrow, but there is not such a baronet in the Almanach de Gotha, although there may be lots of them at Sing Sing and in the barber shops. "But there are some real noblemen who come to this country and marry high-minded American girls."

The high-minded American girl who marries a foreign snob hasn't got any common sense. It costs the American girl, on the average, $200,000 to marry one of these titled frauds, but the cost in misery is not known."
"But some of these titled Englishmen who marry American girls are real baronets.'

"Bah! Very likely their mothers took in washing and they themselves studied natural history as elephant attendants in a cheap circus. It's what you don't know about these foreign noblemen that makes them respectable. But it is just as I said: On the nobility question the American woman is a conspicuous ass. If an orang-outang with a title were imported into this country he would not be safe," and putting on his hat, Mr. Peterby indignantly went down-town to his office. —Texas Siftings.

THE GERMAN EMPEROR.

Story Which Shows Him in a Bet Light Than Usual Stories of the German Emperor are lways abundant, often uncomplimentary, and not infrequently apoc-ryphal. Here is one which seems to have rather better credentials than usual. One day, it runs, he invited usual. One day, it runs, he invited a young Lieutenant, who is an excellent zither player, to dinner. The imperial family dines at two o'clock and after dinner the officer gave a little concert on the zither to their majesties. Toward four o'clock he asked permission to retire. "Why so soon?" graciously asked the Emsoon?" graciously asked the Emperor. "Sire," replied the Lieutenant, "I return to my garrison to morrow, and I have promised my sister to come and say good-bye this afternoon at her pensionnat." "You are a good brother; but before you go you must take coffee with us." Twenty minutes later the Lieutenant went with his sovereign into the drawing-room, when whom should he see but his sister sitting next to the Empress and SEPARATE SEALED TENDERS will surrounded by three or four little be received by the Honourable the

It was a very simwith the brother. It was a very simple meal which was placed before them, consisting of a user of vog-etables and a piece of roast meat. But it appeared that it was rather more elaborate than usual, for the amiable Empress said, laughingly: "You must not think that we have always such them, consisting of a dish of veg luxurious suppers. It is only when we have visitors that we are so grand."—London Telegraph.

Marriage by Surprise.

An extraordinary occurrence has taken place in one of the principal churches of Madrid, in the parish of finished his mass and was in the act of pronouncing the sacramental words
"Ite, missa est," when a young man aged twenty-one, and a beautiful gir of twenty suddenly approached the altar railing with three middle-aged men, and the young couple cried aloud: "We wish to be husband and of the above named articles as may be the above named articles are may be the above named articles as may be the above named articles are may be above named articles wife. Here are our three witnesses."

Now, it seems that under the canonical laws still regulating marriages in Spain, Roman Catholics can thus claim to be considered married by they reserve to themselves the power of surprise if they are skillful enough to do so just after the priest has uttered the benediction at the close of mass. Formerly this stratagem was, as in the present case, resorted to by young people whose parents opposed their union. When this occurred in the church of Santa Cruz a scene of con-fusion ensued. The priest retired to the sacristy and sent for the police, who conducted the offenders and witnesses into the presence of the municipal judge. He declared the marriage valid, much to the delight of the young couple and to the intense dis the parents of both sides, who had resisted the union.—London Times. Water as a Medicine.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 24.—It is reported this afternoon that parties representing an English syndicate, who made one of the Manhattan hospital physicians asserts that it often puts a patient to sleep quite as well as the drug. Dr. Clinton gives water tinetured with quinine instead of morning the state of the sta drug. Dr. Clinton gives water tinctured with quinine instead of morphine, and reports that it works wonders. So also salt and water are surreptitiously administered in place of bromides. Are we in reality only bundles of fancies, or are we developing into a physical era, in which the mind shall control the body in ways not formerly possible? Can we not manage in some way to fool ourselves
