

CATHOLIC OATHS.

House of Lords August 14, Lord Beaumont (who appeared to address their lordships under considerable agitation) commenced by declaring emphatically, that he dared not remain silent in this debate lest he might be supposed to share the sentiments, the expression of which had been so justly and severely castigated by his noble and learned friend (Lord Brougham), and had given to himself deeper pain than he had ever experienced during a discussion in that house. (Hear, hear.)—He found himself separated, "wide as the poles asunder," from the noble lord (Camoy), and also he regretted to be obliged to add, from his noble relative (Earl Shrewsbury), who, though not going so far as the noble baron, had in some degree appeared to justify the lawless agitation going on in Ireland—My Lords (continued the noble baron earnestly), I will not enter into the delicate discussion regarding the oath taken by Catholic members of Parliament. For myself, however, I read it in its literal sense—(Hear, hear)—and I should feel myself deeply dishonored and disgraced, if reading it as I do, and understanding it clearly as words can express, I should venture to give a vote contrary to the interests of the Established Church. (Loud cheers.) My lords, I care not, though I may be the victim of vituperation the most vile, of one whom I condemn as a reptile in the dust. I care not for attacks whenever they may come, but so long as that oath is administered to me as a peer of the realm, so long will I refuse my assent to any measure by whomsoever proposed, for injuring in the slightest degree, the Established Church.—(Cheers.) But, my lords, what alarms me—what astounds me more than anything else, and convinces me that it is necessary for the Government to take some steps to put down that agitation which like a deadly poison, is covenoming and corrupting the social system of the empire, is, that to-night I have heard here my lords, sentiments expressly, directly tending to fan the flame of rebellion—(Hear, hear)—opinions uttered calculated to encourage the monstrous acts of men who are leading multitudes on to an abyss of havoc and of ruin which must sooner or later open under their feet if their present excited condition continue. (Hear, hear.) He gave the Government the Arms Bill, then, not only, readily, but with regret that it should be accompanied with measures calculated to repress this mischievous agitation. (Hear, hear.) After some reflections on the clergy and the Liberator, he said, as to the proposition for paying the Roman Catholic clergy, when any such measure was brought forward, not founded on the robbery of the Established Church—a church which he had sworn to uphold—he would give it his support.

Lord Campbell said, that his noble friends had been charged with perjury.

Lord Brougham (interrupting) said that the noble lord was out of order, and denied having made such a charge.

Lord Campbell: There was very different constructions put upon the oath by men of the highest honour and integrity. Mr. Lynch, a master in Chancery, and who had been for a long time a member of the other House, had written a very able pamphlet to show that the oath did not apply to a member of Parliament in his legislative capacity, but merely bound them to obey the law. That was the construction put upon the oath and contended for in the other House.

The Marquis of Londonderry strongly supported the bill, which was read a second time.

An ingenious mechanic, named Y. A. Ezler, by means of some very simple machinery, has made the alternating perpendicular motion of a ship, by the power of the wave, subservient to her horizontal motion through the water. The mode of the application of this power is thus described:

To conceive how this power can be brought into action, it is necessary to know, that to whatever height a wave rises, it has no effect on the calm of the water below, further than a depth equal to its height, and hence it is easy to render the power of the waves efficient, by offering them a resistance; for the propulsion of a vessel, this resistance is obtained, by connecting a sort of platform placed beneath the undulations of the waves with the vessel floating in them; at both ends of this platform, and brought up one on each side of the vessel, are strong connecting rods, attached to arms working on axis; to these arms are fixed ratchet rods, working in tooth wheels, connecting with the paddles, at every pitch of the vessel the alternate perpendicular motion causes the paddle-wheels to revolve. This is the most simple application of the power, but, by a proper arrangement of requisite machinery, fly-wheels, &c., the motion of the vessel may be regulated as true as by the steam-engine, and by springs placed in proper parts of the two floating bodies, namely, the vessel and the platform—all danger may be resisted, and concussion rendered harmless.

Mr. Ezler calculates that twenty to thirty miles per hour can be easily and safely attained by these means, and that taking into consideration the duration of calms, when their is always an indulation of the sea, the average rate of velocity on long sea voyages may be estimated at from ten to twenty an hour. A perfectly successful experiment has been made off Margate, with the most simple mechanism, and a model is exhibited in the captain's room at Lloyds, for public inspection.

BROTHERS OF CHARITY is the title of a new Religious Society established by the Abbate Rosmiri, who is their General. During the last six years they have been in England, where their labors have been most successful. The superior of the house of Loughborough received 75 Protestants into the church in the present year at sheephead, and 61 at Loughborough. The Brothers were the first to wear publicly the ecclesiastical dress in England, since the enactment of the penal laws.—Cath. Herald.

Dr. SPOHN'S SICKHEADACHE REMEDY.

Read the following from Judge Patterson, for thirty years the first Judge of the County in which he lives.

Middletown, N. Y., March 12, 1840. Messrs. Comstock & Co.

Gentlemen—You are at liberty to make such use of the following certificate as you deem will best subserve the purpose for which it is intended.

[Certificate of Judge Patterson.]

I HEREBY CERTIFY that my daughter has been afflicted with sick headache for about 20 years—the attacks occurring once in about two weeks, frequently lasting 24 hours, during which time the paroxysms have been so severe, as apparently soon to deprive her of life. And after having tried almost all other remedies in vain, I have been induced as a last resort to try Spohn's Headache Remedy as sold by you; and to the great disappointment and joy of herself and all her friends, found very material relief from the first dose of the medicine. She has followed up the directions with the article, and in every case when an attack was threatened has found immediate relief, until she is now permanently cured. The attacks are now very seldom, & disappear almost immediately after taking the quantity directed. A hope that others may be benefited by the use of this truly invaluable medicine, has induced me to send you the above, and remain your obedient servant.

JEHU PATTERSON, Judge of the Court of C P

KOLMSTOCK'S VERMIFUGE.

THIS remedy for worms is one of the most extraordinary ever used. It effectually eradicates worms of all sorts, from children and adults.

THOUSANDS perish by worms without the real cause being known. Some other reason is assigned for this sickness until too late to cure the real cause.

What an immense responsibility then rests upon the parent who does not know, and the doctor who does not understand the complaint which is destroying those precious flowers of life—children.

What should be done? The answer is plain. Give this vermifuge, which will be sure to do good, if they have no worms; and if they have, it will destroy and eradicate them with a certainty and precision truly astonishing.

It cannot harm the smallest infant or the strongest adult. There is no mercury or mineral in it. Mercury is the basis of most worm remedies; and the remedy is sometimes worse than the disease. So never use lozenges, but rely on this. Every person will be convinced on one trial, that it is the most perfect cure ever invented.

The immense sale that this vermifuge has, is a sure test of its value and the estimation in which it is held by families. It would be quite too expensive to publish the volumes of certificates that have been given for this article, and the users of it are requested to spread the name to all persons whom they think may be benefited by it.

Speak of it in all families, and you will do your duty to your fellow creatures, and feel assured of the approbation of all good men, and will receive your reward in heaven.

We call on all good citizens to make known the effects of this wonderful remedy.

Remember and ask for Kolmstock's Vermifuge.

This Medicine can be had at Bickle's Medical Hall; also at the Drug-gist shops of C. H. Webster and J. Wiener Hamilton.
