

C O N T E N T S.

Resolve to attempt to get to Spitsbergen in their Boats	109
Large Drifts of Wood seen in these Seas	110
Remarkable Instance of the Affection of a Bear for her Cubs	112
Begin to haul the Boats along the Ice, in order to reach the open Sea	115
Affection of the Seamen for their Officers	ibid.
The whole Body of Ice changes its Situation	119
The Ships in Danger of being crushed to Pieces by the Ice	ibid.
The Ice rends and cracks with a tremendous Noise	120
The Ships cleared from their icy Prison	123
Come again to an Anchor in Smearingburgh Harbour	125
Account of Hacluit's Headland	ibid.
Remarks on the rising Greatness of the Russians	126
Account of the Bird called the Bergermaster	127
Sail out of the Harbour of Spitsbergen	128
The Ships part in a terrible Storm	ibid.
Both Ships come to an Anchor at Harwich	129
Arrive at Deptford	ibid.

A D D E N D A.

Narrative of the Loss of the Grosvenor East-Indiaman	133
---	-----