PROPERTY

Porcupine mining district was discovered about the end of the year 1909, and some months later, the property of this Company was acquired by purchase. The prospects of an extremely rich mine were so good that buildings were erected, machinery installed, and active work commenced. During the summer of 1911 Porcupine was swept by a very disastrous fire, when not only all the surface equipment of Porcupine Imperial was destroyed, but, owing to an explosion of dynamite, the timbers of the shaft as well. Since 1911 the property has again been equipped, although this double expense was a severe handicap to the Company.

The above information has been given us by H. L. Taylor. While not guaranteed by us, we believe it to be correct.

WORKINGS

A shaft was sunk to a depth of 115 feet and approximately 500 feet of lateral work completed on the 100-foot level. A number of very promising veins were cut in the course of the latter work, one having a width of about 7 feet, which assayed $8 per ton. Further along this vein values of from $4 to $300 per ton were found, and another vein running North and South, believed to be the extension of that found on the adjoining property to the North, was cut. Several other veins appeared on the surface; one of these has a width of some 20 feet, with values of approximately $10 per ton; underground workings stopped when apparently within 50 feet of the latter. Since then two diamond drill holes have been put down, one 520 feet, cutting an ore body running $11.20 per ton, and another, 435 feet, cutting 5 1/2 feet of $8 ore.

OPINIONS AND CRITICISMS FROM BROKERS AND THE PRESS.

March 6th, 1919.

Dear Sir:

In answer to your request for my opinion regarding the possibilities of the Porcupine Imperial Gold Mines for making good, I wish to say that I do not know what results have been obtained from former development work. The Company has issued a map, which bears the signature of H. L. Taylor, the President of the Company, showing underground workings, veins and supposed veins of the Porcupine Imperial Mines. If it demonstrates the actual condition of the property I think the mine has a good chance to make good provided it is properly managed.

Yours truly,
R. GOLDWIN SMITH,
Financial Editor.

"It is my opinion that the Porcupine Imperial with sufficient capital will develop into a paying mine, and that with a few hundred feet of underground work we will be into two veins of pay ore."
H. L. TAYLOR
Former President Porcupine Imperial.

"A company reorganization appears to be under way. The property, which used to be very well regarded, is in Deloro, on the southern boundary of Tisdale, and had considerable work done on it at one time."

NEW ORE BODY ON IMPERIAL.

(Copied)

Assays Returned Most Promising.

Some remarkable assays have been obtained from the new ore body struck in the wall of the drift at the Imperial Mine, Porcupine. From a hand specimen of ore not showing any gold assay of nearly $80 was returned. It is an indication that the run of the mine will approach this, but it is an indication that, while little gold shows, there is much contained in the ore. This ore body was struck in the hanging wall. The result was the exposure of an ore body estimated to be eight feet wide after two rounds had been fired. There are occasional patches of very fine free gold in the ore, but the sulphides are very heavy in dark quartz. The drift will be continued so as to run into this ore body and determine its length. There is also in the drift about fourteen feet of rock, which may or may not be of a profitable grade.

VIGOROUS UPTURN IN CORN MARKET

Germany's Acceptance of Allies' Provisioning Terms Is Bullish Influence.

Chicago, March 15.—Announcement that Germany had definitely accepted provisions imposed by the allies, led to a vigorous upturn today in the corn market. Prices at the close were unsettled, but 1 1/2c to 3 1/2c, net higher with May $1.37 1/2, and July $1.32 to $1.33 1/2. Oats gained 3/4c to 1c, and clover, 1/2c to 3/4c.

At first, the corn market had a downward slant owing to reports that a minimum limit was likely to be placed on hog values. Spanish trades were disappointed, however, by the fact that the hog market showed continued strength instead of an expected break. In the absence of any aggressive selling, corn soon began to rally. It was at this stage that news came of an allotment of 370,000 tons of foodstuffs a month to Germany in return for ships. Explicitly had agreed to the plan made demand here for corn broadened out and forced prices to bulge. Shorts held the stamped effect of which still remained after a brief interval of weakness.

Provisions, like grain, swept upward despite hesitation at the outset. Shipments for the week were nearly twice those of a year ago.

MONTEAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.
