At the Good Roads Convention: Hon. E. J. Davis said he believed the good roads question was one of the greatest of the day. Cheap transportation was of the dumost importance, for the farmer who got his produce to the market with the least difficulty was going to come out ahead.

Markham Economist: We are pleased to note that a plank in Hon. G. W. Ross' platform is to regulate trolley roads. The York County Council has shown itself utterly incapable or worse in dealing with the Metropolitan Railway, and the only remedy the people can now hope for is from the Legislature. When the present maximum rate of three cents a mile was agreed to by the County Council, it was on the assurance that if the rates were found to be excessive and the line was sustained by a reasonable traffic, the rates would be materially reduced. The County Council was not astute enough to have this incorporated in the charter. The traffic now far exceeds the expectations of the promoters, but the public are paying rates almost as high as charged by the G.T.R., and that without the comforts. There were many other verbal assurances which the County Council were foolish enough to accept their word for without incorporating the same in the agreement, and, of course, are now ignored by the company. The people now look towards the Legislature to pass an Act regulating trolley lines which will protect them from the imbecility or worse of their representation to the County Council.

Nevertheless, we are not raising this point at the present moment to Mr. Davis' discredit. What we are glad to record is that he and his colleagues purpose dealing with this great question in the public in-terest. We also wish to say that The World will watch their conduct in the matter with the closest attention. We might also add that Mr. Ross was a member of the Legislature and the Government which ratified an agreement between the County of York and the Metropolitan Railway, un-der which the franchise of the latter road was fixed at 35 years, but with a provision whereby the franchise is practically per

VICTIM OF THE NIAGARA.

Capt. Titus of Lorraine, Ohio, Identi-That of His Stepson.

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 14.-A telephone message to The News this morning Ir ville, Out., states that the body of the victim of the Niagara has been identified by Capt. E. C. Titus of Lorraine, Ohio, as being that of his step-son, Martin Knowel. Knowel was one of the crew of the Canadian propeller Niagara, which was wrecked off Long Point a week ago last Tnesday. His body was picked up by Capt. Freegreen's fishing tug last Monday, about two miles from Port Maitland, it was floating in the lake, being buoyed by a life preserver strapped about the waist. Upon the body was found a letter addressed to Martin Knowel, and the initials "M.E.K.," tattoed on the arm, led to the belief that it was the body of knowel.

Capt. Titus left Dunnyile this morning for Lorraine with the body in charge.

No other bodies have been found, but a strong breeze from the south is bringing drift to the shore, and searching parties have scarted out, hoping to find the remains of other victims of the wreck. The sterm of the Niagare, bearing its name, drifted ashore above Port Maitland yesterday. Considerable other wreckage accompanied it. Knowel. Knowel was one of the crew of
