Kingston Developed 'Em.

Kingston, away back ten or more years ago, found themselves with a championship junior aggregation over age, and nothing to do but rebuild. Jimmy Sutherland, later one of the officers of the O.

H. A., and always known as one of the province's best hockey enthusiasts, took to the task or building a new team from the ponds about Kingston, and that year put them into the semi-finals A little later than that the same method produced the Kitchener Union Jacks, one of the best junior crews that ever jumped on ice.

"Goldie" Prodger, besides taking an interest in the development of the youngsters, is himself getting into shape for the coming proseason, and will turn out regularly with them. He has consented to run up on off nights during the proseason and give the squad a workout. Coach McKay is also transmitting some of his enthusiasm to the workouts, and will work out regularly with the youngsters.

The next workout will be held next Thursday night, and on Saturday a light workout, with a trainer in attendance, will be given.

Those who were out last night were: McDonald, Ruse, Murray, McCullough, McKay, Wilson and others whose names were not known.

Goldie Prodger Turns Out at Juniors' First Jaunt

Ten Youngsters Show Up Last Night As Candidates For London Junior O. H. A. Team-Lots of Material in Sight.

London Junior O. H. A. squad had its first workout last night, "Goldie" Prodger, London pro hockey star, turning out to train with the youngsters and to give Coach McKay a hand. Ten men were out, good huskylooking youngsters with some good school hockey records, and they went at the work with a will. A few stunts on the gym floor and then runs around the park put the kids into the spirit of the work-out, and they went to the showers eager for more.

If last year's pond stars have to be raked and gathered from the four quarters of the city, there'll be a team from London that will take some beating, because it is the intention this year to give the scheduler. intention this year to give the squad the best training attention available. Some of the best junior teams that have ever played on ice have been gathered from the ponds, and this year's task is not an unsurmountable one. Sarnia in winning Saturday's championship game did something more. They saved another rugby championship from going to Toronto, which city has gathered in some seven very honorable mentions this season and can't lose any of them now the season is over. Sarnia C. I. besides their wellearned victory deserves a vote of thanks for the other contribution, which goes for the whole of Western Ontario.

They may lose to Northviews, the junior O. R. F. U. champions, in the play-off for the junior honors, but as they are stepping out of their series in neeting Northviews, a win for the Toronto outfit would be a hollow one. Sarnia, on the other hand, would achieve another championship by beating Northylews and thus bring two titles to the border city.

A report in an English paper last week gave an account of a suit against Eugene Corri, the world's best-known fight referee, for back rent amounting to some 78 pounds sterling. Corri, who is one of London's

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The close of the Eastern College football season finds the task of selecting a championship eleven more difficult than usual. Six teams passed through the season without defeat, but five of these played one of more tie games. Boston College is the only one left with a clean sheet. Harvard, Princeton, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania State and Stevens all figured in ties.
