

the methods of conducting social gatherings. We cannot be too careful in guarding the morality of our young people, and to ensure such protection it is incumbent upon each Minister that the discipline be duly enforced. We would urge that the accustomed letters of removal be given to all our members on leaving, and that special attention be paid to the Methodist immigrant on his arrival on our fields of labor.

Your Committee would point out the necessity of spreading our denominational literature amongst our people. We rejoice in the enthusiasm manifested by our Church in educational matters.

The labours of the past year have been crowned with success, the present condition of our Church is full of promise, and the prospects of consecrated learning and enthusiasm, sanctified manhood and devotion to all our interests in the salvation of souls are bright and true.
