WORKED EVERY DAY IN FIVE WEEKS' FAST

Union City, N. J., Weaver Tolls 14 Hours Daily on Water Diet.

LIVED ON WATER.

But, instead of dieting, Wuenesch decided to fast. For five weeks he lived entirely on water and never missed a day from work. During that time he averaged five hours per day overtime, the usual working day being nine hours. His employers, feeling that perhaps he was working too hard, advised against consent to cut down his working hours, he would not give the reason until yesterday. Then he explained that only by working overtime was he able to keep his mind occupied and drive away the craving for food.

When Wuenesch began his fast he weighed 148 pounds. Yesterday he weighed 104. A physician who was called to examine him reported that he was in excellent health and apparently suffering no ill-effects. He insisted on working as usual.
