The Marquis of Anglesey and Lady Marjorie Manners So Described

RECENTLY BETROTHED

Despite Extravagance of Predecessor Marquis Has $400,000 a Year — Romantic Rumors Coupled Names of Both With Connahgits

(Times Special Correspondence.)

London, July 20.—It was from Paris, where the young Marquis of Anglesey was spending a few days, that the recent announcement of his engagement to Lady Marjorie Manners was made, but the rich and handsome young peer is back in London now, and with his pretty fiancée is enjoying what undoubtedly is the happiest time of their lives. They are being seen everywhere, at balls, at the theatre, at garden parties, and at the old-time "housewifery" that are being held at Earl's Court in connection with "Shakespeare's England"—and always in each other's company. Their first public appearance as prospective man and wife was made this week when Lady Marjorie accompanied her young husband-to-be to the town of Burton-on-Trent, (where the ale comes from), of the greater part of which he is ground landlord and whose mayor he is, and there the happy pair got a great reception.

Barring the fact that Lady Marjorie is a couple of years older than the marquis—she is 29 and he 27—the match is quite an ideal one. Both the young couple have the bluest of blue blood in their veins. Lady Marjorie, who is the eldest of the three comely daughters of the Duke of Rutland, is a direct descendant of that heroine of novels and playwrights, Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, and Lord Anglesey is the head of the historic house of Paget, and numbers among his forebears the fiery old warrior, Lord Uxbridge, who led the cavalry charges at Waterloo, and was shot in the leg so badly that it had to be cut off. A month later he was created Marquis of Anglesey by the Prince Regent. His young descendant, whom many people consider the handsomest man in the peerage, is rich enough for all practical purposes, but still has to work, for the Marquis's estate alone being $400,000 a year. This property, by the way, has been in the possession of the Pagets since the time of the Duke of Rutland, who was a descendant of the Marquis of Anglesey by the Prince Regent. His young descendant, whom many people consider the handsomest man in the peerage, is rich enough for all practical purposes, but still has to work, for the Marquis's estate alone being $400,000 a year. This property, by the way, has been in the possession of the Pagets since the time of the Duke of Rutland, who was a descendant of the Marquis of Anglesey by the Prince Regent.

Lady Marjorie is one of the handsomest girls in London and if she were on the regular stage instead of being a really first rate amateur actress, it is likely that as many post card likenesses of her would be sold as there are of the famous Phyllis Dare. Prince Arthur of Connaught is said to have fallen head over heels in love with a picture of Lady Marjorie in one of the London Times. This is one of three odd coincidences in connection with the Anglesey-Manners engagement. The Marquis of Anglesey is said to have inspired a similar devotion in the breast of the Princess Patricia of Connaught, Prince Arthur's sister.

Lady Marjorie is fairly tall, though only shoulder high to her betrothed, who is as famous for his inches as for his good looks. She has a wealth of dark hair, a beautiful skin, and eyes that have made many a masculine heart beat faster. Incidentally she is one of the best dressed girls in London, and can talk almost as well as her talented mother, who was one of the most brilliant members of the society of "Society," of which the present Mrs. Asquith, the original of "Dorothy" and the Right Hon. Arthur Balfour were members.

GETTING AMERICAN CAPITAL. At a meeting of the shareholders in the Pigeon Fertilizer Company, at Windsor, N. S., held on Monday, July 15, it was unanimously resolved to accept the offer of the Consolidated Fertilizer Company, of Boston, to purchase and operate the plant of the company. Work has already been resumed and the plant enlarged. The town of Windsor has voted to ask the legislature for power to exempt the new company from taxation over and above $8,000 for a period of 20 years. The town also voted to supply the company with water at the rate of 80¢ per year. The new power plant will be installed. More land has been acquired. The company will spend from $20,000 to $30,000 this fall in plant alone.

A man in Cleveland, O., paid his last instalment last week on a $5 fine which he was ordered to pay for violating the speed laws on a motorcycle. He was arrested and brought into court nearly a year ago. He was unable to pay the $5 fine at the time, so the judge kindly arranged for him to pay it at the rate of ten cents a week.

STUDYING ENGLISH POULTRY

Professor W. R. Graham of Ontario in England—Co-operative Schemes Engage His Attention

(From a Staff Correspondent)

London, July 20.—Professor W. R. Graham, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario, has just arrived in London. He is here to attend the meeting of the International Association of Poultry Instructors, which opens next week, to study the co-operative schemes in regard to poultry and products in England, Ireland, Scotland and Denmark, and to survey, generally, the agricultural conditions in these countries.

In Ireland, he finds that the practice of instructing farmers is on the increase. As far as poultry is concerned, the instructor practically holds short courses in the evenings, and gives individual instruction on the farms. As far as he can gather, this method of instruction is thoroughly satisfactory, and the visible result is that most of the poultry on Irish farms are uniform and well-bred. The co-operative movement, too, seems to have a strong hold, and is fairly successful.

In Scotland, the schemes for agricultural education and co-operation are on similar lines to those in Ireland, but the movement has not been in operation long enough to arrive at full development, so that at the present time the degree of progress cannot be accurately ascertained, not can an opinion be offered as to its permanency.

In England, Professor Graham finds that the working of the co-operative movement among farmers is very difficult, and finds the reason for this to be the excellent markets that are actually at the producer's door, and the demand which appears to be unlimited.

"These conditions," says Professor Graham, "make co-operation unnecessary, but they show what a big market there is in Great Britain for poultry and products. I find that, in general, poultry-keeping here is conducted on practically the same lines as it is in Canada; and in many cases is looked on as a distinct branch of farming, and not as a side line."

During his visit here, Professor Graham has visited the largest poultry establishments. At the International Association of Poultry Instructors, he is on the committee, and is scheduled to outline what is done in Canada. Members of the committee will be tendered a reception by the Marchioness of Salisbury, and a dinner by Lord Lucas. Next week they visit Lord Rotschild's poultry farm at Fring, which is in the centre of the Aylesbury duck district; and after the meetings are over, will take a motor-car excursion to the large poultry-breeding establishments and farms in Kent.

The Maldiva archipelago, lying in the Indian Ocean several hundred miles south-west of the southern point of Hindustan, is inhabited, but it rarely sees visitors from the civilized world. There are as many as 14,000 islands in this archipelago and all are composed of coral rock. Few of them rise more than seven or eight feet above sea level, though they contain coconut palm and other forms of vegetation.

PAUL GILMORE SCORES SUCCESS IN "THE HAVOC"

Plot Unconventional and of Gripping Interest—Supporting Company Few in Number, But of Satisfying Merit

In an interesting three-act dramatic production entitled "The Havoc," Paul Gilmore was welcomed back to St. John last night at the Opera House by a very good sized audience, who showed appreciation of the performance and were generous in their applause at deserving moments.

The play calls for some very clever acting, and is replete with gripping situations, and every opportunity presented in this regard was thoroughly mastered by Mr. Gilmore and his supporting company of three members, two men and a woman.

The theme of the piece is rather far-fetched and unappealing to the lovers of the being domestic infidelity, and the philosophical scheming of a supposed friend whose underhand cunning so utterly belies the trusting husband as to wreck a home and the lives of at least two persons.

But it is in the carrying out of the main idea, the resignation of the husband to the situation, his co-operation with his false friend, and his wife in trying to care for their happiness, his helping her secure a divorce, and his making a home with them as a boarder, that the piece seems unconventional, so vastly different from the ordinary and expected aftermath of such circumstances. And while the scenes seem to be approaching one objective looked for as a finale, it is again unexpected that presents itself in the triangular situation which arises from the position of the wife, who has been in that relation to the two men, and these two themselves.

"The Havoc" affords a chance for three people to display their merit, and Mr. Gilmore, Mr. Band and Miss Perry last night easily fulfilled the requirements of their roles. Mr. Gilmore was the trusting husband attending more to business than to his domestic needs, and in reality aiding his wife and her lover to their own damnation. He played his role with animation and gave a splendid rendering, being frequently applauded for his clever handling of a trying scene. Miss Perry made a fine impression as the wife, a part somewhat repulsive but, as played by her, seeming to demand more of sympathy than scorn. She has an attractive stage appearance, a pleasing voice, and in her acting was at all times equal to the demands upon her. Of Mr. Band it may well be said that he gave a finished performance. He had a distasteful, although exacting, role, and he acted it in a thoroughly efficient manner. Wm. Devere appeared in a minor role in the last act.

WANT A ROAD POLICY

(Amherst News.)

To a greater or less extent we all use the public highways. The common sense of opinion is, that our road law is as antiquated as our roads are disgraceful. Here and there we come upon a stretch of country highway which shows what can be accomplished in road building where intelligence and common sense are brought into play.

The biggest question before the people of these maritime provinces today is not reciprocity, is not the extension of the C. P. R. to Halifax, or the acquiring of branch lines for the I. C. R., it is better roads.

We are convinced that what is wanted today is a permanent provincial highway, extending from St. Stephen to Halifax.

A conference between Premier Murray, Premier Manning and Hon. Mr. Cohen could easily result in the details for the construction of such a highway being successfully worked out.

The one hundred thousand dollars which the federal government offered represents a capital expenditure of $2,000,000. Maine is borrowing this sum this year for the improvement of the roads in that state.

This means that the New England and Middle Atlantic cities are being brought nearer to the maritime provinces.

If one great interprovincial highway could be built through New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, it would bring to these provinces a new era of prosperity. Summer travel would flow down towards us as naturally as the brook trickles down the side of the mountain.

Farm lands would increase in value. Our people would be given an object lesson in good road building, and naturally a general improvement would follow in all the branch highways of the two provinces.

This scheme is practical. The money can be secured. Let us cease wasting money on the roads and begin a forward policy calculated to awaken new hopes and fresh endeavor in the hearts and minds of our people.

NOVA SCOTIA APPLIES

The Middleton Outlook reports an interview with S. B. Chute, manager of the Central Co-operative Association, of fruit raisers, in which he says:

"The first shipment of apples will probably be made by the association about September 10. Shipments will probably begin from Annapolis about October 1, and at least five steamers will be loaded at that port during the season."

"Mr. Chute estimates the yield this year at about one-half that of last season, or at a million barrels. His own orchard now includes 220 acres and the crop prospects are splendid."
