

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Budget of News Concerning Stage Favorites Known to St. John Audiences.

Two St. John favorites, Mabel Wilber, who played Sonia here in the Merry Widow, and Percy Haswell, who is remembered for his playing with W. S. Hawkins, are pictured in this week's supplement of the N. Y. Review.

Clifton Crawford, long of Three Times fame, has been annexed to the Henry B. Harris forces for The Quaker Girl. It is a curious circumstance that Joseph Coyne, who is playing the leading male role in the English production, is an American actor, and Mr. Crawford, who will play the same role in the American production, is an English actor.

Charles Fleming, who is well remembered in St. John as he appeared here with the Valentine Stock some years ago was married recently in Bridgport, Conn., to Margaret Boyd, who is a member of the Coburn Players with whom he is appearing at present.

Lella McIntyre, familiarly known as the Quaker Girl, will soon make her Broadway debut as a star, for she and John Hyman are scheduled to open their second season in The Girl of My Dreams on Aug. 14.

Gertrude Don Magill, well known to local theatre-goers as spending the summer at her cottage in Fall River, Mass., is scheduled to open her second season in The Girl of My Dreams on Aug. 14.

La MARQUISE de FONTENOY

Noblesman Fills Part of Governor to Younger Children of British Royal Family—Late Irish Peer Member of Old and Distinguished Race

Lady Bertha Dawkins, who has been appointed to the role of governess in the principal cavaliere in the army of Charles I. against the parliamentary forces.

The Minor of Lathom from which the present Earl, the sixteen year old nephew of Lady Dawkins, takes his title, is in the immediate neighborhood of the town of that name, and figures in Doomsday Book.

Lady Bertha Dawkins is a widow, having lost her husband, Major Arthur Frederick Dawkins of the Northumberland Fusiliers, some six years ago.

The post of great confidence to which she has just been appointed, has in previous years usually been filled by a nobleman, and it may be remembered that it was the Duchess of Northumberland who was the governess of Queen Victoria's children, namely, King Edward, the Empress Frederick, the late Duke of Edinburgh and the late Princess Louise.

Another Sir John Bell, of the Elizabethan era, had two sons, Christopher and John, Christopher was the ancestor of the Lords of Bell, of the creation of 1689, which became extinct in 1770, on the death of William the Conqueror.

William Mackintosh, who was treacherously beheaded by the Conquest of Huntly, while on a friendly visit to Huntly Castle, was the ancestor of the Mackintoshes of the Mackintoshes.

Moyle Castle, where the king will stay, during the possession of the Mackintoshes in 1338, by a deed of gift, by David Bishop of Murray, and his wife, was a grand old building, where Prince Charles Edward Stuart sought refuge after his capture.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

It is not written, blessed is he that feedeth the poor, but he that considereth the poor. A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money.

The other day, being less wretchedly and foolishly busy than usual, I not only carried my little gift in person, but stopped an hour or so and chatted with my dear old friend.

She told me about her rheumatism and her flower garden and about her husband and a house of their own they once almost owned, and lost because he got mixed up in some silly speculation.

When I arose to go, she said as usual, "God bless you, dearie. I don't know what I'd give for some of the news of the outside world that I thought might interest her."

I ventured to repeat this extremely personal remark because it was such a big heart to read and I wanted to pass it on.

I think we are altogether too prone nowadays to think of charity merely as giving of money.

Money is just the skeleton of giving. Love and personal interest and a gracious manner of giving are the flesh and blood that make it really helpful.
