Asked as to the possibilities for trade between this country and Mexico, Mr. Ward experssed the opinion that the in-dications amply justified the venture. Fruits, early vegetables, salt, sugar and cattle could be secured from there, and in return this country might ship farm produce, grain, timber and other products. Fish, they didn't want, and manufactured goods would likely be received from Eastern Canada. There was a disposition among the Mexican authorities to regard very favorably any overtures Canada might make. They were somewhat nettled at the high tariff imposed by the United States, which prevented them from entering what sl be their natural market. President Diaz. Mr. Ward said, was a man of few words, but quick to act, and he would undoubtedly do his utmost to encourage the upbuilding of a large trade between his country and the Dominion.

While south Mr. Ward secured two agencies, one for salt and the other for sugar, in the production of which large companies are engaged.
