The Victoria, B. C., Forestry Convention.

Brief Report of the Proceedings of this important gathering.

What all agree has been the best and most instructive convention of the Canadian Forestry Association concluded last evening in the Alexandra Club. Despite the distance which the great number of the members had to travel, the attendance at the convention was not far short of that at any of the sessions held in the east.—Victoria Daily Colonist.

The above complimentary reference shows that the Victoria Convention, to organize which a great many difficulties had to be overcome, was in the end eminently successful. Two things in the main contributed to this. One
