'X' LOSES TO DEVILS ON HOME ICE

On Tuesday, Feb. 4th, the UNB Red Devils became the first intercollegiate hockey team in 17 years to defeat the St. Francis X-Men on X's home ice in Antigonish.

Last year's Red Devils fell to X in Antigonish for the Maritime intercollegiate hockey title in a heart-breaking two-game series, which has been disputed and argued about ever since. It appears that had UNB been in possession of this year's version of the Red Devils, last year's two-game series would not have been so heartbreaking.

The Devils are finished with X, and now go on to play St. Thomas twice, St. Dunstan's once, and then Mt. Allison. As of now, the UNB Red Devils are in sole possession of first place, and have only to win all of their coming games (assuming that X will win all of theirs) to come out one point ahead of X. As there are no playoff games this year, this will be enough to give the Devils the Maritime intercollegiate title.

On Tuesday night UNB defeated this same X team 6-2 in their home rink for the first time in 17 years. The game started fast with UNB scoring after 31 seconds. The game then slowed down into a hard-fought game. Trailing 2-1 going into the last period, the Devils came to life with five unanswered goals. It was a team effort with honourable mention going to the whole defence unit, the line of Naylor, Duquette and Belliveau for their job of checking Synishin, Hollihan and McQuade and to Wrigley in goal.

The next night the Devils again came up with a big 8-3 win over St. Mary's. This was a rough game, marred by fights and injuries. Rollie Belliveau got a hat trick but was saddened by the fact that he broke his leg with only 17 seconds left in the game. Thus it was a good week as far as the Devil hockey fans were concerned.

CHRISTIES SNOW BOUND

Maritime weather did it again. Students were stunned when Dan Mersich announced at the Hootenanny Friday afternoon that the New Christie Minstrels would not appear for their second performance on Friday night because they were snow-bound in Halifax. It was hoped that either a substitute performance could be provided for those people with Friday night passes, or else that the Christies would perform on Sunday afternoon. Complications arose with violation of the Lord's Day Act that were finally cleared with the Attorney-General of the province and also the Ministerial Board. But fate was against such a simple solution. The Minstrels were signed to appear at Memorial University in St. Johns, Newfoundland, and consultation with TCA revealed that it was physically impossible to allow the Christies to appear in Fredericton on Sunday, and fly them out in time to keep their contract with the Newfoundland University.

Dan Mersich has informed us that the Carnival Committee will meet on Thursday to decide definitely the amount of money to be refunded to those students who bought tickets to see the performance on Friday night. Those who bought separate admissions for Friday will have the full price of their ticket refunded. For those who bought complete Carnival tickets, an amount will be refunded that will allow the finances of the Carnival to break even. Students will be informed as soon as a decision has been made.

RCMP ... Again?

OTTAWA (CUP) — That contentious issue has arisen again. Are the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on Canadian university campuses?

Prime Minister L. B. Pearson and former Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier said an emphatic "No" to a Canadian Union of Students and the Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT) delegation on November 15th.

Last month the Regina Campus of the University of Saskatchewan was the center of reports that a student had been approached by an RCMP Security and Investigation officer. He was asked to be a "spy."

When government leaders were questioned on the floor of the House of Commons they offered denials.

The latest report from Regina indicates that possibly the student misinterpreted the meaning of the officer, but the student (un-named, but known to be honest and not given to allusions) maintains that indeed the officer asked him to report on his fellow students and professors.

CUS is presently seeking documentation on the incident, for if, it would be a direct violation of the promise given to the student university Community by the Prime Minister last November.

its long trek through the streets of Fredericton. In the competition the Engineering Faculty took top honours for the best faculty float. This year's parade also saw the appearance of the Oromocto Lions' Club Band and Majorettes for the first time.

LBR BURNS AS STUDENTS FIDDLE

Last Thursday morning at approximately 3 a.m. the men of the Lady Beaverbrook Residence were awakened from their usual sound slumber by a voice on the PA System saying "Wake up LBR, the building is on fire". Boys being boys, and used to the drunken antics of their male peers, most guys figured someone was celebrating Carnival a little early, and merely put their pillows over their heads. Soon, however, an acrid smell reached their rooms and a voice told everyone to prepare to evacuate the building. Those fellows who could be aroused dressed and went on their way down to the Lounge where it was found that the blaze was not serious, as a matter of fact it appeared that there was "heap big smoke but no fire".

If we examine the background, we discover that last year there was a great cry, from campus and Commons alike, that RCMP officers were on campus "sidiouly spying out" the students and professors. CUS and Canadian University Press (CUP) worked jointly to provide certain documentation on these charges. Some charges were substantiated but many students, it was suggested, did not wish to come forward and relate their experiences with RCMP personnel.

In an exclusive interview last March with Canadian University Press, former RCMP Commissioner Harvison said that the RCMP were interested in activities on Canadian campuses because Communists were also interested.

He did not however, say directly whether RCMP officers

Some men had barely managed to get their shoes on when the all-clear signal was sounded. The presence of mind of the stronger sex was demonstrated as two inhabitants strolled down the hall in the midst of the confusion nonchalantly singing "We Shall Overcome".

The fact of the matter was that the ice cream cooler had spontaneously combusted in the kitchen causing extensive smoke. One of the maids who lives above the dining hall of LBR woke up choking, and called the Matron, Mrs. Christian, who called Don Shaw, who called the Fire Department. Other than the interior decorating which added charcoal walls to the decor of the kitchen and dining hall, the only other serious effect of the fire was the addition of soot to the menus of the day. As one figurehead of the residence was heard to remark "... This has never been done before".
