Volleyball team loses to champs in semi-finals

The York Yeowomen volleyball team vaulted into the semi-finals of the ninth-annual Waterloo University Invitational volleyball tournament last weekend with a 12-4 record, but were unable to clear the final hurdle: a stubborn University of Western Ontario squad.

Western downed the Yeowomen by scores of 15-10, and 15-5 en route to their 15-11, 15-5 triumph over Michigan State in the finals.

York scored five victories in the tourney, defeating McGill 15-10, Windsor 15-3, 15-2, Manitoba 15-9, 15-1, Lakehead 15-6, 15-3, and Mc-Master 15-1, 15-3.

They lost their first match to Waterloo 12-15, 14-15, and came up with a split in games against Brockport and Michigan State, 14-16, 15-4 and 19-21, 15-13 respectively.

The point system in the tournament deviated from the traditional method of best two-outof-three, to a system in which each match was comprised of two games, a win being worth one point and a two-game sweep worth two.

In the final standings, York placed fourth with 12 points, Waterloo and Michigan State tied for second with 13 points each while Western earned top honours with 15 points.

Although they failed to win the tournament, one Ycowoman, Shaughn Renahan grabbed personal glory by gaining a berth on the all-star team and being voted the most valuable setter in the tourney.

Twelve teams from universities in western Canada, Ontario, Quebec, and the United States took part.

at Ryerson last weekend and came away fifth in a field of nine teams.

In singles play, the first round duties had to be shared by two players, Ian Arthur and coach Russ Evans, due to a scheduling difficulty. Of the various rounds, they fared best. Barry Ramsey participated in the second round singles, and despite a strong effort, won only one of four games.

FUTURE PAYOFF first doubles team, consisting of Tony D'Agostino and Evans, won two of its matches. And, although the rookie second team of Paul Gamble and Rick Barber could not come away with any wins, Evans is confident that the experience gained will help in future outings.

Evans does not look upon the outcome of the tourney as a concrete rating of the team's ability. Not present at Ryerson was York's Dave Gibson, a member of Canada's national team, who is competing for the Thomas Cup. (Canada has always been a strong contender in this competition and has lately ranked among the top five teams in the world.) Also of high calibre, according to Evans, is Gienels Kszakiewicz, who was not present at Ryerson.

PLAYOFFS

With the help of these people, and a stronger showing from the rest of the team, Evans is optimistic about future games. The playoffs begin January 31 at Ryerson when York, Ryerson and Laurentian will compete in the divisionals. Two winners from there will go on to the sectionals at Queen's on February 7, and two of the four will travel to the OUAA finals on the February 14 at RMC.

The top finalists in each division will also advance from the sectionals, regardless of team. Evans feels that York has enough strong talent to be a serious contender on the court.
