

during the Revolution, unpaid wages &c.

The claim in all amounts to $3,750 and at the suggestion of Chief Cameron Barnes, it has been referred to Chief Cameron's satisfaction.

With regard to the first claim Chief Cameron's satisfaction states that he never gave the Claimant employment although repeatedly solicited by him to do so, that he found him on enquiring to be dishonest unreliable and unprincipled and that it would have been unwise policy to have given him any authority whatever, but that still he had some influence although some for having been good working from his being for months together with the Indians on the Plains, as one of Thomas's
