If Irish business is not treated with deserving consideration in the present session of Par-liament, and if free discussion is prohibited by the passage of Sir Henry Peel's resolution, we hope the Irish members will pick up their hats and go home. matter of the utmost necessity to establish on broad and solid principles the intellectual progress without which the Holy Church cannot perfectly compass its supernatural mission. All the researches of the theologians, all the the demonstrations of the controversialists, all the teachings of the pastors, imbue us with the veritable traditions of Catholic philosophy, and they are in substance conformable to the doctrines of St. Athanasius, of St. Augustine, of St. Anselm, and of St. Thomas, as these eminent doctors are in concord with one another. In our century, in which there is such keen cultivation of the mind, and such excitement and exercise of the intellect, so many speculations, whether true or false, and, consequently, so many temptations to exceed the limits of the ancient lines of thought, we were precisely in want of what your Holiness has so fittingly provided us in your Encyclical letter. I embrace your blessed feet, and implore your paternal bene-diction.—John Henry Cardinal Newman.

DEATH OF MR. PHILIP McCANN.

On Wednesday, the 11th inst., Philip McCann died quite suddenly at his residence, Mill street, in this city. He had been ill for some time but all fears for his recovery had passed as he had been for a week or two convalescent. The news of his death, which was so unlooked for, cast a gloom over his wide circle of friends. Many had seen him at his place of business during the day and they could hardly realize the fact that he was no more. Mr. McCannwas one of our most respected citizens, an honest man, and a warm-hearted friend. He was well read in matters pertaining to Ireland, the home of his youth, and never tired of speaking of the glories of the "old land." On Friday the Catdedral was filled with the many friends who came to assist at the last sad offices for the dead. High Mass was celebrated by Father Tiernan, who spoke feelingly at the conclusion of the service. Mr. McCann has been in business in the control of the service. cardinal Newman has written to the Holy Father the following letter acknowledging the receipt of the encyclical on the philosophy of St. Thomas: "Most Holy Father, I hope I shall not be troubling your Holiness in expressing the profound gratitude which we all feel for the Encyclical letter, so opportune and of so much importance, which you have sent us for our instruction. MONTH'S MIND. Thursday last the 12th, inst., a Solemn Requiem was chanted at Strathroy, for the repose of the soul of Miss Teresa O'Dwyer, it being the thirtieth day since her death, which took place at McGillvery. A large concourse of clergy and laity had assembled in the beautiful church to testify their appreciation of the high virtues of the deceased, and their heartriftees of the deceased, and their heart-felt sympathy to her sorrow-stricken rela-tives. The worthy pastor Father Molphy, was celebrant of the Holy Mass, assisted by Father Flannery as Deacon and Father Tiernan as Sub-deacon. Father Tiernan addressed a few appropriate and touching remarks to the congregation. The singing which was strictly Gregorian, was under the the direction of the Rev. Father Boubat, while Rev Father Feron of the Cathedral London, presided at the ogran. At the offertory Miss D. Laulor, rendered most beautifully the anthem, "O mors! ubi victoria tua?

OBITUARY.

It is with sincere regret we have to announce the death of Miss Sarah O'Connor, eldest daughter of Hon. John O'Connor, Post Master General, which took place on Tuesday morning 17th, inst., at Ottawa. She was a young lady gifted with truly christian virtues, and her very numerous friends are alone sufficient proof of that amiable, kind, and bright disposition of character, for which bright disposition of character, for which she was remarkable in society. She passed from this life after an illness of a few months, strengthened by the Sacraments and consolations of the church, and having prepared herself with resignation and piety for the passage from time to eternity. ### GODERICH.

SODALITY ADDRESS TO FATHER O'SHEA.

REV. AND DEAR FATHER:- Why do gloomy shadows o'erclad each brow tonight? Why does each sodalist's heart feel so strangely sad? Because our father, our highly respected pastor, is, for the last time in our midst. Thrice favored have we, children of Mary, been in having for so long a time in the person of our founder and director, one of the most devoted clients of our Blessed Mother. Never did we rightly realize how deeply we were indebted until called upon to render thanks, which hearty thanks we beg you to accept, for the disinterested zeal you have ever manifested in our bezeal you have ever mannested in our be-half, and the shining example you have ever placed before our eyes. There is an old proverb which says, "Kindness be-gets gratitude," in vindication of which we have assembled here this evening to we have assembled here this evening to offer,—we will not say a present, but gratitude's tribute to a father beloved. We wish it to be a gentle reminder of us when in the position of Mediator between Cod and ways and great this God and man, and grant this petitio. that among the many mementos ye boundless charity prompts you to make, we will not be forgotten. May your future home be as happy as this mutable world will permit, and the prelude to a world will permit, blissful eternity. Signed on behalf of the Sodality. Goderich, Ont., 28 Jan. 1880. To reply to the address you have just endered me, would, I am afraid, my dear To reply to the address you have just tendered me, would, I am afraid, my dear children, savor too much of repetition, having on last Sunday expressed my unbounded esteem for your Society, sufficient, to say that, it is highly appreciated by me and that I am thankful for your kind a very useful present, given, I am positive, with more than willing hearts, as your presence here this evening sufficiently testifies. Before bidding you a final good bye, let me once more, exhort you to continue as you ever proved to be during the many years you were entrusted to my care viz. faithful Children of Mary. I feel proud of you, Sodalists of Goderich, for the earnestness you have ever shown, and would have you persevere in all the exercises your manual prescribes, especially Monthly Communion and fidelity in recting the office which is composed of such beautiful, prayers, peculiarly arranged for the special, wants of your state of life, and which cannot fail to bring innumerable blessings on you. You do not know, in fact, you will never know until Judgment Day what a vast amount of good you have accomplished, not in Goderich alone; but all over the world. Perhaps in one of its remotest corners, some poor sinner has been led to seek repentance through the medium of your prayers and those of your sister Sodalities; because whereever the Catholic Church exists, you will find confraternities devoted to the Mother of God. It was hardly necessary, my dear children to ask for a memento, as you will It was hardly necessary, my dear children to ask for a memento, as you will always be remembered by me when offer-ing the Holy Mass.

CONVERSION OF AN ANGLICAN COMMUNITY.

We are indebted to that sterling paper, the Cork Examiner, for the tidings that the inmates and conductors of St. Peter's Retreat, a Ritualistic hermitage in Dulwich Common, South London, have joined the Roman Catholic Church. The community numbered five brethren and a superior, with seventeen penitents, all people of respectable standing. The superior was four years ago rector of Oldham, in Essex. He has issued an address defending the step to which he has induced the brethern, and declares therein that all Ritualists are which he has induced the brethern, and declares therein that all Ritualists are Catholics at heart, but, through worldly motives or other deterrent influences, shrink from proclaiming their secret convictions.
