A Farewell Meeting.

On Wednesday evening, April 5th, inst., the members of Branch No. 98, C. M. B. A., Campbellford, assembled in their hall to bid farewell to Brother Joseph Clairmont, who, with his family, is leaving here for Graven-hurst, where he takes charge of the lumbering interests of the Rathbun Co., within the Muskoka district.

A goodly number of friends were present when Rev. President Brother Jas. Gibson called the meeting to order, and stated the object of their assembly that evening, which was to honor one who truly deserved to be honored — Brother Joseph Clairmont. He then proceeded to read the accompanying address, which was elegantly illuminated.

The presentation of a nicely chased gold-beaded cane, suitably engraved, was, with a few congratulatory words, made by the Treasurer, Bro. Gibson, on behalf of the branch:—

DEAR BROTHER,—We deeply regret your

Your sound judgment and business ability have not been confined to the narrow limits of our circle, but have received recognition from your fellow-citizens of all creeds and classes, who have frequently elected you to a place in the council of our prosperous town: and also from your employers. The Rathbun Co., who, appreciating your worth as a practical man, have placed you in charge of their interests at Gravenhurst.

My best efforts would have been in vain had we not had the assistance and hearty co-operation of our rev. and dear pastor, Father Casey, who has always taken an active interest in the working of our branch. You also refer to what you are pleased to call my business ability and to my position with the Rathbun Co. at Gravenhurst. I hope that I shall always be able to do my duty faithfully and well, so as to gain the good opinion of the future friends I may make, as well as to retain my place in your respect and esteem. I thank you, Brothers, for your kind reception this evening; for your valuable gift; and, on behalf of myself and wife, for the kind sentiments for our happiness in our new home, so affectionately expressed in your beautifully illuminated address.

JAMES GIBSON, Pres.;

Father Casey made a short speech, and a pleasant hour was spent, when the meeting adjorned, as Mr. Clairmont was to be the recipient the same evening of a banquet and presentation from the employees of the Rath-bun Co.

Mr. Joseph Clairmont is a gentleman held in the highest esteem by the citizens of Campbellford. During his thirteen years of residence here he has made for himself a host of friends.

The speeches at the banquet, while expressing great regret at his departure, were most landatory of his many good qualities of mind and heart, and bore special testimony to his worth as a member of the village council.

We wish Mr Clairmont and his family every happiness for many years to come.

DR. O'HAGAN'S LECTURE.

IT WAS PLEASING AND ENTERTAINING-LONGFELLOW DESCRIBED IN FINE

LONGPELLOW DESCRIBED IN FINE

STYLE.

A small but very appreciative audience greeted Dr. O'Hagan in the C. O. F. hall last evening. Mr. Ronan, chairman, briefly introduced the lecturer, who entered at once on his subject—the life and writings of Long-fellow. Longfellow, Dr. O'Hagan considered, to be the foremost poet of America—a poet in the truest sense of the word, one whose themes are spotless, and whose poetry is as fragrant as the pines of his native plains. After sketching the poet's life the lecturer gave a critical estimate of his poetry, illustrating it by selections from the various poems treated of. Dr. O'Hagan has, a rich, firm and melodious voice, carefully trained, and his fine rendering of Longfellow's gems was a treat such as seidom falls to the lot of a Kingston audience.

Particularly fine were his interpretations of portions of "Evangeline," "Hiawatha," "The Village Blacksmith," "The Ladder of St. Augustine," and "Excelsior," which last showed to perfection the range of the lecturer's voice, and the excellent control he has over it. There are tew lovers of poetry who are not lovers of Longfellow; and we feel assured that those who listened to Dr. O'Hagan's sympathetic rendering of those well-known poems will always carry a finer sense of their exquisite melody and pathos, because of that deeper interpretation which only such a lover of poetry as Dr. O'Hagan's sensonded by M. J. O'Connor, B. A., in a pleasing manner. Dr. O'Hagan's response was characteristic of the man. Chief Ranger D. Staley, made a short but very pleasing speech. J. T. Catlin, after the lecture, entertained Dr. O'Hagan and a few friends at his residence in a most hospitable manner.

An Orange mill hand, named Giffen, who was paid to attend a counter demonstration in Dromore was run through with a bayonet when taking part in a determined attempt to provoke a riot. "The men may have misbehaved." said the Daily Express in inveighing against "the murder" of Giffen, "they may have deserved what they got, but it is very painful to the feelings of all people to find the Queen's troops CHARGING AND CUTTING DOWN even rioters who are urged on to riot by loyalty." The criminal responsibility of the aristocratic leaders for this unfortunate lad's death is sufficiently clear from a speech shortly after made by Colonel Schwabe, who commanded the Hussars on the occasion, and who said: "The meetings were about half a mile apart, and we had little difficulty in keeping order, till Lord Claud Hamilton told the Loyalists that being loyal men they must respect the law, but as the Government did not put down the rebels that it was their duty to do so, but, he said, by legal means (laughter). It is very much like the story—"There is a duck pond, but for God's sake don't duck him in it' (hughter). Anyone might have foretold what that would lead to." Nevertheless because the public authorities interfered to prevent Lord C. Hamilton's hint from being put into action, a distinguished Ulster statesman (who is now Mr. Justice Holmes) declared in a public speech that Earl Spencer had "the guilt of the blood of Giffen on his head." But the important point in considering the significance of the present lurricane of blatherskite which is sweeping ever Ulster, is that the one vigorous exercise of authority at the Dromore meeting put an end to all the valorous arrangements of Lord Claud Hamilton and his friends "taking the law into their own hands," "driving the invades south of the Boyne," and "making work for the coroner upon their bodies." The Work South of the Boyne, and "making work for the coroner upon their bodies." The Work South of the Boyne, and the invades south of the Boyne, and the province of authority at the most year. The general election came the year after. The "invaders" not only declined to retreat south of the Boyne, but, without firing a shot or producing a single riot, took possession of THE SEATS in "the Imperial Province." West Belfast was won, so was Derry city, so were South Derry, South Tyrone, East Tyrone, Mid Tyrone, the four divisions of Donegal, the two divisions of Fernanagh, Monaghan and Cavan, and the southern divisions of Armagh and Down; and all the maledictions of the warrier grand masters notwithstanding, nobody was a penny the worse. MRS. RADIGAN, GALT.

The death of Mrs. Patrick Radigan, in her seventy-ninth year, on Thursday last, removed from our midst a very long resident of this vicinity and Galt. Mrs. Radigan's maiden name was Bridget O'Connor. She was born in Rosscommon, Ireland, married there and came to this country in 1846. The family first settled — after spending a short time in Preston — in a house on the Washburn farm, Hespeler road, where they remained until 1852, when they removed to Galt, Mr. Radigan having for some time had employment in Mr. Lutz's foundry. They have been here ever since. The family now living—one daughter having died a young woman — are the bereaved husband, aged, sorely crippled by his unfortunate fall of last year, from which he has not recovered; Mr. Edward Radigan, painter; Mr. Martin Radigan, Mr. John Radigan, ot Hamilton; Mr. Patrick Radigan, merchant, here; Miss Winnifred, residing at home, and Margaret, wife of Mr. Oliver Cooper, manufacturer, here.

The accident Mr. Radigan met with las The accident Mr. Radigan met with last year was undoubtedly the primary cause of Mrs. Radigan's bad health, which subsequently led to her death. While engaged in nursing her husband she unfortunately fell down the stairs of the family residence, and though nothing worse then resulted than a severe shock, she never altogether recovered, the weakness of old ago soon showing rapid advance. The funeral took place on Saturday morning, at 930, from the family residence to the Catholic church, the attendance of friends of the family being large. — Galti Reporter, March 24.
