

EARLY SYMPTOMS OF BLOODLESSNESS

Shown by Pallor of the Face and Lips—How to Obtain New Blood.

Anaemia, or lack of blood is so gradual in its approach that it is often well developed before the patient is sufficiently alarmed to consult a doctor or take proper treatment to restore the blood to a healthy condition.

The earliest symptom of anaemia is loss of color, especially in the lips, gums and membranes lining the eyelids. There comes shortness of breath on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, palpitation of the heart, increased pallor of the face and lips. If this thinning of the blood is not corrected it will proceed rapidly until a complete breakdown in health follows, when there may be disorders of the stomach, headaches and backaches, dizziness and fainting spells. The most effective and prompt way to increase and enrich the blood at a time like this is through the fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have restored to good health thousands of weak, anaemic people, among them Miss Mae Johnston, of Port Arthur, Ont., who says:—"Between the ages of sixteen and eighteen I worked in a telephone office, and it was very trying to the nerves and health. I became bloodless, and so pale that friends often said I looked consumptive. One night I had to be taken home from the office, and a doctor was called in who told me I must not go back for a time. Sometimes I would faint, and to walk up stairs would leave me utterly breathless. As I did not appear to be getting any better one of my girl friends whose mother had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with great benefit, advised me to try these. I took the pills very faithfully for some time, with the result that they restored me to good health, and now when anyone tells me they feel weak or rundown I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as I feel so thankful for the help they gave me."

If you have any of the symptoms described by Miss Johnston try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Eat nourishing food, exercise a little in the open air daily and watch the color return to cheeks and lips. You can run no risk in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial as they can not injure the most delicate system. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Poor little potato, what a commotion you are stirring up, what a strife you are making, "you dear little things." But you poor old farmers, beware, don't dare to take your seed potatoes to the city and ask $7.50 per bag, as the government inspected seed is selling for, no matter if your back did ache when you hoed them, or your sun's rays were rather hot on your head or you had to pay the hired man $5.00 per day, that doesn't count, you really must not ask such a price. If you do—look out, those city friends of yours will surely eat you. It looks like home trade surely it does, that's right, spend all your money in your home city so as to improve the roads, etc. But keep cool, you won't need to plant that forty or fifty bushel of potatoes that you were intending to, for all those city lots will be full of spuds. But say those city chaps that buy government inspected seed, will they be pestered with the thistle and the weed and the little potato bug? I am afraid they will, they surely will have to spend one evening this summer to hoe the weed. And in the city they only charge us $1.00 per lb. for paris green and really it doesn't take many pounds for the season. But I will tell you a secret: get your wives and lady friends interested, and they won't object to taking an old tin pan and a short stick and knocking the bugs off to save expenses. And then when the poor, tired farmer's wife is travelling homeward on a Saturday afternoon and sees her city sister working instead of sitting on a shady veranda, she will feel that there is indeed co-operation.

Here are a few things the Warkworth Journal thinks that village should possess: A radial railway also light and power, a street sweeper, two or three more gossips, a cat killer, a brass band, a village park with an artesian well, a polar bear and a loafers' bench, and a village market, where Dave and Bert can purchase maskinonge, and thus avoid that 15 mile drive to Rice Lake.

The Norwood saw mill of which Mr. W. C. Harrison is proprietor will make the largest cut this season in its thirty-four years history. Besides much custom sawing large cuts are being made for J. Finlay & Sons Co., Norwood, the Thompson, Heyland Co., Toronto, and Pickett & Sons, Toronto. Nine men have been employed in the mill all winter. We understand an American lumber inspector in examining some of the lumber stated it was the best quality cut he had put rule on in Canada this year.

An offer has been made by Messrs. Gilles of the gift to Carleton Place of their property adjoining and forming part of the market square. The Gilles family will donate their three lots adjoining the market square free to the town on the understanding that the town will undertake to properly care for the property and that it will be used for soldiers' memorial purposes. The council is discussing the offer.

One of the most interesting marine visitors to Brockville in some time was Captain Lauchlin Morrison, master of the Imperial Oil Co. steamer Imperial, which was in port for a short time Saturday night. Capt. Morrison who is 84 years of age, but does not look to be over 60, brought the boat to Brockville from Barmia on his first trip as master in 12 years, and despite heavy weather encountered on the lakes and river and the fact that no buoy with the exception of one between Brockville and the Ducks are out, landed his cargo of 750 tons of gasoline at the company's wharf here without a mishap. He wears no eye glasses, which is considered quite remarkable owing to his advanced years and responsible position. Some years ago Capt. Morrison supervised the erection of the C. P. R. bridge across the St. Lawrence river at Lacrosse and the work was accomplished without loss of life. During the past five years he has been engaged as compass adjuster for the boats of the Imperial Oil Co. fleet. The heavy cargo of gasoline was discharged here in record time and the craft left early Sunday morning for Barmia.

Directors of Canada Foundries and Forgings, Ltd., met in Montreal and agreed to accept the terms offered by the British Empire Steel Company, under which the properties of the former enterprise, exclusive of the James Smart Manufacturing Company, of Brockville, will be embraced in the new $5,000,000 consolidation of Canadian steel, coal and shipping industries.

Col. Morden stated that the Brockville end of the Foundries and Forgings Co. was not taken into the consolidation owing to the fact that the Smart products, which consist of a general line of hardware, do not enter into the scope of the steel consolidation.

The Brockville police have been furnished with the description of one J. A. Mullins, ex-agent of the C. N. R. at Jellicoe, Ont., who is wanted by the Port Arthur police on a charge of appropriating $1,880 of the railway company's funds. A reward of $200 is offered for his apprehension.

At the present time there is nothing to indicate that there will be a drop in the prices of bricks. If there is any change in the near future it is more likely to be an upward one. In figuring the cost of bricks the principle elements, in fact the only ones, that have to be considered are fuel and labor, and the general feeling is that neither of these will be on the bargain counter for many a day.

Right Rev. Michael F. Fallon, D.D., bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of London, is to pay a visit to Rome in August next. He will be accompanied by friends. It is the intention to sail from New York for England later visiting Scotland, Ireland, France and Italy. Bishop Fallon will have a conference with the Pope in Rome. The party intend to include a visit to the Holy Land in their itinerary, Bishop Fallon being very anxious to see Jerusalem and other places sacred in the annals of holy writ. The return journey to Canada is to be made via the Mediterranean.

The workout of the Peterboro Central League Ball Club at Riverside Park on Saturday, showed that there is a wealth of good material available. The warm weather brought out over a score of ball tossers and the big crowd of fans who watched the practice were delighted with the prospects. The squad put in a solid hour's fielding practice after which a practice game was played. Hap Harrison and Howard Kirm did the twirling for one crew, with Max Swanson and Bob Ross at the receiving end. With them was an infield composed of Ross, first base, Frankie Collins, second base, Roy Cherrett, short stop, and "Mickey" Murray, third base, while the outfield was composed of Walter Jackson, Jack McCarney and Connors. Gordon McClintock, the south paw twirler from Kitchener, was on the mound for the other nine, with Morse, the Great War Veterans' catcher behind the bat, Harold Long was at first; Ray Rose at second, Tommy Holman at short and Lorne Rose at third, while the gardens were taken care of by Shaughnessy, Heenan and Lowe. All three pitchers cut loose in good style and they had a big edge on the batters. The boys have not got their batting eye yet and with the twirlers uncorking a lot of speed and slipping in an occasional hook the batters did not have a very comfortable afternoon, hit by few and far between. Mickey Murray and Bob Ross helped themselves to doubles and that was the extent of the long distance hitting. Both teams fielded in snappy fashion and the seven innings game which resulted in a 4-4 tie, was a good exhibition. The Petes should be in fine shape by two weeks from today when they meet the champion G.T.R. team in Belleville.

The light frosts the past three nights will not cause any serious damage. The plum and cherry trees are about to come into blossom and it is to be hoped there will be a suspension of low temperatures until the fruit is set.

The Standard Paving Company has almost reached Dundas street with the base of concrete of the George street pavement. The curb has been laid as far south as Bridge street and the gutter is now being put in. No asphalt has yet been laid.

Spies Convicted Themselves

HERE are few people who are not interested in a detective story, whether it appears in a book or a newspaper, and for some time past the favorites have been those dealing with German spies. One of particular interest to Americans, but also interesting to the common enemies of Germany, was a notice by Fred C. Kelly, in the New York Tribune. It was Mr. Kelly who told the story of the American amateurs who stole the German papers from the offices of the Swiss Consul in New York. They proved of incalculable value to the United States Government, containing as they did, among other vital matters, a list of German spies and sympathizers. On this list were the names of Hans Jacobson and Curt Courant. The latter was employed by the Sperry Gyroscope Company, and was suspected of having made drawings of secret electrical devices, which he handed over to his friend Jacobson, by whom they were conveyed to Capt. von Papen. But it was a shadowy suspicion. The Department of Justice knew that the only persons who would know for a fact whether the men were guilty were themselves. If they were to be convicted they must supply the evidence for the prosecution.

Detective Harry Grunwald was sent to New York to accomplish this difficult task. He was well qualified, for he was not only a courageous, husky mixer, but he spoke German like a native, and was well versed in even the latest German slang. In addition, he had a free and easy manner, and readily won the confidence of those Jacobson was his first subject, and ringing up Jacobson, he represented himself as a Mr. Grimm, connected with a big electrical concern, which had a position that might suit Jacobson. The German spy agreed to meet him, and when they met Grunwald at once began talking of the service Jacobson had done, the Fatherland. He assured him that it would not be forgotten, and that it was the desire of the German Government that Grimm should possess a German secret agent, should bring the glad tidings to him. But Jacobson did not fall so readily. He declared that he did not know what Grimm was talking about, and persisted in this attitude, showing a strong desire to get rid of the supposed German. Then Grimm took another tack. He pretended violent rage and told Jacobson that if ever he ventured to breathe a word that he had passed between them he would surely be murdered.

Jacobson, thoroughly frightened, assured Grimm that the conversation was as though it never had taken place. Somewhat mollified, Grimm suggested a drink, and Jacobson was a German. As they were leaving the saloon, another secret service man appeared and arrested Grimm. Then, as an apparent afterthought, he told Jacobson that he too was leaving the saloon, and that Jacobson would take a message to him. So Jacobson gave him a note to Courant, in which he vouched for Grimm. Shortly afterward another secret service man looking like a retired banker, entered the building and greeting Grunwald as an old friend immediately promised to go to his bail for $50,000. Jacobson asked him to go on his bond also. The stranger demurred, but said that he would talk the matter over with the other conspirator.

Jacobson was taken to jail, but the detective went immediately to the factory where Courant was employed. He presented his credentials from Jacobson and told Courant that his friend was in serious trouble. Personally he wanted to help him out because of his loyalty to Germany. Then Courant blurted out, "Yes, I got him drawn from blue prints and he delivered them to me. I wonder if there is any danger about them knowing of the part I took?"

"Oh, I don't think so," said the detective, casually dropping a cigarette out of the window. A moment later another detective rushed in exclaiming, "So this is your game, is it? You got out on bail and then you come here to confer with one of your men. This fellow is in as deep as you, I reckon, so both of you can come along." So both were led away and placed in cells beside Jacobson's.

Of course they talked of what they had done and what they hoped to do, making full confessions, but apparently it was felt necessary to have their conversations overheard by another witness. With this end in view the three were taken before Chief De Woody, chief of the investigation Bureau. He tackled the supposed German first, and urged him to make clean breast of it. To the astonishment of Jacobson and Courant, he did so, and made a confession of a number of outrages, such as blowing up Allied factories and destroying Allied ships. His frankness apparently made a favorable impression upon De Woody, for after giving him a warning, he was told that he could go if he did not murder many more people. Jacobson and Courant were greatly impressed, and feeling that their offenses had been much more venial than those of the supposed Grimm, they did not hesitate to share themselves. Their feelings when they were consigned to internment camps, may, as the Victorian writers used to say, be better imagined than described.
