

Sir Wilfrid's 'Best Friend' Is Not Wanted In The Conservative Party Fold

OTTAWA, March 29.—The statement of Sir Lyman Melvin Jones, that the Liberal party has left him on the question of free agricultural implements, and that in consequence there is a break between him and his party has aroused absolutely no interest here.

He will not be annexed by the Government party, and it does not appear that his action is causing any regret in the Liberal ranks. The Opposition is to-day about to preach free trade theories to its heart's content and welcomes the statements of Sir Wilfrid's millionaire friend, which all through the West is being given prominence by Liberal newspapers.

"The best friend of the Liberal party," is the way one Liberal member characterized Sir Lyman last night.

As far as the Conservative party is concerned, his action is simply being ignored.

CONTRACTORS BUSY ON PORT DOVER SCHOOL

Brantford Firm Is Erecting New Public and High Schools—Canning Factory Changes Hands.

PORT DOVER, March 30.—Second and Sons, contractors, of Brantford, have started work on the new High and Public school in Port Dover and expect, weather permitting, to have it ready by September.

The canning factory recently owned by T. H. P. Carpenter of Winona, has been sold to Lumsden Bros, Hamilton.

The C. G. S. Vigilant in command of Captain P. C. Robinson, is now read for the season's work on Lake Erie.

MAIL SORTERS OBJECT TO FISH IN PARCELS POST

Ayr Post Office Staff Has Had Unpleasant Experience With Meats in Mails.

AYR, March 30.—There are one or two parties in town that are not as enthusiastic over the new parcels post as they were at first when it came into force. When it happens that this party, who is a mail clerk, has to handle fish and meats that come through the mail, he would like to draw the line. The fish seem to be of good quality, but he would like to know that they cannot stand the warm air of the post office and hereby wishes it known that the parties to whom they are consigned would call for them before they reach a soft state.

It is not known yet whether these fish affect the high cost of eating or not, but the clerk adds that the fish themselves seem to be scented high at any rate.

Tarzan of The Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company.

Professor Porter had recovered his sly silt hat, which he had brushed carefully upon the sleeve of his coat and replaced upon his head. When he saw Mr. Philander pointing to something behind him he turned to behold a giant naked but for a loin cloth and a few metal ornaments, standing motionless before him.

"Good evening, sir," said the professor, lifting his hat.

For reply the giant motioned them to follow him and set off up the beach

"Good evening, sir," said the professor.

in the direction from which they had recently come.

"I think it the part of discretion to follow him," said Mr. Philander.

"Tut, tut, Mr. Philander," returned the professor. "A short time since you were advancing most logical argument in substantiation of your theory that camp lay directly south of us. I was skeptical, but you finally convinced me, so now I am positive that toward the south we must travel to reach our friends. Therefore I shall continue south."

Further argument was interrupted by Tarzan, who, seeing that these strange men were not following him, had returned to their side.

Again he motioned them to follow him, but still they stood in argument.

Presently the ape man lost patience with their stupid ignorance. He grasped the frightened Mr. Philander by the shoulder, and before that worthy gentleman knew whether he was being killed or merely maimed for life Tarzan had tied one end of his rope securely about Mr. Philander's neck.

"Tut, tut, Mr. Philander," remonstrated Professor Porter. "It is most unbecoming in you to submit to such indignities."

But scarcely were the words out of his mouth ere he, too, had been seized and securely bound by the neck with the same rope. Then Tarzan set off toward the north, leading the now thoroughly frightened professor and his secretary.

In deathly silence they proceeded for what seemed hours to the two tired and hopeless old men, but presently, as they topped a little rise of ground, they were overjoyed to see the cabin lying before them, not a hundred yards distant.

Here Tarzan released them and, pointing toward the little building, vanished into the jungle beside them.

It was a "bug" relieved party of castaways that found itself once more united. Dawn discovered them still recounting their various adventures and speculating upon the identity of the strange guardian and protector they had found on this savage shore.

CHAPTER XII.

Burials.

AS it was now quite light the party, none of whom had eaten or slept since the previous morning, began to bestir themselves to prepare food.

The mutineers of the Arrow had landed a small supply of dried meats, canned soups, and vegetables, crackers, flour, tea and coffee for the five they had marooned, and these were hurriedly drawn upon to satisfy the ravings of long famished appetites.

The next task was to make the cabin habitable, and to this end it was first decided to remove the grewsome relics of the tragedy which had taken place here on some bygone day.

Professor Porter and Mr. Philander were deeply interested in examining the skeletons. The larger two they stated to have belonged to a male and female of one of the higher white races.

The smallest skeleton was given but passing attention, as its location in the crib left no doubt as to its having been the infant offspring of this unhappy couple.

As they were preparing the skeleton of the man for burial Clayton discovered a massive ring which had evidently encircled the man's finger at the time of his death, for one of the slender bones of the hand still lay within the golden bauble.

Picking it up to examine it, Clayton gave a cry of astonishment, for the ring bore the crest of the house of Greystoke.

At the same time Jane Porter discovered the books in the cupboard, and on opening to the fly leaf of one of them saw the name "John Clayton, London." In a second book, which she hurriedly examined, was the single name "Greystoke."

"Why, Mr. Clayton," she cried, "what does this mean? Here are the names of some of your own people in these books."

"And here," he replied gravely, "is the great ring of the house of Greystoke which has been lost since my uncle, John Clayton, the former Lord Greystoke, disappeared, presumably lost at sea."

"But how do you account for these things being here in this savage African jungle?" exclaimed the girl.

"There is but one way to account for it, Miss Porter," said Clayton. "The late Lord Greystoke was not drowned. He died here in this cabin, and this poor thing upon the floor is all that is mortal of him."

"Then this must have been Lady Greystoke," said Jane Porter reverently, indicating the mass of bones upon the bed.

"The beautiful Lady Alice," replied Clayton, "of whose many virtues and charms I often have heard my mother and father speak."

With reverence and solemnity the bodies of the late Lord and Lady Greystoke were buried beside their little African cabin, and between them was placed the tiny skeleton of the baby of Kala, the ape.

As Mr. Philander was placing the frail bones of the infant in a bit of sailcloth he examined the skull minutely. Then he called Professor Porter to his side, and the two argued in low tones for several minutes.

"Most remarkable, most remarkable," said Professor Porter.

"Bless me!" said Mr. Philander. "We must acquaint Mr. Clayton with our discovery at once."

"Tut, tut, Mr. Philander; tut, tut!" remonstrated Professor Archimedes Q. Porter. "Let the dead past bury its dead."

Magistrate In Lenient Mood

Lets South Norwich Thieves Go on Suspended Sentence—A Chance to Reform.

WOODSTOCK, March 30.—Before Police Magistrate Ball on Saturday, John and Walter Brown and Louis Fournier were let off on suspended sentence. The boys promised to give up their lives of crime and promised to make restitution to the people of South Norwich from whom they had stolen. They were also ordered to pay the costs of the court, which will amount to something short of $100.

Mrs. Eva Andrew was charged with stealing 100 pounds of butter from the Little Lake Cheese factory, to which she pleaded guilty. Her case was a sad one. Her husband is in jail on a charge of theft, and she is the sole support of six small children. Magistrate Ball took all these things into consideration and suspended sentence on the unfortunate woman.

The prisoners were all given a severe lecture by the magistrate, and were told that if they ever come before him again they would receive heavy sentences.

Louis Fournier has secured a position with a farmer through the influence of Constable Hill.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

Seecley, Who Fitted Czar of Russia Recalled to Brantford.

F. H. Seecley of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will be at the Kerby hotel and will remain in Brantford Friday only, April 3rd.

Mr. Seecley says: "The Spermatic Shield as now used and approved by the United States Government will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in ten days on the average case. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, harmful injections, treatments or prescriptions."

Mr. Seecley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. All charity cases without charge, or if any interested call, he will be glad to show same without charge or fit them if desired. Any one ruptured should remember the date and take advantage of this opportunity.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

Kept her locks youthful, dark, glossy and thick with common garden Sage and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger. Agent T. George Bowles.

A Thrilling Story

Of Revolution, Intervention and War

By FREDERICK STARR, of the University of Chicago

MEXICO AND THE UNITED STATES

Tells not only what is known of the earliest inhabitants of the country, but it also gives a careful, most absorbing account of the course of government and the conditions and modes of life of the people since the invasion and conquest of the Spaniards. It traces the development of railroads, commerce and progress, and the vital part which foreign capitalists and adventurers have played. It portrays the cruel rule of the Spanish viceroys, the terrors of slavery and peonage, and the oppression of the working people. It describes the winning of freedom in Mexico, the Texan revolution, the war with the United States, the French invasion, the empire of Maximilian, the rise of Diaz and the development of the peculiar, complicated conditions that have resulted in the present situation.

A Country Exploited for Benefit of the Few

It is in the revelation of Mexico's intolerable political and economic conditions that the book possesses one of its chief values. The story of the evils which exist in Mexico has never been adequately told. All previous attempts have been suppressed by powerful influences. Now, however, in this volume is given a complete description of the conditions which exist—a description which will arouse a nation and compel reformation.

The Eyes of the Civilized World are upon Mexico.

All nations are to-day watching unhappy Mexico, where bullets are more potent than ballots, and where the force of arms has replaced the consent of the people in maintaining a form of government. The struggle which is being carried on for the establishment of justice and civil rights is of greater moment than merely its effect upon Mexicans.

To be fully informed on this very vital question one must read this book. Over 400 large octavo pages. $3.50

Fine super paper. Over 100 great photo-graphs, maps and portraits. Artistically bound in fine book cloth.
