Edward Speer, 1st prize, one year old bull, body without division and Rev G T expressed himself as opposed to it.

Rev Mr McDonald, of Carleton of the pleasure he being present, he referred to the Railway westion and made a very lengthy argument show the advantages of Railways get ally, and the extention of the Northern and Western Railways to the village of Stanley particularly. Rail-Roads he said brought a market to every Roads he said brought a market to every man's door and made it quite unnecessary for the farmer to incur the expense of taking their products to town to market. He mentioned the immense trade done in raspberries in Aroostook county and wondered that the people do not build starch factories like the Aroostook people and thereby make a market for a class of potatoes which are not even worth feeding to the swine. He suggested that the people should see to it that the authorities, (he did not care whether it were the Dominion or the Local Government or the Company having control of the matter), but whoever it was, they should bring the road through or near to the village.

was loudly called for and responded. He said he did not feel that he had very much to say. He was glad to greet his old friends and make new ones on occasions like these. The Stanley people never failed to extend a hearty greeting to their outside friends and the strangers, many of whom belonging to cucumber for itself far and wide. He hoped the people would not slacken in their energies but a prosperous and useful Agricultural Society. Touching upon the railway question, he said, amid great applause, that he could assure his constituents that he would do all that lay in his power to secure them the nearest possible location of the Railway consistent with engineering possibilities.

The Attorney General next spoke and said he did not wish to appear singular; his colleagues had all address- wharf he and again on the same terms as ed them, some at great length, and therefore he would say only a few words. He presumed the good people of Stanley had been for nearly 50 years keeping up this annual back to the wharf committee. It had no doubt stimulated the adoption of improved methods in agriculture and promoted improvement in stock. He hoped the interest in these direc-tions would not flag. An opportunity was and renew the old ties. Another purpose he would be glad to see effected by their annual gathering. He would like to see the idea impressed upon the young men of the Parish that they could find in New Brunswick as large a measure of prosperity by the exercise of industry and forgality as in any other " 1994 State of A wilson impressed upon the young men of the Parish of industry and frugality, as in any other part of the world.
