PRO. HOCKEY.

A Win For Boston Bruins.

Last night's game of the National Hockey League, played at Boston, between the Montreal Maroons and Boston Bruins, was won by the latter by 3 goals to 2. In the first period a good exhibition was handed out, and the only scoring was done by Herbert for Boston, who bulged the twines from a scrimmage from in front of goal. In the second frame Carson Cooper increased his team's lead to two, but before the period closed Reg. Noble and Babe Silbert, had evened up matters for the Montrealers. During this session Dr. Stewart, the Boston goalie, was laid low by a blow from the puck and had to be carried off the ice. He was replaced by Roberts, who filled the breach nicely for his first time in professional company, having been successful in turning all shots aside. Cooper scored the one and only goal in the third period, which was brimful of good hockey. The Montreal team made desperate attempts to even up matters towards the close of play, but without result.

LOST HIS TITLE.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—A long arm and a cool head from Seattle carried by one Tod Morgan, knocked the junior lightweight crown from the head of Mike Ballerino, of Bayonne, N. J., here last night. Ballerino's seconds threw a towel into the ring toward the close of the tenth round.

Ballerino opened with rushing tactics which gave him the title and has made him famous, but eight inches longer reach on the Seattle boy's arm, coupled with hard hitting ability, were too much for the Bayonne slugger.

Ring-siders gave Ballerino the first round, called the fifth about even, and slated all the others to Morgan. Ballerino was knocked down once for the count of nine, again for the count of three and was barely standing, groggy, in a neutral corner when his seconds threw in the towel.

The champion weighed 128½ pounds and the challenger 128.

PILOT SETS WORLD RECORD.

Stays Aloft For Over Two Hours, Altitude 5,000 Meters.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The veteran French pilot, Lucien Bossoutrot, with a super-Goliath plane carrying four motors developing 2,000 horsepower, broke the world's altitude and duration records for heavier than air machines carrying a useful cargo of 4,000 kilograms (8813.49 pounds).

Taking off from Le Bourget flying field at 2:26 o'clock, Bossoutrot remained aloft for 2h. 19m. and reached an altitude of 5,000 meters (16,404 feet). He made a perfect landing in spite of his 4,000 kilogram load.

The former record for a feat of this kind was held by Lieut. H. R. Harris, of the United States Army, with a Barling bomber. Lieutenant Harris, at Dayton, O., last year remained aloft 1h. 47m.

Bossoutrot's super-Goliath, with a wingspread of 140 feet, weighed 13½ tons when it took off. If the weather permits, Bossoutrot will attempt to set a record with a load of 6,000 kilograms.

Round-up of New York Rum Syndicate

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WERE PAID TO COAST GUARDMEN—MILLIONAIRE HEAD OF THE SYNDICATE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—United States District Attorney Buckner to-day declared fresh proof of collusion between Coastguard members and the alleged New York rum syndicate which dominated the Atlantic Coast had been revealed in confessions and private papers taken from some of the syndicate members yesterday as eighteen men arrested yesterday as participants in the liquor ring. Notations of payments as high as $8,400 a time to Guardsmen by the syndicate; records of enormous profits on single cargoes; and an elaborate system of signals between Coastguard boats and liquor ships were among the discoveries said to have been made to-day.

A man said to be William Dwyer, millinaire turnman, was arrested yesterday as the alleged head of the syndicate. Six members of the Coastguard, said to have been in his pay, and eleven men accused of membership in the syndicate in various capacities also were taken. Federal prohibition officers to-day were searching for twenty-five more for whom warrants have been issued.

Private papers found in the first round-up indicate, among other inner secrets that corruption by Guardsmen was not confined to those aboard small craft, but extended to crews of the larger 75 foot boats, and included officers as well as men.

On the other hand District Attorney Buckner said he had evidence in at least one instance of the refusal of an offer as high as $20,000 to the commanding officer of a vessel to allow a single cargo to pass.

Most of the signals and secret data were found in documents taken from Philip Coffey, arrested yesterday as "pay-off man" by the syndicate. One entry said to be in his handwriting read "Coastguard $8,400, paid to Nicholas Brown."

Nicholas Brown, boatswain and commanding officer of the cutter No. 188, was arrested yesterday with all his crew.

Among the signals found in Coffey's papers were:

"Steady light on schooner means not to go to schooner, for schooner is loading."

Mr. Buckner interpreted these as instructions to the commander of a Coastguard boat to keep away from a Rum Row vessel showing a steady light, because small boats were alongside taking on cargoes. Another read, "When a seventy five foot Coastguard boat plays a steady light, small coast-guard boats are to get under way," and another, "Flash three times, all ok to load."

On the code, South was designated "sick"; East, "easy"; North, "nicely"; West, "well"; Montauk was "b"; Black Island, "girl"; No man's Land, "Rum Row—twins."

Dwyer's "pay station" for bribed guardsmen in New York, was said to have been the Sea Grill Restaurant, which he owned. The restaurant recently was closed, and to-day Federal Judge Julius W. Mac appointed a receiver for it.

Rock Carvings Discovery

Intense interest has been aroused by the discovery of ancient rock carvings in a cave in a gully in the unexplored Kiangora Plains, near Rotorua, in North Island.

The carvings are believed to be of Maori origin, or perhaps, of pre-Maori origin. There are canoes 8 ft. in length with very high sterns and with spiral decorations along the sides. Such canoes have long since been obsolete.

Although most of the ethnologists, who have examined the carvings, declare them to be of native origin, there are many features which are rare and others which are unique. They are certainly of great antiquity. It is suggested that the carvings were done by some persecuted people. The reason given is that all the carvings depict canoes, which, it is said, express infinite home-sickness.

How the M-1 Was Lost

RAMMED BY SWEDISH STEAMER—CREW PERISHED IMMEDIATELY.

The British submarine M1, which was lost with her crew of 89 off Start Point Devon, was, it has been officially established, rammed by a steamship. The following statement was issued by the Admiralty.

As a result of an investigation of the hull of the steamship Vidar at Stockholm, acting on information received from the Swedish Government that he felt a shock at the time and in the vicinity of the position in which M1 was reported to have been last seen, the Admiralty consider that the damage to this submarine while submerged was due to a collision with the S. S. Vidar.

Under the circumstances it is certain that M1 was rapidly and completely flooded, and the crew must have perished immediately.

DAMAGED STEAMER.

The Vidar is of 2,159 tons, and the owners are Stockholm Rederi Aktiebolaget Svea. She was on a voyage from Cardiff to Stockholm, loaded with coal. On November 12 she passed Start Point at 7.45 and a hard shake was suddenly perceived, which the officers ascribed to a torpedo or mine explosion from the naval exercises in the neighbourhood.

Immediate measures were taken to see whether the Vidar was damaged, but examination showed she was not leaking.

Passing the Kiel Canal the captain was informed of the loss of the submarine and immediately telegraphed to the owners stating what had happened.

At Stockholm divers found damage in the bottom ahead and in the stern, and that the ship was leaking. The Vidar will be examined in dry dock. Cmdr. A. de Bahr, the Naval Attaché at the Swedish Embassy, was the only representative of a foreign nation at the M1 memorial service at sea on Thursday.

Prince Accused

Of Robbing American Women of Jewels.

Paris, Dec. 2.—Prince De Trevis, of Bucharest, Montmartre, and just now of the Brussels battle, must appear in a Parisian criminal court to answer the charge of Mrs. Enid Riggs and Mrs. Ruth Goodwin, sisters, of Chicago, that he and some of the princely suite stole from them diamond rings and wrist watches valued at $60,000 francs.

The story is one of princely charm and chance acquaintance such as many an American visitor in Paris has reason to remember and more reason not to tell.

After her divorce several years ago, Mrs. Riggs sought solace in Hollywood and later in Paris and in Montmartre. Three months ago, she met Jean Schneider, described as a "young, pretty and distinguished" girl, who soon became her trusted friend. Jean introduced her American companion to her brother, "a celebrated Italian ace" and to his friend, the Prince De Trevis. They were charming, de-medalled gentlemen.

During a Montmartre party, the Prince decorated Mrs. Riggs by slipping over her neck a brilliant red ribbon attached to a glittering medal. Later, at Mrs. Riggs' home, the prince remarked upon other beautiful jewels possessed by his hostess and her sister. He especially was taken by a ring set with three diamonds of four carats each, and with a studded watch.

The Prince asked to be permitted to examine them closely, and while he gazed upon them another of the trio rang a bell in imitation of a telephone. Mrs. Riggs left the room to answer the telephone, and when she returned her guests and her jewels and her sister's jewels were gone.

After several days, Mrs. Riggs reported the theft. The Paris police immediately identified the men as Theodore Metulescu and Basile Burulescu both Rumanians. The pretty Jean was Rumanian, too. The men were known to police as confidence operators.

Metulescu and Burulescu have been located in Brussels, whence they will be extradited to Paris. Mrs. Riggs angrily announced that she would prosecute the "Prince."

A Stamp Census

A Norwich firm's stamp census indicates that this year 2,167 new stamps have appeared, bringing the grand total up to 43,279; and there is not a philatelist in the world with a complete collection.

During the eighty-five years during which stamps have been sold Europe has needed 19,895, Asia 7,940, Africa 9,824, America 7,320, the West Indies 2,845, and Oceania 2,355.

The End of the World

(Liverpool Post).

An American prophet, who is a cheerful soul and calls himself an "Apostle of Doom," again tells us that the end of the world will come next February. He prophesied the end of the world for last February. But he is downhearted! Not in the least. His tip did not come off, but like the majority of tipsters he has risen from the ashes of disappointment and is cheerfully fixing the date of destruction for next February. In fact, there is nothing to prevent him from spending the rest of his life prophesying the end of the world. Most men have a hobby of some kind, and the Apostle of Doom wants to live up to his self-imposed title. He must be a nice, cheerful kind of person to have about the house, especially at Christmas time; but perhaps, like the rest of the world, he does not believe in his own prophecy, and cheerfulness will occasionally break into the house of even the most confirmed pessimist.

We know there are Biblical warnings that the end of the world will come some time, but we are also warned against taking undue thought of the morrow. Scientists confidently assure us that there is no indication of the world coming to an end within the next hundred years, and by that time we shall have no cause to worry over the matter. The world has existed for millions of years, and it is not yet worn out. It is still a going concern, though we have our own pessimists who assure us that our particular part of the world is approaching bankruptcy. These pessimists are usually comfortably placed, and perhaps if their circumstances were more difficult they would cultivate a little optimism. As for those who cheerfully anticipate the destruction of the world, they are not mentally balanced. Maybe they are tired of life and the world, and like apologetic children they would like to destroy the whole box of tricks. But sane persons realize that just as the beginning of the world was not their affair, neither is the end; and they are content to fulfil their allotted tasks and make the best of the world while they are in it.

CONFEDERATION LIFE.—nov23.25

Prince's Motto Mystery

Few emblems have aroused more controversy than the Prince of Wales' crest and motto—three feathers and the words "Ich Dien." The usual story is that when the Black Prince killed John of Austria at Crecy he assumed the latter's crest and motto, but a Welsh tradition indicates that when Edward I. promised the people of Wales a prince who could not speak a word of English, he presented to them his infant son, with the remark, "Ich dien," which means "I serve the man."

It is further said that the feathers formed the rebus of Queen Philippa, mother of the Black Prince, representing her hereditary title, Countess of Ostré-vant (ostrich feather).

Now we are told that the giant replica of the Prince's crest, made of splendid ostrich plumes, that was seen at Wembley is quite wrong, because the real crest is not made of ostrich feathers, and never was!

The truth is that the real crest is made from the feathers of the ferret, a bird found in the denser jungles of Bengal.

Worth Knowing

If you are troubled with rheumatic pains try adding in your bath oil of turpentine to the hot water or, if you want a very good oil, mix to a thin paste with olive oil soap, and then add to the water. You will find it most comforting.

Even in cold weather one's kitchen is apt to be warm when making pastry. A bottle filled with water as cold as can be procured is better than a wooden pin, but do see that the stopper is well screwed into place. All mixing water should be drawn just when needed, and you should allow the tap to run until it is as cold as you can obtain. This way is perfect pastry made.

If boots creak, soak the soles in salt and water, and leave them overnight in linseed oil.

To whiten hands take a wineglassful of eau de Cologne, half cupful lemon juice, scrape two cakes good white soap to a powder, mix well, mould and let it harden.

A satisfactory manner of mixing flavors in a sandwich is by spreading one slice of buttered bread with jam and the mate with cream cheese and chopped nuts.
