

OUTFLANKING IS LIMITED BY SEA

Storm Centre Has Worked Northward Almost as Far as Possible.

ANTWERP HOLD OUT?

Impossible To Know If She Can Await Decision On Aisne.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 9.—The military fortunes of Gen. Von Kluck and his one-armed adversary, commanding the allies' cavalry, are being rapidly made or marred within sight of the North Sea, which sets a limit to the outflanking movements, the accomplishment of which has been for so long the goal of the rival generals.

The storm centre gradually has extended northward. The battle of the Aisne already has been merged into the battle of the Somme and the battle of the Ypres, and if the long left tentacle of the allies continues to stretch out in its present direction the finale of the titanic struggle may be fought out on the banks of the Scheldt, and may decide the fate of Antwerp, now a prey to German howitzers and air craft.

Whether or not the garrison of Antwerp will be able to stand its ground until the fate of the attempt to relieve the fortress is decided, it is impossible to tell, as the situation is liable to change vitally with each round of the German siege guns.

While some pictures of the bombardment of Antwerp have been seen or drawn, it is nevertheless fully confirmed that the damage done by the incendiary shells and bombs showering upon the citadel from the German howitzers and air craft is extensive.

The report that the youthful Grand Duchess of Luxembourg is a prisoner of the Germans is reiterated today, though official confirmation is lacking.

EVIDENT MURDER AT FORT WILLIAM

[Canadian Press.]

Fort William, Oct. 9.—A coroner's jury last night returned a verdict of death from a gunshot wound, inflicted by an unknown assailant, on the body of William Leighton, who was found lying dead in the bush at the Finnish settlement near Dora, on the Grand Trunk Pacific, last Monday.

Leighton lived with his wife and family at Port Arthur, but owns a farm at Dora. When he went out there on Monday, he carried with him $75, with which he intended to purchase a horse, and when he was found dead his money was missing. The interior of his shack showed signs of a terrible struggle, and the walls, even to the ceiling, were splashed with blood. A bullet fired from a long range had entered the back of the neck, and the jugular vein and one out of the mouth.

No arrests have been made.

An unknown Italian, who was seen talking to Leighton during the day, and was seen going toward the shack a short time before the shot was heard, is suspected of the crime.

READY FOR CALL WHEN IT COMES

Col. W. E. Hodgins, in charge of first division headquarters today, received a dispatch late this afternoon placing him in charge of recruiting here for his division.

"I believe," said Col. Hodgins, "that it is the intention to have each division do its own recruiting. I am now awaiting instructions as to the number of men to recruit, and what arms of the service it is to include. When that comes we will take off our coats and get together a number of men that will be a credit to the division and to Canada. I have the commanding officers to back me up in this effort, and no pains will be spared to give us one of the finest representations in the contingent."

Although no definite orders have been received at military headquarters here regarding the recruiting of more men for a second expeditionary contingent, a considerable number are coming forward daily with the desire to enlist. In all cases their names are taken and put on what is known as a waiting list. When the orders for recruiting arrive from Ottawa, the men whose names are already signed will be sworn in.

Following is a list of those who have already come forward and signified their willingness to go to the front with the Seventh Division: Capt. G. J. Ingram (acting major); Pte. Thomas Hall, H. Company; Corp. Donaldson, G. Company; Pte. Teddy Williamson, H. Company; Pte. Barratt Hennessey, C. Company; Pte. R. Stevenson, B. Company; Pte. H. R. Irwin, B. Company; Pte. Arthur Wilson, B. Company; Pte. William H. Carr, B. Company; Pte. P. White, H. Company; Pte. Christopher Crook, F. Company; Pte. Frederick Hutt, A. Company; Pte. Edgar Rushen, H. Company; Pte. William H. Daymont, H. Company; Sgt. Joseph H. Company; Albert Riggley, G. Company.

Opening Announcement

SATURDAY AT TEN O'CLOCK WE OPEN AT 173 DUNDAS STREET

A STATIONERY STORE DE LUXE And we cordially invite you to call and get acquainted with our shop. We will have everything in High-Grade Writing Paper, Waterman Pens, Magazines, Leather Goods, and everything covered by words. Society Stationery.

VISIT OUR FICTION CLUB

All the new books at one cent per day.

Office Stationery and Loose Leaf Goods Everything for the office—Printing, Copper-Plate, and Steel Die Work.

HAY'S 173 Dundas St. Phone 150

Sale of Sample Model WINTER OVERCOATS, Saturday 175 Men's Samples, $13.95; 110 Boys' and Youths', $8.50

This once-a-season event, we timed for this very Saturday, the Saturday before Thanksgiving day, that our customers who look for these samples each season may have their new coats for the holiday—Also to suit the convenience of our many customers from out of town, who will take advantage of the Thanksgiving holiday rates on the railroads. These coats are the Winter samples of one of the largest manufacturers in Canada, the models carried by their travellers on their placing trip for 1915 Winter season. All the very newest styles in fine English Chinchillas, Meltons, Beavers, Tweeds and Vicunas. It there is an overcoat need in the family don't miss this sale—and come early—the high-grade models will be picked first.

Men's Overcoats

Travellers' Samples $13.95

$22.00 TO $28.50 COATS. YOUR CHOICE.

Ten different styles to choose from. All the leading 1915 models, handling only in placing orders for the present season. 175 Coats in all—Beavers, Tweeds, Chinchilla, Vicunas and Meltons. Six weeks in travellers' trunks, that is why the price is so small. Sizes 34 to 44. Coats up to $28.50. Sale price $13.95

Boys' Overcoats

Travellers' Samples $8.50

$12.00 TO $18.00 COATS. YOUR CHOICE.

11 Coats, are for boys 9 to 14, and youths up to 18 years. All this season's fine winter overcoats—Chinchillas, with shawl collar and strap on back; also five or six other smart styles for youths and boys up to 18 years. The entire wholesale variety to select from. Coats worth from $12.00 to $18.00. On sale Saturday morning $8.50

ALL REPAIRS

For Gurney-Oxford Stoves in Basement

SMALLMAN & INGRAM LIMITED

Saturday Sale Boys' Suits

$9.00 to $13.00 Suits, $4.95

This is one of the biggest bargains in Boys' Clothing we have yet offered. FIVE-PIECE SUITS.—Coat, cap, belt, and two pairs of bloomer kickers, all to match. 35 suits only in this lot—brown, tweed and navy blue serge. This is the kind of sale that will get keen buyers out early in the morning. Sizes for ages 7 to 17 years. 35 to clear at $4.95 suit.

Men's Pyjamas, $1.49 Suit

Six dozen Men's Flannelette Pyjamas, fine quality English flannelette, in very neat patterns. Sizes 36 to 44. A line of extra well made goods, specially priced for Saturday's sale $1.49 suit.

Come Early Saturday and Have First Choice, a $25.00 Coat for $13.95. See Window Display.

TAKE WEST SIDE ELEVATOR Direct to Restaurant—Fourth Floor

Should Be Real Thanksgiving!

High Cost of Living Going Down and Turkey Dinners Will Be Cheaper This Year.

A Thanksgiving dinner, with turkey trimmings, for a family of six, should cost approximately $4.86, against $5.34 for last year, the difference being entirely in the price of turkey, which is eight cents cheaper a plate.

Following is a menu, that provides a good wholesome Thanksgiving dinner, and should be worth giving thanks for:

Roast Turkey, 12 pounds, at 18 cents	Chestnut Stuffing
Oysters, one quart	Pickles
Cranberry Sauce	Brown Gravy
Mashed Potatoes	Creamed Cauliflower
Coffee, quarter pound	Cheese Wafers
Apple and Celery Salad	Pumpkin Pie
Mince Pie	Bon-Bons
Coffee

The cost of all the items has been carefully estimated, and allows for all the ingredients used in the pies, salads, etc.

COST FOR 1914.

Roast turkey, 12 pounds, at 18 cents	$2 16
Oysters, one quart	60
Cranberry Sauce	30
Cranberries, one pint	15
Pickles	10
Potatoes, half peck	20
Cauliflower, two small ones	25
Salad	20
Cheese straws	20
Mince pie	15
Pumpkin pie	15
Coffee, quarter pound	10
Cream, half pint	10
Bon-Bons, half pound	30
Total	$4 86

COST FOR 1913.

Roast turkey, 12 pounds, at 22 cents	$2 64
Oysters, one quart	60
Cranberry Sauce	30
Cranberries, one pint	15
Pickles	10
Potatoes, half peck	20
Cauliflower	25
Salad	20
Cheese straws	20
Mince pie	15
Pumpkin pie	15
Coffee, quarter pound	10
Cream, half pint	10
Bon-Bons, half pound	30
Total	$5 34

URGED TO ENLIST

Orangemen Told to Join Militia in Circular Letters.

Circular letters being sent out by Secretary-Treasurer W. Banks, of the joint legislative committee of the Loyal Orange Lodge, have been received in this city. The letters urge the Orangemen to enlist.

"It is the duty," says the letter, in part, "for every man who is eligible for military service to at once enroll himself in the nearest military unit to his home. Now, as in the days of yore, the Orangemen stand for God, the King, for Empire, and for their dear Canadian homes."

All Orangemen are urged to enlist.

PERSONAL

Fred Higginbottom, city ticket agent of the C. N. R. in Toronto, with his wife and family, is spending his vacation in London.

Ellis Hyman, of Toronto, formerly of this city, has been visiting here. Mr. Hyman has fully recovered from a long illness.

LETTER DESCRIBES CRUEL TREATMENT OF SOLDIER

Had Hands Cut Off by Germans—Minister Refers to Case at Prayer Meeting.

Mrs. Ernest W. Hill, 632 Eliza street, has received a letter from a girl friend in Birmingham, England, in which she speaks of the terribly mutilated condition of some of the wounded soldiers who have been sent from the battlefields into the hospitals there. This was the communication to which Rev. W.C. Riddford made reference in his address at the weekly prayer service in the Y. M. C. auditorium on Wednesday.

Mrs. Hill's correspondent mentions one case in particular where a young soldier, visited in the hospital by his mother, broke the news to her that in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he had been killed outright.

The pathos of the reunion between mother and son was described very vividly. The former had not been in addition to being wounded in the leg, both his hands had been held in at the wrists. He was very despondent, the writer of the letter said, and reiterated the wish that he