FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 24, 1885.

The Sunday Paper Question. The World is of opinion that a Sunday paper, well condusted, with clean columns, is an instrument for good. Whether it would be a financial success or not in Canada is another question on which we are not prepared at present to give an opinion. To settle that question we would like to have, an expression of opinion from our customers-we would like to know how many of them would take a Sunday paper if it was delivered at their house early Sunday morn. ing; we would also like to know how many of our customers would cease to be such if we saw fit to publish a Sunday edition. But all this aside, we certainly feel justified in publishing an edition of The World during these times of great excitement, when so many families of Toronto are so deeply interested in the welfare of the troops in the field. We are convinced from our experience of the last four Sundays, that the citizens of Toronto appreciate our efforts to give them important new on Sunday, and if the news or the coming Sunday is of a character to justify it, we shall certainly bring out our paper, notwithstanding the threats of Mr Fenton to surround the office and to come in and arrest those engaged in the publication of the paper.

We also wish to inform those good people Macleod are the two men of experience in who took it upon themselves to vindicate what they call Sabbath observance that them organize such a force as will forever they are waking up the wrong passenger when they attempt to enforce their prevent a recurrence of this spring's disideas on this question by attacking th newspapers, for, as can easily be shown, dodging the general's present force if they the Sunday newpaper is the least of all the see fit, and by moving to the east or south alleged violations of the Sunday law. In so far as newspapers are concerned, and as has been pointed out before, the Sunday newspaper entails far less Sunday labor from us to say a word to disparage our than does the Monday paper. Furtherbrave volunteers, but it must be some time more, there are offences against the Sun day law which are much more glaring and actual soldiers. Taken suddenly from to which Mr. Fenton and the society for the suppression of vice might much better their attention to preventing. In attacking the newspapers they will more ar less attack the question of liberty of thought and of freedom of expression, and that is a ground on which they can least afford to fight upon.

evade the present law, in so far as newspapers are concerned. All the work or them, or the great bulk of the work on them, is done before Saturday midnight and it will be an easy thing to bring fat s good Sunday paper by one o'clock Sunday morning, and deliver it all over the city before three; and if Mr. Fenton or his supporters think they can stop that they are welcome to try it and if they succeed in that then the paper can be brought out and delivered before midnight. We admit there is a certain amount of offence to religious order and decency in the boys selling the paper on the street during church hours, but this has been overcome in those cities that have Sunday papers by a tacit understanding between the police and the boys that street sales are not to be pushed after 9 o'clock. In many cities Sunday papers are published and no one is aware of the fact police. This would put a stop to the as the papers are quietly delivered early in the morning and without shouting or importuning the people to buy.

Another thing we wish to note is this that from the Detroit to the Niagara rivers along the two lines of the Great | Western and Canada Southern the Sunday papers of Detroit and Buffalo are sold regularly every Sunday in large quantities and so far no objection has been made thereto. If Canadian papers are to hold their own they will almost be compelled to enter into competition against these American papers. Furthermore, we believe that certain papers have decided to go into the Sunday paper business, and if the daily papers are to hold their own they will be compelled to go in and contest the field with those who propose to take it up. We have also to say that if a systematic persecution is to follow the issue of a Sunday paper in these times of excitement. then it will be in order for newspapers thus persecuted to resort to the law of retaliation; and insist on such an enforcement of the law as will make it obnoxious and bring it into disrepute. The only ground which we can see against the Sun day paper is that it may somewhat assist to bring about a state of things most undesirable, namely, that as a man is now able to exist by working six days of the week. It ought not to be brought about that in order tokeep body and soul together he will have to labor seven. The publication of Sunday paper may or may not be in that direction; we still think it is not; but even if it were, it is a matter of such small moment, when so many other forces are at work, that it can be left out of view.

When we say that we believe that a clean Sunday paper would be an instrument for good, we say so after having given long and careful consideration to the whole question in regard to its ethical and religious bearing. We know there are any number of good men who have sound idea on what constitutes right action who hold the same opinion with us.

Whether The World will ever see fit to publish a regular Sunday edition will depend entirely on the wishes of its patrons and the dollar and cent aspect of the concern. That aside there is 20 law and there is no public prosecutor who can stop us.

Other matters touched upon in the peti-Other matters touched upon in the petition come under the immediate supervision of the department of the interior, which after the present trouble will doubtless be administered on an improved basis to that which has characterized it for years past. Everything tends to show that up to the present the administration has been regretfully lax, but there is good reason to believe that having had the evils brought only too prominently before them the authorities at Ottawa will enter upon a new career. In fact the appointment of the present commission is a guarantee that such will be the case. Party too is responsible for many a wrong man being in the wrong place when the strain comes. These being incontrovertible truths it is the system rather than the people in power that we are inclined to plame. When General Middleton reached Qu'Appelle he said that if a hundred mounted police properly equipped were at his disposal he could make a dash for Riel and wait for nobody. And we believe the old war horse. The "War Cry" and Sunday Papers. Editor World: Sir,-I do not like your proposed Sunday paper business. Much as I enjoy your spicy columns I can get along very well without them on Sunday; they lesson is a cheap one. The police must in future be controlled in the Northwest and are neither a necessity nor a mercy except not in Ottawa, and Mr. Vankoughnet must under very exceptional circumstances, and wake up of make place for a live man of greater capacity. The two departments, to get them out would, I fear, be merely introducing the thin edge of the all-week-round grind of the workingmen. The Sunday should be protected as much as possible in the interests of the toiling masses. At the same time I think there is a great deal of narrowness in some of those who condemn you. The minister who proposed to stop the salvation army selling their War Cry on the same grounds as he would suppress Sunday papers must have a narrow and illogical mind. That is a voluntary work of charity not pursued for personal gain and involves no Sunday work by printers. Collections in churches might just as well be suppressed, and preaching too for that matter. Scott act tyranny finds a congenial place in the minds of such ministers.

Liberal Temperance. to get them out would, I fear, be merely be under one chief. Col. Irvine and Col. whom the Indians have confidence. Let turbance. Cedar Blocks. Editor World: It is laughable to hear some of the suggestions made at our council in reference to the cedar blocks between sedentary occupations, they would be more the rails. If the blocks were cut than human if they could, under three months, become inured to the trials of as Mr. Wagner suggested it might stop the warfare. They did not enlist to fight Indians on the prairie, or halfbreeds in the forest; and if the mounted police had been in a state of efficiency they would not have been required for the service. The police Loam will not allow water to pass, therefore the water freezes and lifts up the blocks. Look at Spadina avenue from one end to the other, no such trouble there, because the sand is good and sharp for the water to drain through. If these inspectors of block paving were to look after our interests and not the contractors', we would have better work in our block paved streets.

A NEAT JOB.

A BURGLAR'S STORY. My profession isn's a popular one There's considerable prejudice against it. don't, myself, think its much worse than a good many others. However, that's nothing to do with my story. Some years ago, me and the gentleman who was a that time connected with me in businesshe's met with reverses since then, and a present is able to get out—was looking around for a job, being at that time rather hard up, as you might say. We struck small country town-I ain't a goin' to giv it away by telling where it was, or wha the name of it was. There was one bank there; the president was a rich old duffer ewned the mills, owned the bank, owne most of the town. There wasn't no other officer but the cashier, and they had a boy who used to sweep out and run of errands. The bank was on the main street, prett well up one end of it—nice, snug place, o the corner of a cross street, with nothi very near it. We took our observation and there was no trouble at all about There was an old Stoughton bottle of watchman that walked up and down th street nights, when he didn't fall asles and forget it. The vault had two doors the outside one was chilled iron and had three-wheel combination lock; the inne door wasn't no door at all; you could kee it open. It didn't pretend to be nothing but fireproof, and wasn't even that. T first thing we done, of course, was to fit the outside door was an old fashion Baron lock, any gentleman in my profesion who chances to read this article w know just how easy that job was, and ho we done it. I may say here that the ge tleman in my line of business, having times a good deal of leisure on their hand does considerable reading, and are partic larly fond of a neat bit of writing fact, in the way of literature, I have four among 'em-however, this being disgr sion, I drop it, and go on with the ma ston, I drop it, and go on with the majob again.

This was our plan: After the key wifitted I was to go into the bank, and Ji—that wasn't his name, of course, but I it pass—was to keep watch on the outsid Whan any one passed he was to tip me whistic, and then I doused the glim an lay low. After they got by, I goes again. Simple and easy, you see. We the night as we selected the president hapened to be out of town—gone down to toty, as he often did. I got inside all righ with a slide lantern, a breast drill, a sme steel jimmy, a bunch of skeleton keys, as a green batze bag to stow the swag, fixed my light and rigged my breast dril and got to work on the door right over t look.

Probably a great many of your reads is not so well posted as me about balecks, and, I may say for them, that three-wheel combination look has the wheels in it and a slot in each wheels erder to unlock the door you have to g three slots opposite to each other at top of the look. Of course if you knot the number the look is set on you can this, but if you don't you have to depe on your ingenuity. There is, in each these wheels, a small hole, through whi you put a wire through the back of lock when you change the combination. Now, if you can bore a hole through door and pick up those wheels by runs a wire through those holes, why you open the door. I hope I make my clear. I was boring that hole. The d clear. I was boring that hole. The d was chilled from—about the neatest stufferer worked on: I went on steenough; lonly stopped when Jim—which I said, wasn't his real name—whistled cade, and the watchman toddled by, and by when I'd got pretty near through Jim, so to speak, whistled again. I stopped and pretty soon I heard footsteps outsiand I'm—I mean blowed—if they did come right up to the bank steps, and heard a key in the lock. I was so dur founded when I heard that that you converted the bracelets right on mentioned up my lantern, and I'll be han if I didn't let the side slip down and the the light right into the door, and the was the president. Instead of calling help, as I suppose he would, he took a inside the door, and shaded his eyes whis hand and looked at me. I knowe ought to knock him down and cut out, ought to knock him down and cut out, I'm blest if I could, I was that surprised "Who are you?" says he, "Who are you?" says I, thinking t was an innocent remark, as he commen it, and a-trying all the time to collect:

it, and a-trying all the time to collect self.

"I'm the president of the bank," a he, kinder short. "Something the ma with the look?"

"By George?" The idea came to then. "Yes, sir," asys I, touching my "Mr. Jennings, he telegraphed this moing the look was out of order and couldn't get in, and I'm come on to ope for him."

"I told Jennings a week ago," says "that he ought to get that lock fit Where is he?"

"He's been a-writing letters, and gone up to his house to get another le he wanted for to answer."

"Well, why don't you go right on?" he.

he.
"I've got almost through," says I,
I didn't want to finish up and open vault till there was somebody here."
"That's very creditable to you;"

"That's very creditable to you;" he. "A very proper sentiment, my r You can't," he goes on, coming round the door, "be too particular about avoithe very suspicion of evi."

"No, sir," says I, kinder modest lik "What do you suppose is the me with the lock?" says he.

"I don't rightly know yet," says but I rather think it's a little wor account of not being ciled enough. T'ere locks ought to be ciled about on year." "Well," says he, "you might as we right on, now I am here; I will stay Jennings comes. Can't I help you? your lantern or something of that sor The thought came to me like a flash I turned around and says:

"How do I know you're the presid I ain't ever seen you afore, and you be a-trying to crack the bank for

"Well, you'll find it on that bill," he, taking a bill out of his pocket, you see the same name on these lets and he took some letters from his coat I suppose I ought to have gone right then, but I was beginning to feel ested in making him prove who he wa I says: "You might have got them le to put up a job on me."

"You're a very honest man," say "one among a thousand. Don't thin at all off-nded at your persistence. my good fellow. I like it, I like it," he laid his hand on my shoulder, here," says he taking a bundle out o pocket. "Is a package of ten thou dollars in bonds. A burglar wouldn apt to carry those around with him, whe? I bought them in the city yeste and I stopped here to night on my home to place them in the vault, as may add, that your simple and I
