Agricultural.

The Cattle Horn-Fly,

Precurry at Porty-fourth Avenue North and Lyadale Avenue, Chicago, is a factory for the manufacture of what they call "compoboard." This material is designed to serve instead of lath and plaster, and is described as follows by the North Western Lumberman.
It is made of ½ inch strips of wood, from § to ½ inches wide, placed between two sheets of heavy straw board and united under heavy pressure with a strong cement. The process of manufacture is peculiar. Into the machine that moulds the board are run two sheets of the straw board from rolls, one from above and one from below a table on to which are fed from a feeding device the strips of wood. A roller running in a tank of the liquid cement rolls upon the inmer surface of three layers of material run together between rolls and into a hydraulic press capable of exerting a pressure of 120 tons to the square inch. Ten feet of the board is stopped automatically for a few seconds in the press, then run upon tracks, placed in the dry kilh, and when taken out is trimmed to 48 inches in width.

The strength of the board as compared with its weight is marveloux. The ends of an 18 foot board can be brought together without breaking or warping it. No conditions can warp it. The new office build ing of the C. A. Smith Lumber Company is sheeted within with this material. Wall paper is put wpon the board, and the finish is as fine as upon any plastered wall. The strength of the board are: It is not more expensive than first-class plastering. It forms an absolutely airtight wall It stiffens a building much more than any coat of mortar and lath can. It is quickly put on, and produces no dampness, thus casning no swelling and shrinking of foors and casings. It is light, thus avoiding the dragging down of the house frame, the cosequent cracking of walls, and the warping of door frames. It forms a solider, cleaner, warmer, drier wall at no more expense than is involved in the old way.

At a young folks' party the other evening it was proposed to have a pronouncing test. The following schence was written on a blackboard, and each member asked to read it aloud, one person acting as judge and writing down each person's errors in pronunciation. It was funny to see how many even the best informed persons made. Try it with a dictionary beside you.

"A sacrilegious son of Belial, who has suffered from bronchitis, having exhausted his finances, in order to make good the deficit resolved to ally himself to a comely, lenient and docile young lady of the Malay or Caucasian race. He accordingly purchased a colliope and coral necklace of a chameleon hue, and in securing a suite of rooms at a principal hotel he engaged the head waiter as his coadjutor.

"He then despatched a letter of the most exceptional caligraphy extant, inviting the young lady to a matine. She revolted at the idea, refused to consider herself sacrifices able to his desires, and sent a polite note of a fusual, on receiving which he procured a packing on receiving which he procured a carbine and bowie knife, said that he would not now forge fetters hymneal with the queen, went to an isolated spot severed his jugular vein and discharged the contents of the carbiae into his abdomen. In families of children, many small ailments, to say nothing of accidents, constantly present themselves for amelioration and relief, and the inexperienced mother or the relief, and the inexperienced mother or the forgetful one finds herself helpless in what is really a trifling emergency. Such may find some suggestions of value in what follows.

A child who is subject to earache should e carefully watched in the winter, kept from too long play in the snow, well protected, but not overheated about the head and ears. On coming in from out of doors let him keep his hat or cap on for a few minutes, and then first slipped back before dialogue: taking quite off, that the change from the close covering may be gradual. Every mother should be instructed by her physician as to the appearance of a diphtheritic sore throat. The patches are grayish in appearance and different from the milk white spots of ordinary sore throat. Such a throat once seen is never confounded with any other. Don't wait, however, to see it in your own child; learn how it looks that you may know when it is not there. For croup the best thing to do while wait ing for the doctor, and it will often make his arrival merely a formality, is to put lard on cloth and sprinkle with mustard and apply quickly to the chest. This will not blister and acts promptly. Doses of syrup of ipecac used with this will relieve almost any case of plain spasmodic croup, and the physician will tell you how to look after the

How to Make Fried Toast.

Fried toast would be a speedily made dish, hot and appetizing, for the plain breakfast which I have in mind. Slices of stale bread biscuit are dipped an instant in half a pint of milk mixed with a beaten egg and fried in a spoonful of butter or any sweet fat. The egg prevents the bread from soaking the least fat, and it browns more quickly than one can toast it, while it is very tender and delicate.
