

A Greenhouse Doubles and Triples The Joys of Horticulture

NATURE gives most of us, at the best, scarcely three months of real gardening joys. For two months in the Spring, we are waiting for our gardens "to arrive." For a month or two in the fall, we are regretfully watching their departure. And then come months of barren bleakness with only the reading of horticultural books and the perusing of alluring catalogs to solace us.

But if you have a greenhouse—what a different aspect the whole thing takes. Your garden becomes a perpetual one—regardless of time or season, rhyme or reason.

Besides the flowers, fruits and vegetables, you can have as you will:

there is nothing like a greenhouse to smooth out the hurry-worries of life and keep one in pleasurable harmony with things. Leastwise, that's what our customers say.

If it all seems good indeed to you, why don't you have a glass enclosed garden of your own—one of our greenhouses?

If you wish, we will take charge of the entire building of it for you, from the turning of the sod to the turning on of the heat in your completed garden plot.

Why don't we talk it over—you and I?

Or at least get a start by sending for one of our booklets, called "Glass Gardens—A Peep Into Their Delights."
