

29. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

30. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

31. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

32. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

33. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

34. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

35. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

36. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

37. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

38. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

39. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

40. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

41. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

42. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

43. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

44
 45
 46
 47
 48
 49
 50
 51
 52
 53
 54
 55
 56
 57
 58
 59
 60

61
 62
 63
 64
 65
 66
 67
 68
 69
 70
 71
 72
 73
 74
 75
 76
 77
 78
 79
 80

81. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.

82. The court shall have jurisdiction to grant relief in any case where the plaintiff has established that the defendant has acted unconscionably or in breach of good faith.