

CONTENTS

	PAGE
paper—Political leaders dined—Lincoln on his way to Washington—Fears of assassination—At his inauguration he eloquently pleads for peace—The war-cloud bursts—Parliament assembles again—The battle for constitutional changes still rages fiercely—Another general election tried in vain—Lord Monck arrives and Sir Edmund Head leaves Canada—The Mason-Slidell affair—Queen Victoria and President Lincoln as peace-makers—The Prince Consort's death	157

CHAPTER XV

THE SANDFIELD MACDONALD MINISTRIES

Political changes—Prominent Conservatives take a stand for Representation by Population—Fall of the Cartier-Macdonald Ministry on the Militia Bill—Its principal features—Lord Monck calls the Hon. John Sandfield Macdonald to the premiership—The Macdonald-Sicotte Administration formed on the Double Majority principle—Brown and Macdonald temporarily in the shade—The rival leaders contrasted—The Pitt and Fox of Canadian public life	171
---	-----

CHAPTER XVI

SECTIONAL TROUBLES AS RAMPANT AS EVER

Emancipation the turning point of the Civil War—The Divine Hand traceable in the terrible conflict—Hon. George Brown returns from Europe—First session of the Macdonald-Sicotte Government—Amusing political changes—The Brown-Bodwell election in South Oxford—Personal reminiscences—The sectional spectre appears again—The Double Majority powerless to allay it—Hon. John A. Macdonald assails the Ministry—The Premier's masterly reply—The Province again without a Government—Lord Monck dissolves Parliament again—The Macdonald-Dorion Ministry—It is sustained, but any stable Government has become impossible	181
--	-----

CHAPTER XVII

THE UNION DOOMED—DEADLOCK AGAIN KING

A memorable year in Canadian history—The session of 1864—"Sandfield hasn't a Drinking Majority!"—He resigns in disgust—Lord Monck embarrassed—Messrs. McGee and Foley join a Conservative Ministry—Story of "John A.'s" successful tactics—Mr. Alex. Mackenzie and Mr. Archibald McKellar stump North Waterloo against Foley—Personal
---	--