The town council again instructed P. S. Ison, engineer, to cause the York Radial Railway Company to properly ballast and fill their roadbed thru North Toronto.

At 12.30 p. m. yesterday a freight truck attached to empty passenger car left the C. P. R. crossing, going north. The truck was loaded with hides.

Yesterday morning the 945 south-bound Metropolitan car passed Eglinton-avenue, a dangerous crossing, at what was estimated to be a 30-mile-an-hour clip. There were 5 or 6 passengers waiting, but the motorman was unable to stop until about 200 feet south of the stopping point.

The announcement in yesterday morning's World that the council had committed the town to an expenditure of $7000 for a standpipe for the waterworks staggered many conservative ratepayers at the cost. An expert, who has had considerable experience with this class of work, stated to The World that the city's standpipe on Avenue-road only cost $2800.

sometime during the last two weeks. The transfers were signed at different times.

Shareholders Didn't Want It.

Witness signed all of these certificates after I came back from Winnipeg. I said that I would tell I signed them yesterday. He said, Very well, when I signed the agreements I did not read them. I don't know why I signed them.

John I. Sutcliffe was put in the box next. He was the auditor of the Monarch Life since March. He helped prepare the statement for obtaining the Dominion license. Up to March he was supervisor of the bookkeepers. Since that he was auditor, but had not been asked for more than a general statement.

He had made a statement to the shareholders' meeting on Aug. 28. One item of $1500 payment by Dr. Perfect on stock of Dr. Forbes Godfrey, which had been transferred to Minnie Florence, the company's secretary-treasurer, did not appear in the company's bank account. This transfer was not recorded on company's books.

"There was $1500 that was not in the bank that should have been, and I brought it in in respect to that stock," said Sutcliffe.

Odd Bookkeeping.

Counsel examined the stock books, and remarked: "Rather odd bookkeeping" to which witness assented. Mrs. Fife's account was in bad shape. Some of the entries were in Ostrom's handwriting.

"Has the $1500 cheque been cleared up?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"Dr. Perfect's cheque still lies in the cash book and Dr. Perfect has transferred this stock. The real trouble has not been cleared yet, as I have seen no proper transfers."

Many difficulties were still in the way of making a proper audit.

Referring to fourteen hundred shares, the item was not on the books up to May 31.
