Under Strict Rules - Can Smoke, But Are Not Allowed to Have Any of MONCTON SOLDIER WEDS IN ENGLAND

(London Daily Telegraph.)

Nearly all the ministers of the ex-Czar and many other of the principal agents of the old regime are at present confined in the ancient and obsolete fortress of the ancient and obsolete fortress of the winter.

The following announcement is taken from an English newspaper and represent to a wedding having taken place at East Ham, a portion of the metropolitan district of London. The extract is presumably taken from an East Ham suburban newspaper, as follows:

"An interesting wedding was solem-Peter and Paul, which faces the Winter Palace across the Neva, and is one of the most picturesque features of the Russian capital. They occupy the same cells in the Trubestskoi Bastion in which the unthe Trubestskoi Bastion in which the un- have lived in East Ham for twenty-one were confined till the time came for them to mount the scaffold.

Minister of the Imperial Household, Count Fredericks, and Madame Vuirubova, the most trusted of the ladies-inwaiting and one of the most ardent devotees of Gregory Rasputin. Another of the inmates is the gendarmerie officer, Sobieschanski, popularly kaown as "The Hangman," to whom so many of the former occupants of the state prison

not visit the fortress to satisfy themselves that the enemies of freedom were being treated with becoming severity, but, with characteristic bluntness, he refused point blank, declaring that he was not going to allow the Trubetskoi Bastion to be "turned into a menagerie."

How the Prisoners Live.

The Russian papers have, however, obtained ample details of the conditions until the detail tained ample details of the conditions under which the political prisoners of the new regime now live. Their cells measure twenty-one feet long by eleven feet broad and are comparatively high. Each is lighted by one heavily-barred semicircular window, built into the thick walls so near to the ceiling that it is impossible to see through it. The only furniture is an iron bedstead and a wooden table, both of which are firmly fastened to the walls. On the bed are possible to see through it. The only furniture is an iron hedstead and a wooden table, both of which are firmly fastened to the walls. On the bed are a mattress and pillow, both stuffed with straw, and a coarse coverlet. The prisoners are not allowed to have any of their own effects. Even newspapers are denied to them. But they may smoke.

The prisoners are wakened at seven, when they receive boiling water with which to make tea, three-quarters of a pound of gye bread and half a pound of white. These form part of the regulation ration of the soldiers who guard them, and with whom, in respect to dietary, they are on equality. Then in turn they are given a broom, with which they must clean out their cells. During the morning they are allowed one by one to take brief exercise in the courtyard. At twelve, dinner is Served. It consists of cabbage soup and "kasha." The latter is an untranslatable word, which may mean boiled buckwheat, porridge, rice pudding and many other things. There is tea again at four, and a super of "kasha" at seven.

Regulations Are Strict.

Only on doctors' orders are any departures from these rules allowed. Thus, the vice-director of the police department, Kafafoff, who is diabetic, receives a special diet, and Mme. Sukhomdinoff, whose health is indifferent, is also indulged somewhat in the matter of food. Mme. Vuirubova, both of whose legs were broken in a railway accident a couple of years ago, and who still uses excurches, is allowed a couple of mattresses, and is dispensed from clearing out her cell, while General Kommissaroff, who suffers from nose-bleeding, has an extra pillow. In all respects the regimen enforced is said to be that tradition.

found his way into the corridor in which the cells open. That must have been before M. Kerensky laid down his rigid rule, but even then it was difficult enough to get across to the bastion. This visitor saw several of the prisoners through the little observation windows in their cell doors. Sukhomlinoff with his eyes with "a dull gaze." The ex-War Minister "made a painful impression." His figure was shrunken and his grey beard unkempt and dishevelled.

"Hangman" Sobleschanski lay on his back or the bed, hardly visible through the cells open. (Aids to Beauty.)

No woman is immune to superfluous growths, and because these are likely to always have some delatone powder handy to use when the occasion arises. A paste is made with some of the powder and water and spread upon the hairy surface; in about 2 minutes this is carefully removed and the skin washed. You will then find that your skin is entirely free from hair or fuzz. Be sure, however, to get real delatone.

anyone's hair. It will promptly remedy
the dandruff and itching scalp; it costs little, and you prepare it at home. From your druggist get one ounce quinzoin
and one-half pint alcohol. Mix and add one half-pint cold water. This makes enough tonic to last a long time. Apply to your scalp twice a week. This is fine to prevent falling of the hair and premature loss of color.

Caroline: Yes, if the tissues of your face are inclined to sag, beware, or you will soon have wrinkles! Here is a good massage cream, which tones and braces
the tissues while also beautifying the complexion: Mix an ounce of almozoin (from your druggist) in one-half pint of cold water. Add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply freely. At the first application you will see the skin contract

Daly: Don't worry about being too "plump" when there is such a simple, easy way to reduce flesh without dieting or any strenuous exercise. Get, four ounces of parnotis from your druggist and mix it in one and one-half pints hot water. Take a tablespoonful before meals. This is harmless and inexpensive, and I think you will find a beneficial change within a week.
