Barymore drama and New Brunswick sporting scenes any person not satisfied with the programme would be hard to please. The large crowds who flocked to all showings of this bill evidenced a struct the honorable traveler's aesthetic enjoyment. I will cause it to withto all showings of this bill evidenced a lively interest in the line-up of pictures. The war pictures were perhaps most thought of by the average patron. In spite of the monotony of the great strugstalments for a fortnight. Modern bat- $25 to the same association in the city. of shells in uncomfortable proximity to the camera, the rushing up of fresh troops, lightning-speed of the gun crews, the stolid advance of tanks and big ordnance, all told plainly how the Huns were driven forward. The pictures to-morrow will show the British entering Peronne and what they found there, also low they repaired the damage done bridges, roads, etc.—the work, mostly, of our Canadian engineers.

Ethel Barrymore in a Yukon-New York operatic story "The White Raven" was as good a Metro film as has ever been shown in St. John, which is saying a good deal. The talented star was given broad range of work to display her varied dramatic talents and the supporting cast was superb. "The White Raven" is a story of a goldfields dance girl who succeeded in materializing her visions of an operatic career and became a prima dona. It was in six reels and fraught with many elaborate New York scenes and some rugged and strenuous Yuko

The third and strikingly novel picture was Hunting in New Brunswick. This is the second of the Imperial's new Educational Series and shows feathered and big game guests in the wilds of our own little province. The pictures were taken New York cameramen and the scenes ith the animals showed some of our est known guides. There will be another of these hunting reels next week. Tomorrow the King square house is to have another batch of the British war office pictures and a splendid Triangle story entitled "An Even Break," fea-

A delightful story was told to me by a friend who has just returned from Japan (says a writer in the Daily Express). He had been waiting at a country railway station for his train, and was admiring a sunset when a goods train slowly steamed in and shut off his view. The station-master came towards him and inquired, with the politest of bows, if he had liked the sunset.
