THE NUMBER OF SCHOLARS on the roll on 31st December was 230. The average roll for the year was 219, and the average attendance, 136. The largest average attendance was in February, 166; the smallest, in September, 110. The School was closed, as usual, during the months of July and August. In the beginning of November, a class for young men was formed, which has since increased to such an extent as to render a separate class-room necessary. It is hoped that the Trustees will kindly give this matter early consideration and provide the required accommodation. This class is taught by Mr. McKay, a student of the Presbyterian College, and it is earnestly desired that a large number of the young men of St. Paul's Church will connect themselves with it, and thus participate in the advantages derived from a thorough and systematic study of the Word of God. THE TEACHING STAFF has undergone considerable change during the past year—nine teachers having left, and seven having been admitted. The want of competent male teachers, which has been so long a subject of anxiety to the Association, has been increasingly felt during the past year. Surely there ought to be, in so large a congregation as St. Paul's, no lack of volunteers for a service so useful and honourable as this.

The Missionary Collections for the year, amounting to $457.25, have not yet been appropriated. They will, however, be devoted, for the most part, to the same purposes as last year, with this addition, that the School having turned its attention to the children in the General Hospital, and having adopted a cot or bed, in one of the wards, to be henceforth distinguished by having the name of this School attached to it, a certain
