SPENDING MONEY.

Says R. Anthony: "I expect as having said, 'Married women know nothing about money while they are married,' and when they come into possession of money later they do not know how to give it away or for the encouragement of reforms."

If married women know nothing of money, then I would like to know who they are, because the men are the bread winners, so are the women the bread purchasers. Few workingmen do the buying for the family, and so it is the wives and mothers have to do it.

And if the buyers for the families don't know anything about money, it is a great marvel to me. And how most of them make ends meet might as well be left to guess. It is to a good home as well as all over the world.

As for women giving to charity and for reforms, I think when women have money they are quite as liberal with it as men.

Of course, there are exceptions to every rule, and you will find strong women as well as strong men, and vice versa; but then again all married women as know nothing about money is going a little too far to be consistent with what we see every day in our stores, and in making inquiries we find long nine out of every twelve women run the finances of the home, so they must know something about money or else we would never see them do it."

Wake up now to this fact and put your shoulder to the wheel. Get in the game with one-seventeen hundred thousand and let us make it two thousand more bankrupt homes than we do to-day.

A Woman.
