concerning the renewal of beer licenses. Up to the end of May only about 100 of these had been taken out, yet most of the others who had held licenses for the previous year were selling as if no licenses were required. Surely a month is too long a time to permit between 100 and 200 people to sell without licenses. Now so long as the law requires that persons selling beer shall be licensed so long ought the law to be enforced. The law abiding
