'TIS CHRISTMAS TIME.

Once again it is the season,
Near and far, o'er all the earth,
Gospel-loving, grateful people
Think about our Saviour's birth.
Mind and heart and soul awaken
Till there dawns upon our sight,
Thoughtful Galilean shepherds
Watching o'er their flocks by night
Back, through ages dim and distant,
Our imaginations wing,
Till we stand beside those shepherds
And we hear the angels sing:—
"Glory be to God, the highest,
Peace on earth, good will to men!"

Then there's added to their anthem
Long before the light of morn—
"Unto you, in David's City,
Christ, the Lord, this day is born!"
Strange the birthplace—'tis a stable—
Lambs and sheep and kine are
there

All around the Babe intrusted
To the Virgin Mother's care!
Yet, we hear the songsters saying:—
"Lo, 'tis tidings good we bring;
Then, with gladsome hearts and voices,
Join us, while we praise and sing:
Glory be to God, the highest,
Peace on earth, good will to men!"

'Tis the wonder of all wonders
Why, for us, God's Son was born,
Knowing that in thorny pathways
He must suffer shame and scorn.
Friends He found among the shepherds—
Men who watched their flocks with care—

But the throng of David's City
Knew not that the Christ was
there.
Angels, to the reigning Caesar
Ne'er a song that night did bring,
But some humble, peasant people
Heard the sky-sent songsters sing:
"Glory be to God, the highest,
Peace on earth, good will to men!"

Caesar's palm, though gloved, was gory,
Armies stood at his command,
But no sword was held for warfare
In the Infant's dimpled hand.
'Twas the Roman's proud ambition
O'er the world by force to reign;
'Twas Love's yearnings were imbedded
In the manger-Baby's brain;
Yet, to Him shall hearts be yielded
Till the vaulted heavens ring,
While the ransomed from all nations
With unwearied voices sing:—
"Glory be to God, the highest,"
And the angels shout, "AMEN!"
