Whooping Cough, although specially a disease of childhood, is by no means confined to that period, but may occur at any time of life. It is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhold or diphtheria, and is more in female than male children Whooping Cough starts with sneezing, watering of the eyes, irritation of the throat, feverishness and cough. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is bighly recommended by mothers everywhere for the relief of this trouble as it helps to clear the clogged-up air passages of the mucous and phlegm that has collected, and in this way bring on the "whoop" which brings the so-much sought-for relief and heals and soothes the lungs.

Mrs. J. M. Rouse, Imperial, Sask., writes: "After the "flu." last fall, my four children took whooping cough and one of them developed bronchitis. After one of them developed bronchitis. Foster On League.

Sir George Foster followed. He apologized for the fact that he had forgotten that Parliament on Wednesday convened at 2 instead of at 3 o'clock, whereat Mr. McKenzie rose and remarked suavely: "On account of domestic circumstances the right honorable gentleman is excused." Sir George passed quickly from discussion on merely domestic matters, and entered the field of international politics. He regaled the members with a highly interesting disquisition upon the League of Nations, explaining at length the duties and functions of the assembly, the council, and the international court of justice. But Government members either had known all about it before, or were not generally interested, for before Sir George was half way finished the treasury benches were emptted of all save himself, and the Government attendance to a score or so.

BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination.

Interests" had put this Government into power.

Mr. McKenzie said the Liberals when they went out of office in 1911 had left Canada in splendid shape, so much so that the leader of the then Opposition had objected to reciprocity for fear the healthy condition would be disturbed. The Meighen administration when it went to the country would be wiped out and replaced by a representative government.

Foster Replies.

Sir George Foster replied to the statement that the tariff should not be discussed until the report of the tariff commission was tabled in the House. He declared Mr. McKenzie had never heard of information being given of a report secured as a basis for the conclusions of the ministers of the crown. He admitted that the present Government had come into office in 1917 backed by the big interests. These were the interest of the whole Canadian people in their determination to win the war. The war was over, but the problems arising out of it still remained to be settled.

Sir George, in changing from the tariff to the League of Nations, said Canada's part in the formation of the League of Nations was indicative of the growth of this country. Confederation was one of the first steps in the development of that latent potency for nationhood. After confederation, Canada began to think more and more of her relationship with the other colonies and so worked from the national view to the broader expanse of the empire. The war in South Africa struck yet another note and gave impetus to the development of that spirit within the empire.

In the great war, Sir George went on, Canada entered not simply with a desire to dethrone certain crowned heads but to procure the liberty and peace of the world; and so doing, Canada had related herself not merely to the rest of the empire, to the allies, but to the world.

Sir George referred to the organization of the League of Nations, and said the procure the liberty and peace of the world.

Sir George referred to the organization of the League of Nations, and said that at the meeting of the league, which he attended, absolute harmony prevalled, the various representatives he attended, absolute harmony prevaled, the result of the various representatives realizing that selfish and national interests must give way to interests unselfish and international.

After enumerating and commenting upon several articles of the league, Sir George said he was of the opinion that the humanitarian and economic coperation of all nations was more necessary to the achievement of world peace than any diplomatic action of the league.

of the establishment of an international court of justice, where disputes between states could be settled.

In response to questions by Mr. Lapointe (Quebec East), Sir George assured the House that there was no friction between the Canadian representatives at the meeting of the league in Geneva, neither was there any friction between representatives are from any of the commonwealths of the British Empire. French was the dominant language at the convention, he added.

of Nations, explaining at length the duties and functions of the assembly the council, and the international courry fusitice. But Government members either had known all about it before, or were not generally interested, for before Sir George was half way lished the treasury beinches were consisted of all save himself, and the Government attendance to Erome entered with a bundle of documents, and it was thought he would continue the debate. More Government members impolitely retired. But instead of Mr. McMaster continuing the debate, Emmanuel Devilin, of Wright, took the floor.

Mr. Devlin is usually good for an angur or so, but a brief fifteen minutes. The season of the debate on the address, but on the debate on the address, but on the budget, Mr. Devlin unexpectedly sat down, having occupied the floor, but a brief fifteen minutes.

At this point Hon. Charles Murphy (Russell) asked: "Did the Chinese representatives speak French?"

Sir George Foster: "Chinese representatives spoke clear and incisive English that would be a model to my honorable friend." (Laughter.)

Following Mr. E. B. Devlin, who spoke briefly, no one rose from the Government side, and Opposition members began to should "Question!" A. C. McMaster (Brome) was ready to move adjournment of the debate, when E. W. Nesbitt (Oxford) rose on the Government side to continue, it. He did not, he said, blame the Government for carrying out its term of office to the full, and he was entirely opposed to group government under which any premier would have to cater to various groups, to the detriment of legislation in general.

Mr. Nesbitt said that, though in thorough accord with many of the breach, and without preparation, talked against time until a sufficient number of Government members had been whilpped together to make the situation temployate the preparation of the proposal probaby for the purpose of devising Probaby for the prevention of future ambasedes, the Government has caid a means for the prevention of future ambasedes, the Government has caid a function of incident is indicative of what. The function with the Government has constantly occur during this very uncertain session. With the Government has proposal to the suggestion of duty to those who are splebeded can insure the Government against defeat on a snay verdict. To add to their troubles pairs have been discouraged by the Opposition, and are being refused. The first victim is said to be Dr. Tolmie, minister of agriculture, who desired to visit relatives, and found no man to pair with him.

Demand For Election.

Mr. D. D. McKenzie, North Cape Breton, who renewed the debate on the address this afternon, read many extracts from newspapers, which, he said, were generally considered friendly to the Government, and drew attention to their almost unanimous opinion that there ought to be an election. The opinion of the public press, he thought, was summed up in the comment of one Tory newspaper to the effect that the electors had shown in the West Peterboro election that whatever brand of politics they did want, they certainly did not want the present Government. Mr. McKenzle protested that it was not a square deal to ask the Opposition to discuss the Government's tariff proposals without bringing down the report of the commission which had toured the country during the last summer.

He declared that the present Government was not its own master now, nor would it be in the future. The "Dis time for the debate "in order to device the proposals without bringing down the report of the commission which had toured the country during the last summer.

While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple aliments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Saits from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Saits is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Saits is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.
