UNDECEIVED: ROMAN OR ANGELICAN. An intensely-interesting Story of English Ritualism. By the Author of "A Voice from the Sea," "James Daryl," etc.

The Christian World says: "This story is most ably and powerfully written. The arguments against Ritualism are the most forcible that we have yet seen. They are skillfully unfolded and admirably sustained. Amongst the hidden is, with which the book abounds there are some of deep and intense pathos, relieved by others which are humorous to a degree. The descriptive passages are very beautiful, and the final awakening of Mr. Charteris, the Romanising Rector, to find that all along he has been deceived is told with dramatic power."

The Christian World says: "The arguments throughout this volume are skillfully chosen and well put, and, while full of strong and earnest protest against the errors and deep perils of Ritualism, there is nothing in the book of that rampant and dogmatic denunciation which too often hinders its own success."

The Christian Age says: "Admirably framed, intensely interesting, and captivating to the end.
'Undeceived' must confirm the popularity of our author for purity of sentiment, effective illustration, and unaffected power. We trust it will have an extensive circulation, which it richly deserves."
