been so enforced on the popular attention as last winter when the country suffered from this epidemic. The instances of distress which were relieved by insurance policies were too numerous and too emphatic to fail to have their influence upon underwriting. The service of the life companies is being more fully appreciated by the Canadian people as it never has been before. Investments of the Confederation Life in British Columbia are very large and Mr. Macdonald was pleased to see the steady improvement which had taken place in these investments during the last three years. A great number of the mortgages that were in arrears are now in good order and the company is so well pleased with the investment outlook that it has again entered the loaning field and is prepared to make conservative advances on mortgages for dwellings and business properties.
