With this letter I am enclosing a Bank Money Order for a small amount which I shall be happy if you will accept with my love and best of wishes for the Christmas Season and the New Year. I should have much preferred giving you a little present of my own selection, but unfortunately, there has been no time for that this year. I should be pleased, therefore, if with this little gift you will choose something for your home which you would both like to have, as coming from me; something that may serve to remind you at all times of my love and abiding affection for you both.

I am glad to gather from what I hear from other sources that you are both keeping very well, and as always very happy together in your little home. Perhaps in the New Year we may have again nearer or more frequent glimpses of each other.
