Alexander, William, LL.D., b. 1825, at Chapel of Harroch, Aberdeenshire, Scotland; educated at the parochial school; passed his early life in manual labor on a farm, from herdsboy to ploughman, and in consequence of exposure and injuries broke wholly down in health and had to submit to amputation of the right leg. When 27 years of age he became a newspaper reporter, and he has since been steadily engaged as a journalist, in various departments, in connection with the Aberdeen Free Press, which he assisted in founding. He received the honorary degree of LL.D. from the University of Aberdeen in 1886. Besides contributions to several magazines, he has published: 1. Johnny Gibb of Glushetoun, in the Parish of Pyletholm, with allusions of the Parish Politics about A.D. 1843. (With Glossary of the Aberdeenshire Dialect.) Aberdeen, 1871, 8vo. Nine editions have appeared, of which the seventh is illustrated with portraits and landscapes by George Reid, H.S.A. 2. Sketches of Life among my Ain Folk, Edin., 1875, 8vo; 2d ed.

"The life of rural Aberdeenshire at this period [the early part of the present century] has been set forth with marvellous fidelity by Dr. William Alexander in his works 'Johnny Gibb of Glushetoun' and 'Life among my Ain Folk'—more especially, I venture to think, in the latter. Whoever wishes to understand the unimpeachable, and yet affectionate and sternly faithful nature of that particular variety of the Scot will find it drawn to the life in these books."—W. ROBERTSON NICOLL: James Macdonell, Journalist, p. 9.
