The Golden Silence.

What though I sing no other song? What though I speak no other word?— Is silence shame? Is patience wrong?— At least one song of mine was heard.

One echo from the mountain air, One ocean murmur glad and free— One sigh that nothing grand or fair In all this world was lost to me.

I will not wake the sleeping lyre; I will not strain the chords of thought, The sweetest fruit of all desire Comes its own way, and comes unsought.

Though all the bards of earth were dead, And all their music past away, What Nature wishes should be said She'll find the rightful voice to say!

Her heart is in the shimmering leaf, The drifting cloud, the lonely sky, And all we know of bliss or grief She speaks in forms that cannot die.

The mountain peaks that shine afar,
The slient stars, the pathless sea,
Are living signs of all we are
And types of all we hope to be.
William Winter.

HUMOROUS.

to testify. She got on very well, and made a favorable impression on the jury under the guidence of her counsel, Hon. Lyman Tremaine, until the opposing counsel, Hon. Henry Smith, subjected her to a sharp cross-examination. This so confused her that she became faint, and fell to the floar in a sweap.

fused her that she became faint, and fell to the floor in a swoon.

Of course this excited general sympathy in the audience, and Mr. Smith saw that the case looked badly.

An expedient suggested itself, by which to make the swooning appear like a piece of stage trickery, and thus destroy sympathy for her. The lady's face in swooning had turned purple red, and this fact suggested the new line of attack. The next witness was a middle-aged lady. The counsel asked:

"Did you see the plaintiff faint a short counsel asked:

"Did you see the plaintiff faint a short time ago ?"

"Yes, sir."

"People turn pale when they faint, don't they ?"

A great sensation in the court, and an evident confusion of the witness. But in a moment she answered, "No, not always."

"Did you ever hear of a case of fainting where the party did not turn pale?"
"Yes, sir."

"Yes, sir."
"Did you ever see such a case?"
"Yes, sir."
"When?"
"About a year ago."
"Where was it?"
"In this city."
"Who was it?"
By this time the excitement was so intense that everybody listened anxiously for the reply. It came promptly, with a twinkle in the witness's eye, and a quiver on her lip, as if from suppressed humor.
""Twas a negro, sir."
Peal after peal of laughter shook the court-room, in which the venerable Judge joined. Mr. Smith lost his case, not to say his temper.

"Sound," said the school-master, "is what you hear. For instance, you cannot feel a sound." "Oh, yes, you can," said a smart boy- "John Wilson," retorted the pedagogue, "how do you make that out? What sound can you feel?" "A sound trashing," quickly replied the GERMAN NOTES.

A German farmer disputed his tax bill. He said, "I pays the state tax, the county tax, and the school tax; but, by tam! I pays no total, and never had any."

"Oh, yes," she said, "I'm reru ford of the coasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Czar's accession to the throne the Prince of Wales is expected to be amongst the number of distinguished personages who will go to St. Petersburg.

"Oh, yes," she said, "I'm very fond of little boys;" and as she tripped on a string stretched across the pavement, she added, "I feel as though I could eat a couple of them this moment, roasted."

"Why does lightening so rarely strike twice in the same place ?" a professor asked the new boy in the class in natural philosophy. "Because," said the new boy; it never needs to." And it is a little singular that no body thought of that reason before.

"The Istok writes as follows: "In order that the disturbed relations between Prince Bismarck and the Crown Prince of Germany, previous to the latter's departure for Italy, was to consider the limit of the concessions that might be made to the claims of the Vatican, and the attitude the German Government ought to take up when the question should be brought forward in Parliament.

"There are no circumstances under which honesty and integrity of purpose will not stand a man in good stead," says some philosopher; but we would like to know how it will help the man who finds himself suddently forced to associate with a bulldog in an orbard with a high wall round it.

A young man objected to the young girl that his rich old uncle wished him to marry. "You mustrl be so particularly, said the exasperated uncle. "I tell you she's well enough alone?"

One afternoon, while a tight-rope walker was going through his performance, a boy about twelve years old turned to an acquaintance of the same age and remarked, "Tom, don't you wish you could to that it "I"—"Yes, I do," sadly replied Tom; "but my folks made me go to school, and are determined that shan't never be anybody?"

"Doctor," said a lady, "I want you to prescribe for me."—"There is nothing the matter, madam," said the doctor, after feeling her pulse, "you only need rest.", "Now, doctor, just look at it "look at it! Now say what does that need?"—"A book of the presents of the whether the doctor.

"Now, doctor, just look at my tongue," she presisted, "Just look at it—look at it! Now sav what does that need?"—"I think that needs rest, too," replied the doctor.

"Mr. Smith, you said you onee officiated in the pulpit. Did you mean by that that you preached?" "No, sir; I held the light to the man that did preach." "Ah! the court understood you differently. It supposed that the discourse came directly from you." "No, sir; I only threw light upon it."

A French journalist, fonder of fun than of fighting, on being challenged accepted the cartel with: "Of course I claim the choice of weapons. I wish to do my best to kill you. Good. I have in my house twenty loaves of siege bread, which I have kept for souvenirs. We will sit down and eat against each other. One of us is sure to die." Knowing by experience the nature of seige bread, the challenger did not care to run the risk involved in such a contest, and, like a sensible fellow, laughed, and shook hands.

A day or two since a quiet and dignified gentleman was walking the street when he was startled by a woman who rushed up to him, all out of breath, and seizing him by the arm gesticulated wildly and panted out: "Whistle!' sir, whistle!" He looked at her in amazement, and while he stared she again urged him: "Whistle!" He looked at her in amazement, and while he stared she again urged him: "Whistle!" I he looked at her in amazement, and while he stared she again urged him: "Whistle!" I he looked at her in amazement, and while he stared she again urged him: "Whistle!" the tooked at nermanazement, and while he stared she again urged him: "Whistle I whistle?" He finally found breath to tell her that he wasn't nuch of a whistler, but if she would nominate the tune he would do the best he could. Her eyes flashed and she showed decided anger. With one arm stretched out towards a retreating street car she shook him off and said some ching which sounded to him like: "Confound a fool that can't whistle for a horse car to accomodate a lady."

Too Much for Him.

The court and jury, as well as the spectators, generally enjoyed the scene when a lawyer, in an attempt to badger or browbeat a witness, comes off second best in the encounter. A correspondent realls an amising instance of this sort, which happened a few days ago in an Albany courtroom.

LONDON STAMMERING INSTITUTE, ON, - ONT. LONDON, TESTIMONIAL.

I have been an inveterate stammerer for 40 years. I am now 45 years old. I never saw a worse stammerer than I was. I have tried all sorts of cares, but without success, until Tuesday last, I placed myself under Professor Sutherland's treatment, and now, after only two days' treatment, I am entirely cured. I can now talk and read with perfect ease, and I know that I will never stammer again. My address is Delaware P.O., Ont. ANDREW COLVIN.
